HENNING TRACES EVENTS LEADING TO BANK PANIC

Roosevelt Inflation Plan Kept Quiet.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[SECOND ARTICLE.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—The bank panic of 1933, according to the Republican view, was the culmination of widespread public fear of monetary instability, engendered by the election of Mr. Roosevelt, who was suspected of entertaining unorthodox economic views.

Mr. Roosevelt sought to dispel such suspicions in a speech four days before the election in which he said he wanted "to see sound money in all the world."

By "sound money," however, Mr. Roosevelt, according to his biographer, Ernest K. Lindley, did not mean necessarily "the existing gold standard or the existing gold content of the dollar . . . but he could not admit it or even hint at it, except in the most intimate circle of tight lipped friends. Only a hint that he contemplated a departure from the gold standard or inflation and he would have instantly caused the catastrophe that every one wished to avoid."

"Reflation" Secret Leaks.

The secret was kept till the election, but afterward there leaked out a good deal of evidence that Mr. Roosevelt was discussing with members of his brain trust the devaluation of the dollar and other schemes of inflation or, as it was called, "reflation." This gave rise to the apprehensions in the business world which spread apace.

The growing uneasiness manifested itself in various ways. Some people exported their capital by buying foreign currencies or foreign securities. Some purchased gold bullion, others began withdrawing their bank deposits in gold coin. Some converted their deposits into gold certificates and stuffed them into safety deposit boxes. Others bought real estate. By the turn of the year the hoarding mania had flamed up anew.

At that time the banks were considered stronger than at the time of the June, 1932, crisis. Between July and December there had been no serious runs or evidence of hoarding. The monetary gold stock had increased nearly 600 million dollars and 150 millions had been returned to the banks from hoarding.

Deposits Gain 700 Millions.

The balances of the member banks in the federal reserve system had increased 500 millions and deposits 700 millions, while borrowing by member banks from the federal reserve had decreased 137 millions. In 141 cities the volume of check transactions increased 1⅓ billion. Bond prices had gone up 15 per cent and industrial stocks 50 per cent.

But the storm already was gathering that was to sweep away these evidences of reviving prosperity. About the middle of December it became known that the President elect was discussing devaluation of the dollar with members of the brain trust. On Jan. 2, 1933, twenty leading economists, taking note of what was in the wind, addressed an open letter to Mr. Roosevelt in which they said that "the gold standard of the present weight and fineness should be unflinchingly maintained." They asserted that "agitation for experiments would impair confidence and retard recovery."

Many for Devaluation.

By this time Senators Burton K. Wheeler [Dem., Mont.], Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.], Elmer Thomas [Dem., Okla.], and others in the Roosevelt inner circle were preaching devaluation and inflation. Also actively advocating devaluation were James H. Rand, Gen. R. E. Wood, Prof. George F. Warren of Cornell university, Frank A. Vanderlip, E. L. Cord, Vincent Bendix, John Henry Hammond, Edward A. O'Neal, and Samuel Fels, who soon became associated in organizing the Committee for the Nation, an agency for propagandizing devaluation that exercised a profound influence upon Mr. Roosevelt. It was Prof. Warren's theory Mr. Roosevelt eventually embraced in his gold purchase and dollar devaluation policy.

Toward the end of January the increasing uneasiness in the business world was such that alarmed bankers

LANDON VOICES CALL TO MORAL COURAGE OF U. S.

His Aim: Rebuilding American Dream.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on Back Page.)

Topeka, Kas., July 12.—[Special.]—There is one note that is found in all of Gov. Alf M. Landon's public addresses and acts since he first took office in 1933. This is the call to moral courage in rebuilding the American dream.

This might be called his religion, for with him as with the pioneers who sent him into the world the idea of democracy is one with the religious concept.

"It is not sufficient simply to believe in religion as a dogma," said Gov. Landon in an address to the Methodist district conference at Greeley, Colo., in 1935. "We must be willing to serve in some way, in some capacity."

Calls for Moral Courage.

His constant call to his fellow citizens since the dark days of the depression, when he first took public office, has been for a revival of moral courage.

"In the recent past," he told a convocation of ministers in Topeka, in January, 1933, "we worshiped false gods and neglected too much the true and living God, whose precepts have guided mankind through the centuries."

In meeting the problems of today his mind goes constantly back to the struggles of the pioneers and yet comprehends the evolutionary forces at work in society. His rock is the "rock of ages," a house built on the firm foundation of character. He has something that will stand against the wild winds.

Expressive of His Patriotism.

Without consultation with the governor and yet after some association with him and study of his record, this writer would select the following lines from Katherine Lee Bates' "America, the Beautiful," as expressive of his patriotism and his religion:

"O beautiful for pilgrim feet
Whose stern impassioned stress
A thoroughfare for freedom beat
Across the wilderness—
"America! America! God mend thine every flaw,
Confirm thy soul in self-control—
Thy liberty in law.

"O beautiful for patriot dream
That sees beyond the years
Thine alabaster cities gleam
Undimmed by human tears—
"America! America! God shed his grace on thee
And crown thy good with brotherhood

Born in Parsonage.

Born in a Methodist parsonage, guided by a devout mother, Alf Landon has remained true to the faith of his fathers. As a business man and citizen of Independence, Kas., he was one of the most generous contributors to the Methodist church, and is a frequent attendant at the First Methodist church in the capital.

"I always feel better when I go to church," he said one day.

Like many American family men, however, he often has been inclined to stay at home on Sunday and let his wife go to church. He cannot be pictured as a stern, narrow church

'SUBMARINE HOUSES' (UNDER WATER) GIVE RELIEF FROM HEAT

Indio, Cal., July 12.—(AP)—Residents of Imperial and Coachella valley, where the summer heat frequently registers 120 degrees, this year are building windowless "submarine houses" to escape high temperatures.

The idea was started here last spring by a householder who was unable to send his family away for the hot months. Adjacent to his regular home he built a room, 10 feet square. The walls and roof were of sheet iron. Over the top of the new room he built a shed-like structure with a roof of wood.

In the space between the wooden shed roof, over the sheetiron, the builder placed a water pipe with holes cut at close intervals. When the water is turned on the streams cascade over the roof and down the sheet iron sides. Inside an electric fan circulates the air, which is drawn through one vent and blown out through another.

Temperatures inside the shelter are 25 to 35 degrees cooler than outside.

Already 400 of these "submarine houses," so-called because they are "under water," have been built here. Average cost ranges from $75 to $100.

FIVE CHICAGOANS DROWN SEEKING TO ESCAPE HEAT

Five Chicagoans were drowned yesterday as they sought relief from the heat in swimming and boating parties. The victims:

Miss Anna Rezick, 23 years old, 1932 West 22d place, lost her life while swimming in Paw Paw river at a resort near Watervliet, Mich.

Fred Nellessen, 50 years old, 3840 North Seeley avenue, a lithographer, drowned in Pistakee lake in Lake county when he fell into the water as he was stepping from his row boat to a pier.

Richard Pac, 34 years old, 5329 South Winchester avenue, a WPA worker, perished while swimming in abandoned quary near Walker drive and Archer avenue, Lemont. His wife and five small children witnessed the tragedy.

Walter Alechnowicz, 44 years old, 2515 West 46th street, drowned as he swam with a party of friends in Bangs lake, near Wauconda, in Lake county.

10,000 Riot in Nice; French Factions Clash

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 12.—Rioting broke out among 10,000 rightists and leftists this afternoon in the streets of Nice and 2,000 police and mobile guards had a hard battle to restore order. Serious developments in the peasant strike, which threatens to curtail France's food supplies, also created fresh worries for Premier Leon Blum's Popular Front government.

About fifty were injured in the street fighting at Nice. Several of them had to be treated in hospitals. There were many arrests.

The trouble grew out of a massmeeting of 8,000 members of a new party, the Populaire Française, one of the legal outgrowths of the disbanded nationalist semi-military groups. Two thousand communists and Socialists, who gathered outside singing the "Internationale," started the row when city police and mobile guards sought to prevent trouble by herding the nationalists out of the convention hall. One of the biggest cafés on the Avenue Victoria was wrecked during the fighting.

Strikers Occupy Five Farms.

Striking farm hands today occupied five farms near Paris. This development was particularly ominous in that it gives teeth to the ultimatum delivered by union farm workers Friday, declaring they would call a strike and occupy the fields unless their demands for higher wages and a 40 hour week are granted by Tuesday.

For the moment the strike menace is localized in the districts around Paris. This is an important agricultural area, however, not only because it provides most of the capital's fresh vegetable supply, but also because it is a big wheat growing region.

Fail to Reach Agreement.

It is the wheat angle, which is causing the government to lose sleep. Due to constant rains and heat the wheat is ripening abnormally fast and harvesting in this part of France should start now. If the strike of farm hands delayed the cutting even a few days experts think the whole harvest in this region would be ruined. Violent clashes between strikers and landowners, who are bound to put up a fight to save the crop, are also feared.

The government is making strenuous efforts to avert a widespread strike of peasants, but an official communique today said that a conference in the office of Roger Salengro, minister of interior, between landowners and delegates of farm laborers failed to produce an agreement. Another conference will be held Thursday.

Agitators are reported to be circulating through the rural districts inciting farm laborers to organize for a strike and urging them to take over the employers' fields in the same way city workers occupied factories and shops.

4 in One Family Drown; 3 Try to Save Baby, 2

Rush City, Minn., July 12.—Four children of one family were drowned in the St. Croix river near here yesterday. The tragedy occurred when 2 year old Duane Sybrant wandered from a riverside cottage and toppled into the stream. His sister, Blythe, 21, plunged into the stream fully clad in an effort to save the small child. She screamed for help. Her brothers, Wallas, 27, and Jerry, 16, neither of whom could swim, attempted to reach Blythe and also were drowned. Volunteer divers from nearby summer cottages recovered the bodies.

Vice Witness Branded, Tied; Gas Turned On

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—Margaret Louise Bell, a striking red haired 23 year old witness against Charles [Lucky] Luciano, convicted New York vice lord, was found in an apartment here today with the cryptic initials "C L" and the numerals "3-12" carved on her thigh and abdomen.

The woman, also known as Jean Costello, told police that she had been beaten, bound, and branded by a man she said was a member of the Luciano ring and left to die from gas fumes from four jets he turned on after torturing her.

Found Bleeding on Floor.

Police found the woman in a semiconscious condition, bleeding from her wounds, on the kitchen floor of her apartment after a telephone operator, hearing screams, notified headquarters that something was wrong.

The girl was taken to Emergency hospital for treatment and then to the police department woman's bureau for questioning.

Saying she had been a witness at the grand jury investigation of Luciano, Miss Bell told detectives she was certain the assault was a gangland reprisal. She was quick to point out that the initials were those of Luciano and that the "3-12" might correspond to C and L, third and twelfth letters of the alphabet.

Names Assailant to Police.

Adopting her theory, for the time being, at least, Washington police, joined by two detectives from New York, admitted she had given them the names of the man who cut the lettering into her flesh and that of another who, she asserted, was his accomplice.

Police who answered the call said the kitchen was filled with gas flowing from four open jets when they entered the apartment. Miss Bell was stretched out on the floor, her legs tied with cord.

The red haired girl's story—as she told it to detectives—was:

Fled New York for Safety.

She explained that she fled to the capital because she was afraid a reprisal would be made for refusing to sign a statement in New York. The statement, she said, was to the effect that she had given untrue evidence against Luciano when he was found guilty of being overlord of New York's vice syndicate.

At a night club in nearby Virginia, Saturday night, Miss Bell said she recognized a dark complexioned man whom she knew to be a member of the vice gang. Fearing that he was in the capital to carry out threats against her, she said she fled from the night club to her apartment.

Gown Torn from Body.

Soon after she undressed and went to bed, she said, there was a knock at her door. Fearfully she opened it. Immediately, she said, she was struck in the face and knocked to the floor.

Her assailant then dragged her to her bed, almost tore her nightgown from her body, and slashed the numerals on her stomach, she said. He then ran the knife over her right thigh, carving initials about three inches square.

She told detectives that her assailant then turned on four gas stove jets, took her key, stepped from the apartment, and locked the door.

Dazed, she crawled into the adjoining room, where she found that the intruder had torn one telephone from the wall but had overlooked another. Stumbling to this telephone she knocked off the receiver and shouted for help.

Troop Train Hits Beer Truck; Blaze Put Out

Watertown, N. Y., July 12.—[Special.]—A troop train carrying Battery A of the 112th Field artillery, New Jersey National Guard, to Pine camp near here, smashed into a truck loaded with 15 tons of beer today. The truck was demolished and then caught fire, but the blaze was put out by National Guardsmen who made good use of the beer.

Takes 6-Hour Sun Bath; He's In a Hospital Now

Harry Rosenberg, 22 years old, 24 West Ontario street, fell asleep on the beach at Ohio street at noon yesterday and lay there for six hours in the glaring sun, wearing only a pair of trunks. When he awoke his back was so severely burned that he was unable to walk. Police took him to the County hospital, where his condition was said to be critical.

NO RELIEF FOR CHICAGO IS DUE TILL TOMORROW

New Heat Records Set in State.

Blocked by the mass of heated air which has piled up on the western plains for more than ten days, the wave of cool air and rains from the Pacific ocean stopped yesterday at the edge of the northwestern drouth states, ending temporarily the spread of relief eastward. As a result Chicago will not get its promised relief tonight and the central western area is due for another scorching day.

As the pressure from the Pacific ocean increases today, however, the "cool front" in the northwest is expected to make greater progress, Meteorologist J. R. Lloyd said last night. Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Minnesota, and parts of Wisconsin may get some rain today, but relief is not forecast for Chicago and Illinois until at least late tomorrow.

Put Hope on Lake Breeze.

"But the breeze from Lake Michigan will probably keep the shore line, in and near Chicago, much cooler than inland cities," Mr. Lloyd declared. "The temperature here should not go above today's high of 89 degrees. At the airport and west, however, I expect another day of 100 or more.

Explaining the movement of the cool air mass, Mr. Lloyd said it started lifting rapidly over the Rocky mountain regions Friday. By Saturday its first benefit reached the far drouth states of Utah, Idaho, Colorado, and Wyoming in the form of showers.

"Yesterday it brought more rain and cool weather to Montana, Wyoming, and parts of western Kansas, Nebraska, and the Dakotas," said the forecaster. "But the heat which has been accumulating in the central west proved to be too great a barrier.

Cool Mass to Move Slowly.

"The cool air will keep coming on, but it will move very slowly. There is no chance of it getting this far until at least Tuesday, and I can't promise it even then. But there is a fair chance of it happening. A good large mass of cool air is needed to break through all that heat."

An example of what the relief means to the northwest is seen in temperature readings yesterday in towns which have endured tropical heat for almost two weeks. Kalispell, Mont., had 43 degrees; Helena, Mont., 48; Cheyenne, Wyo., 50; Havre, Mont., 54; Santa Fe, N. M., 52, and Rapid City, S. D., 68. There were rains in this same section, as farmers rejoiced in the hope that some of their withered crops may be revived.

Good Rains in Wyoming.

Lander, Wyo., had 1.48 inches. Cheyenne had .60 of an inch; Miles City, Mont., .70 of an inch; Pocatello, Idaho, .74, and there was a heavy fall at Gillette, Wyo. Rain measured .30 at Williston and Dickinson, S. D.

Scattered showers, caused by purely local conditions, benefited several other afflicted regions. Forecaster Lloyd said the showers in Kansas are an indication that the cool air mass in the west is "surely on the march."

Rain fell at Baltimore, Md., Newark, N. J., Indianapolis, Ind., and in parts of Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, and Ohio. New York and New England cooled off, New York City having a high of 76 in contrast to the 100 degrees last week, and Boston, Mass., having 71.

1,000 Die in 10 Day Wave.

Upward of 1,000 deaths throughout the country during the ten day heat wave have been attributed more or less directly to the high temperatures.

In Chicago heat has been considered a contributing factor in 135 deaths since the torrid wave began here last Tuesday.

In Chicago the temperatures compared favorably with those eastern points. With a high of 89 it was almost the coolest spot on the lake shore. Milwaukee had 96 and across the lake Ludington, Mich., in the heart of the summer resort region, set a new July record with 96.

Thousands Find Relief Here.

Chicago's reputation as a summer resort was verified yesterday by hundreds of thousands who obtained relief from the torrid weather at the beaches and in forest preserves. The trek from the western parts of the city and the inland suburbs increased on reports that the shore line was being swept by a cool breeze. As one result of this, the attendance at the

Brookfield zoo was only 9,2[illegible], the smallest Sunday crowd this year, while crowds estimated at more than [illegible] into the city and lined [illegible]

Meanwhile, all-time heat marks were set in these Illinois towns: Galva, 110; Rockford, 109; Sterling, 104; Jacksonville, 108. Other records were: Davenport, Ia., 108; Grand Rapids, Mich., 106, and Duluth, Minn., 102. It was the second time in three days and the second time in history that this Minnesota town, which normally enjoys 70 degree weather because of winds from Lake Superior, had readings above 100.

Water Low in Rivers.

The Mississippi and Illinois rivers and others in the arid stretches of the country are in danger of reaching new all-time low water marks. At Beardstown the stage of the Illinois is 7.4 feet, lowest in thirty years.

Government agencies continued working over the week-end to aid the thousands of families in the drouth belt which have been forced to seek federal aid, many for the first time. Oklahoma has been added to the drouth emergency territory of the WPA, while the AAA has designated 336 counties as needing emergency assistance. In Georgia, Alabama, and South Carolina an estimated 250,000 persons need government help.

It was estimated that more than a third of North Dakota's population of 686,000 will be on relief before spring.

DROUTH REDUCES RUSSIAN CROPS; FAMINE FEARED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, July 12.—Threatened with famine during the coming winter, thousands of Russian villages are watering their grain fields by hand. Peasants carry water in buckets and contrive makeshift irrigation systems in an attempt to nurse along sufficient grain to feed themselves, the soviet press admits.

South Russia, including the Ukraine, former granary of Europe, suffered a forty day dry spell during May and June. The Volga basin and the western ural regions also are included in the drouth area. Only Transcaucasian districts, including the Kuban river area, report good crops. In the drouth area collectivized farm laborers are refusing to obey the government's orders to use the provided machinery to gather the harvest. The peasants contend that the scanty crop should be harvested by hand.

After abolishing the bread rationing system last year the consumption of bread has largely increased. The small surpluses of the good harvests in recent years was stored as a wartime reserve. Russia, according to experienced Baltic grain dealers, no longer is a potential grain exporter. News of the drouth in America and Canada has boosted grain prices in the Baltic markets.

HARLEM GUARDED AFTER OUTBREAK AGAINST ITALIANS

New York, July 13 [Monday].—More than 250 policemen were patrolling Harlem streets last night and early today after an anti-Italian outbreak in which several hundred colored persons hurled bricks, bottles and stones through the windows of a bar and restaurant said to be owned by Italians.

Two buses brought more than 100 policemen to the scene while two emergency squads and a detail of motorcycle and mounted police arrived from nearby precincts.

The outbreak started after colored street orators had incited a crowd of about 400 to take revenge for the Ethiopians against Italian storekeepers in Harlem.

REFRIGERANT GAS OVERCOMES 16 IN DRUG STORE FIRE

Sixteen firemen were overcome by fumes from a refrigeration plant yesterday as they battled a fire in the basement of a Walgreen drug store at 2801 Broadway.

The fire broke out in a rubbish heap near the refrigerating system. So intense was the heat that the flames melted the lead connections on the cooling pipes, allowing the fumes to escape.

Unaware of the gas leakage firemen under Battalion Chief John Stahl entered the basement where they collapsed in the fumes.

Rescued by Comrades.

Other firemen aided by Park Policeman McGarry Fergus and August Kenzora carried them to safety. Six of the firemen were taken to the Alexian Brothers hospital while the others were treated with oxygen tanks at the scene.

Firemen were hampered further in fighting the fire as the only access to the refrigerating room was by means of a narrow stairway through the store. Finally firemen wearing gas masks hacked a hole through the tile floor of the store to permit the fumes to escape and to extinguish the fire with chemicals.

The fire, which was confined to the basement, was finally brought under control after an hour's work. Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan estimated the damage at $1,000.

Trafic Tied Up by Fire.

Hundreds of spectators gathered and trafic at the three way intersection of Clark street, Diversey avenue, and Broadway was tied up for nearly an hour. The fire was first discovered when Policeman Fergus saw smoke coming from the basement. He notified L. J. Swanson, 6614 North Campbell avenue, manager of the store.

The firemen taken to the hospital are Capt. John Lee, 45 years old; Lieut. Martin Carney, 35 years old, 4918 Marianna street; Joseph O'Malley, 31 years old, 2621 Burnham street; Charles Pranchske, 33 years old, 3054 North Avers avenue, and Arthur Schubert, 40 years old, 4453 North Rockwell street, all of Engine company No. 55, and John Bucker, 30 years old, 3220 North Lincoln street, of rescue squad No. 10.

CLOSE CHURCHES IN ALABAMA TO HALT PARALYSIS

Montgomery, Ala., July 12.—(AP)—Church doors remained closed in many north Alabama communities today as a precaution against spread of an infantile paralysis outbreak which has caused eight deaths.

With social functions at a virtual standstill, Dr. J. N. Baker, state health officer, advised county boards of health to establish quarantine where necessary.

Mountain resorts, usually thriving at this season, were closed. In numerous localities theaters closed altogether or barred children.

The list of stricken stood at 126, but most of the cases were confined to the upstate Tennessee valley counties and those adjoining.

CONFER TODAY ON POSSIBLE BOOST IN PRICE OF MILK

Representatives of the Pure Milk association, which acts for 14,500 farmers, announced yesterday that a conference would be sought today with officials of the Associated Milk Dealers, an organization of 114 distributers who handle 90 per cent of the milk in this area, relative to a possible increase in the price of milk to the consumers.

The drouth has caused a 25 per cent cut in milk produced for Chicago consumption, according to Paul Potter, secretary of the P. M. A. Most pastures have been burned by the heat and the farmers want more money for their milk if they must buy feed for their cows, Potter said.

A temporary increase in the price paid to the farmers by the distributors was agreed upon recently, but it was said this increase was not sufficient to justify a boost in the price Chicagoans must pay. If a further increase is necessary however, higher prices must be charged to the consumer, it was said.

Potter said an announcement would be made today after the conference. Meanwhile some of the independent dealers were said to have decided to raise the price of milk 1 cent a quart.

Never Been in Love and Now She's 120 Years Old

SAN SALVADOR, July 12.—Miss Dolores Bedoya, who celebrated her 120th birthday recently, attributes her longevity and excellent health to the fact that she has never been in love in all her life.

Has New Nursery

Mrs. Thomas A. Yawkey, wife of the owner of the Boston Red Sox baseball team, returned to New York City on the Century yesterday with their newly adopted 8 week old daughter, Julia Austin Yawkey. Adoption proceedings were held last week before County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki for the baby, which was taken from the Evanston Cradle. A nurse, Miss Bernice Severson, accompanied Mrs. Yawkey. The baby will be placed in a new nursery in the Yawkey penthouse on Fifth avenue, New York.

3 FAIR SKINNED KILLERS SOUGHT IN BOLTON DEATH

Old Capone Gang Linked to Prignano Murder.

Supervising Captain John Stege, in charge of the west side police division, said yesterday he was seeking three youths hired as killers by the Sicilian camorra which now controls the remnants of the old Capone syndicate. The killers were selected especially because of their light complexions, Stege said, and he believes they are responsible for the murder last Thursday of State Representative John M. Bolton of the Second district and the murder last December of State Representative A. J. Prignano of the Seventeenth district.

The light complexion of the killers would tend to divert suspicion from their employers, Stege said he was informed. The killers of Prignano were so described, he recalled, but no one had a close enough view of Bolton's slayers to guess at their nationality.

Gang Deserts Alky Trade.

According to stories told Stege, the survivors of the syndicate once commanded by Al Capone, who is now a prisoner on Alcatraz Island, held a business meeting last winter in Florida. The reports reaching police here were to the effect that the gangsters decided to get out of the alcohol business, which no longer produced big money and was not tolerated as it was in prohibition days. They determined to concentrate their efforts on gambling and vice.

It was reported that Frank Nitti, Capone's old general business manager, was chosen to be the head of the new syndicate, and that he would keep out of Chicago as much as possible. Ruling with him were to be State Representative James Adducci of the Second district and Louis [Little New York] Campagna.

Prignano a Stumbling Block.

Representative Prignano, who was also a Democratic committeeman of the Twentieth ward, was said to be a stumbling block in the program mapped out by the Nitti-Adducci-Campagna gang. Prignano was slain in a pretended holdup.

Prignano's legislative district took in part of the Sicilian and Italian sector of the west side. The Second district, of which Bolton was a Democratic representative and Adducci a Republican representative, adjoined the Seventeenth district and took in more of the Sicilian-Italian territory of the west side.

Control of the votes of their own Sicilian people was regarded as essential to the success of the gambling program of the plotters, Stege was informed. Bolton was popular in what was formerly known as the "Bloody Twentieth ward" before ward boundaries were changed.

Bolton's Gambling Interests.

Bolton, too, police said, evinced an interest in gambling through his bill to legalize handbooks and his efforts to organize a union of handbook employés.

One report of recent date was that the Nitti-Adducci-Campagna gang demanded at least a 25 per cent interest in every handbook operating in the city. Where this tribute was refused the calling cards of the blonde would be left as warning. Police reports are to the effect that the "blonde menace" brought about the desired results in most instances.

Capt. Stege said that while the investigation of the Bolton and Prignano murders may be slow and seemingly unproductive, it will go on till the murderers are caught and prosecuted.

Funeral services for Representative Bolton will be held this morning at 9 o'clock from the family residence, 736 South Ashland boulevard, to Notre Dame church. Burial will be in All Saints' cemetery.

YOUNG REYNOLDS AND WIFE GAINING FROM DRUG COMA

San Francisco, Cal., July 12.—(AP)—Arthur Reynolds Jr. and his bride, the former Georgia Barmon, were recovering in separate hospitals tonight from the effects of sedatives which they said were taken to induce sleep.

Mrs. Reynolds, 35 years old, who lay in a coma for 48 hours after she and her husband were found unconscious in their apartment, was removed from an oxygen tent. Hospital physicians said she was "getting along nicely."

Reynolds, 32, who returned for a second treatment yesterday, will remain in the Emergency hospital a day or two longer, attendants said.

Police said they found indications the newly married couple had been virtually without funds and that Reynolds had been looking for work.

Church Uses Ice to Cool Edifice During Services

Bloomington, Ill., July 12.—[Special.]—Improvised air cooling was in effect at the Park Methodist Episcopal church here for services today. Four hundred pounds of ice was placed in the cold air duct of the heating system and an electric blower drew air over the ice, circulating cool breezes through the inactive heating unit and through the registers.

Festival of Progress

With the whistles of 18,000 locomotives blowing in a mighty fanfare at 8 o'clock this morning, Railroad week will be officially opened throughout the west. The purpose of the celebration is to acquaint the public with the great progress made by the railroads in recent years, both in the passenger and freight departments.

While events will be staged in some 500 middle west and western cities, Chicago as the railroad center of the nation will be the scene of the chief celebration. Harry G. Taylor, chairman of the Western Association of Railway Executives, will be principal speaker at a breakfast-luncheon at 10 o'clock this morning in the Medinah club at which will be selected the "queen of queens" for the week. At noon Mayor Kelly is to crown the "queen" at State and Madison streets.

Tonight public "Railroad week" dances will be held at the Trianon and Aragon ballrooms, at which the "queen of queens" and her courts will appear. On the schedule for tomorrow are a Railroad week luncheon at the Rotary club at which John J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, will talk, and a train crier's contest at Wrigley field prior to the ball game.

PROWLER KILLED NEAR MAYOR'S HOME IDENTIFIED

The colored man who was shot and killed early yesterday as he fled from a policeman in the rear of the home of Mayor Kelly at 4821 Ellis avenue, was identified last night as Olden Hudson, 28 years old, a laborer for the Illinois Central railroad. His sister, Mrs. Josephine Collins, 35 years old, 4943 Washington Park court, said Hudson's home was in Kankakee.

Hudson broke away from Policeman Michael Stevens as the latter was calling a wagon at the box in front of the mayor's home. Stevens ran in pursuit, firing several shots, and then grappled with the prowler in an adjoining yard. Thomas Naughton, a private watchman, attracted by the shots, appeared on the scene and fired once, striking Hudson in the head.

Mayor Kelly's home was vacant as he and his family are at their summer home in Eagle River, Wis.

KILLED BY BORROWED GUN.

English, Ind., July 12.—[Special.]—Edward W. Conrad, 29, Leavenworth, shot to death yesterday with a shotgun borrowed from his brother-in-law, Stewart Herbaugh, was the victim of an accident, his family believes.

GASOLINE BLAST WRECKS YACHT; NINE ARE INJURED

Nine persons were injured, two seriously, yesterday afternoon when a gasoline explosion wrecked the Penguin, a 38 foot cruiser, in Belmont harbor. The accident occurred shortly after the cruiser had taken on gasoline from the Sinclair fuel tender, and witnesses said the ignition of spilled gasoline by a spark from the Penguin's motor may have caused the blast.

Eight passengers on the cruiser were thrown into the water by the explosion. Most seriously injured were Miss Elizabeth Perkins, 24 years old, 2045 Irving Park boulevard, a stenographer, and Dr. E. V. Schulte, 55 years old, 3000 Sheridan road, head of the Schulte Optical company and one of the owners of the cruiser.

Other Victims of Blast.

The ninth victim was Capt. Fred Schiller, 52 years old, 3120 Natoma avenue, commander of the fuel tender, who was burned on the hands and face as he was thrown backward on the deck of his boat. The other injured persons, all of whom were taken to the John B. Murphy hospital, are:

JOHN L. OBERLY, 48 years old, 154 West Schiller street, a ventilation engineer employed by the city.

J. K. PESCHEL, 42 years old, of the Seneca hotel, 200 East Chestnut street.

All but Dr. Schulte and Miss Perkins left the hospital after treatment.

M. E. Day, 6831 Greenview avenue, a stock broker, and Miss Dorothy Nelson of La Grange, were standing at the bow of the cruiser when the explosion occurred. They leaped into the water and swam ashore. Some of those who were thrown into the water were helped to safety by Oberly, who suffered severe cuts during his rescue work in addition to burns from the explosion.

Owner Watches from Ashore.

The Penguin is registered in the name of Joel Ackley, 3000 Sheridan road, a commercial photographer's model. He was watching the departure from a window in the Schulte apartment, having decided not to accompany the others on a trip to the South Shore Country club.

DIES SUDDENLY AT HOME.

NEW YORK'S NEWEST BRIDGE HANDLES OVER 40,000 AUTOS IN DAY

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Although slightly hampered by an emergency collecting system that required each car 12 to 13 seconds to pass toll points, the new Triborough bridge accommodated its first rush of Sunday traffic today with ease and smoothness.

Because automatic counting devices are not in operation, bridge officials could not be certain how many cars came through the toll lanes from daybreak up to midnight, but estimated the number was over 40,000. The old Queensboro bridge won a much deserved rest.

For many years it virtually has groaned beneath the peak loads that come with the summer Sunday rush to and from the Queens beaches, handling as high as 70,000 cars a day. Today the total number was 15,000.

HENNING TRACES EVENTS LEADING TO BANK PANIC

Roosevelt Kept Plan for Inflation Secret.

and other financiers were discussing what action might be taken to steady the situation. The opinion was well-nigh universal that the President elect was the only person who could reassure the country.

Roosevelt Urged to Speak.

Reflecting this view, Alexander Dana Noyes, financial editor of the New York Times, urged Mr. Roosevelt, on Jan. 23, to dissipate the apprehensions that he intended to tinker with the currency.

"It is probable enough," he said, "that the present spirit of hesitancy, not only in financial markets, but in general trade is more or less influenced by lack of such reassurance.

"In numerous older similar occasions doubt and mistrust prevailed, with exceedingly bad effect on financial sentiment, until the President elect took matters into his hands and publicly avowed his purposes. This was notably true in the pre-inauguration period of 1885 and 1893, at both of which junctures the maintenance of gold payments was being discussed uneasily and at both of which Mr. Cleveland stated so positively and so courageously his views of the general problem as to remove at once all apprehension.

Hoarding Is Resumed.

"While all eyes were thus turning to the President elect the spreading alarm was manifested by a sudden flight from the dollar, when 38 millions in gold were earmarked for export in the last week of January, and by hoarding for which purpose 64 millions were withdrawn from the banks. Within a fortnight frightened capitalists and speculators gambling on the expectation of devaluation by the incoming Democratic administration had thus removed several hundred million dollars from American business channels. It was not long before this movement was measured by billions."

There has been much conjecture regarding the fortunes that may have been made in this period by the financial sharps in the group around the President elect who shared the secret mentioned by Mr. Roosevelt's biographers. That there was an enormous volume of such speculation and that somebody made enormous profits admits of little doubt.

"This movement," says William M. Myers and Walter H. Newton in their book "The Hoover Administration" was accelerated by speculative activities. What were the profits in the flight from the dollar is indicated by the fact that a person who exchanged one million dollars worth of English sterling at the average price in January, 1933, and returned it home in July, only six months later, would have profited by $390,000. If he held it for eleven months he would have profited by nearly $550,000. All of this abnormal condition made exports of American commodities more difficult and tended to stifle business."

Glass Hesitates to Take Job.

On Jan. 30 the newspapers reported that Senator Carter Glass of Virginia was hestitating to accept the treasury portfolio in the new administration because of his apprehensions that Mr. Roosevelt intended to depart from the sound money policy pledged by the Democratic platform. It was stated that Mr. Roosevelt was seriously considering some form of currency inflation for the purpose of raising the price level. Senator Thomas read the newspaper dispatch to the senate as the text of a speech he proceeded to make in favor of cheapening the dollar.

The next day Henry A. Wallace, who was slated for a cabinet post, asserted that the "smart thing would be to go off the gold standard a little farther than England has. The British debtor has paid off his debts 50 per cent easier than the United States."

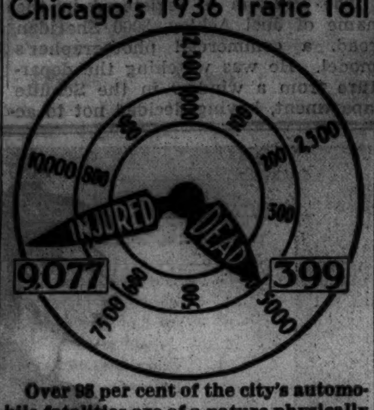
Roosevelt Takes Cruise.

Without repudiating the reports that he contemplated devaluation and inflation Mr. Roosevelt departed on Feb. 4 for a cruise on Vincent Astor's yacht from which he did not return till Feb. 14.

While the President elect was away the signs of a coming panic increased. The withdrawal of currency from banks for hoarding reached an aggregate of 15 millions a day by the middle of the month, a 300 per cent increase in a fortnight. The export of gold rose to 114 millions, which was only a fraction of the full volume of the flight from the dollar. Banks and big corporations began withdrawing their balances from the interior of the country, thus weakening the banking structure. The Michigan bank system began to totter and the governor on Feb. 14 declared a banking holiday.

THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1936 Trafic Toll



Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

Driver Held; Admits He Drank Before Mishap.

Henry Gould Jr., 24 years old, of Maple road, Joliet, driver of a car that ran down and killed two small children and their dog Saturday night in Joliet, was in custody yesterday for the inquest today.

The two children killed were George Pilarcik, 9 years old, 227 Draper avenue, Joliet, and his sister, Helen, 6 years old. The boy had been pulling his sister in a small wagon near their home when Gould's machine rounded a corner and struck the group, crushing both children and the dog to death.

Gould told police he was on his way home from a tavern, where he had drunk two beers and two gin rickeys. He said he did not see the children until too late to avoid striking them.

Crash Injuries Are Fatal.

Miss Margaret Bowman, 21 years old, 102 North Fourth street, Aurora, died yesterday of injuries incurred Saturday night when an automobile sidewiped the car in which she was riding in North Broadway, Aurora. The driver of the other car sped away after the accident. Miss Bowman's companion, Frank Appel, 23 years old, 467 Hinman street, Aurora, suffered a broken leg.

Alfred Coxeter, 57 years old, 425 South Sixth avenue, La Grange, a Chicago wool broker, died yesterday in a hospital at Belvidere from injuries incurred Saturday near Garden Prairie, when a front tire of his automobile blew out and the machine swerved against a passing truck. Coxeter's wife died Saturday from injuries suffered in the accident.

Dies of July 3 Injuries.

August Johnson, 70 years old, 1929 North Central Park avenue, died last night in the Danish-American hospital from injuries suffered July 3 when he was struck by an automobile at Central Park and North avenues. The driver of the car, Edward De Foe, 35 years old, 138 North Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, who took the injured man to the hospital, was not held by the police.

James F. Elliott, 65 years old, 1848 North Washtenaw avenue, a laborer, died yesterday in St. Luke's hospital of injuries incurred Saturday night when he was struck by the car of Tony Stubner, 19 years old, 3309 Auburn avenue, at State and 14th streets. Stubner said the street lighting was so poor he was unable to see Elliott in time to avoid the accident.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 513 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 399 were killed in Chicago. In the same period 9,077 were injured within the city limits.

WIFE WILL FACE TRIAL TODAY FOR KILLING HUSBAND

State to Demand Death of Mrs. Bolton.

Mrs. Mildred Mary Bolton, 40 years old, henna haired brunette, is scheduled to go on trial today before Judge Robert C. O'Connell in the Criminal court for the slaying a month ago of her estranged husband, Joseph, in his insurance office at 166 West Jackson street.

Mrs. Bolton is accused of shooting her husband twice in the back and once in the chest during a quarrel in his office. She has admitted purchasing the revolver in Hammond, but has insisted the gun was discharged while she grappled with him.

Seek Death Penalty.

Assistant State's Attorney Morris Meyers announced last night the state would seek the death penalty for Mrs. Bolton. He would not comment when asked if the state expected to encounter any difficulty in obtaining a conviction before a jury in view of the number of women who have been acquitted by juries on charges of murder.

"The state," he declared, "has ample evidence to warant a murder conviction."

The prosecution considers the trial of Mrs. Bolton so important that First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley is going to direct the prosecution.

Cites Acquittal of Another.

At the time of the shooting Mrs. Bolton was quoted as remarking, "They just don't convict women for killing their husbands in Cook county. Betty Martin got away with it, why shouldn't I?"

Mrs. Martin was acquitted by a Criminal court jury on May 29 on a charge of slaying her husband, Andrew. Mrs. Bolton also was quoted as saying she attended almost all the sessions of Mrs. Martin's trial.

Mrs. Bolton has denied that she will try to plead emotional insanity as a defense. It was this plea which Mrs. Martin employed on the jury which acquitted her.

HAMILTON SIGHTS VICTORY IN FALL FOR G. O. P. TICKET

Poll Shows Landon Gains Over Roosevelt.

Gov. Alf M. Landon and Col. Frank Knox, Republican nominees for President and Vice President, respectively, have, in the month since their nomination at Cleveland taken more than one and one-half million votes away from President Roosevelt and appear assured of 272 electoral votes, six more than necessary for election.

This is the opinion of John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican national committee, as set forth in a statement made public yesterday by the G. O. P. committee's national headquarters in Chicago. It is based, the statement reads, on copyrighted statistics compiled by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

Poll Shows Turn of Tide.

"On the basis of the institute's figures," read the Hamilton statement, "President Roosevelt's strength has slumped about 4 per cent since the Landon nomination. In total votes this means that Landon and Knox have taken between 1,500,000 and 2,000,000 votes from Mr. Roosevelt.

"The figures of the institute show that on the basis of electoral votes Landon actually is leading the nation. Director George Gallup of the survey gives him 272, with a number of states marked doubtful.

"These figures apparently are the first taken by the institute since Landon was nominated. The trend is significant because the Republicans have not yet started their campaign. It therefore is a spontaneous expression of confidence in the Republican candidates and their program of dealing fairly with all voters, especially the common man."

Trend Followed Nomination.

The chairman, who arrived in New York City last night, said the institute's poll is only one of several statistical indications that have become public, substantiating his belief that a Republican trend set in as soon as the Cleveland convention nominated Landon and Knox.

"Judging by the information coming into Republican national headquarters," the statement continued, "the common humanity of Gov. Landon has impressed itself upon the people of the nation in an unmistakable manner.

"People are realizing that he knows how to keep his promises, that he is of and for the common people, and that instead of adding to the burden of taxation imposed upon the common man, whether it be in the city or on the farm, Gov. Landon can be depended upon to deal with governmental deficits as the ugly things they are.

Greater Gains Are Seen.

"When the Gallup survey indicates that states like Ohio, Colorado, Minnesota, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Indiana, and Montana are definitly enough for Landon as to give the Republicans the edge there can be little doubt that when further polling of the voters is done there will be shown an even greater swing from President Roosevelt."

The poll, according to the chairman, supports his conviction that Landon and Knox undoubtedly will carry New York in spite of the Democratic political maneuvering which has been going on there. He added that all the states listed by Dr. Gallup as in the doubtful group will be safely Republican and that some of those listed as safely Democratic will be found in the Republican column on Nov. 3.

Col. Knox is leaving Chicago tomorrow night for Topeka, Kas., where he will confer with Gov. Landon on Wednesday on campaign plans.

G. O. P. Meeting Here Today.

Republican state leaders will meet today in the La Salle hotel to make plans for a united drive to return Illinois to the Republican column in the November election. To the meeting, which was called by Perry B. McCullough, state chairman, have been invited the chairmen of the 102 county committees, the state central committee members, and all the state candidates.

Besides mapping coördinated plans for the Republican campaign in the state, arrangements will be made for the participation of downstate Republicans in the official notification of Col. Knox of his nomination for Vice President. The notification will be held in the Chicago Stadium on July 30.

Illinois Republican nominees for congress will meet in Peoria on Thursday to make plans for coördinating their activities. Wayland Brooks, Republican nominee for governor, has been invited to the meeting.

BOARD FENCE ADORNED WITH LANDON SLOGAN STIRS POLITICAL ROW

New Ulm, Minn., July 12.—[Special.]—A high board fence, upon which is painted the injunction, "Vote American: Landon-Knox" has become a political storm center here.

The fence, built in front of a group of buildings under construction, also is inscribed with a recommended Republican state ticket and, which Democrats find particularly irritating, with the words "G. O. P. Project No. 1" and "This Is Not a WPA Project."

Democratic councilmen, seizing upon the fact that the fence faces upon a city street, have ordered it removed. Dr. J. H. Vogel and his brother, A. J. Vogel, caused the slogans to be painted on it.

TWO MISSOURIANS DIE IN CRASH.

Mexico, Mo., July 12.—[Special.]—Frankie Brooks, 19, and John Elgin, 24, both of Mexico, were killed last night when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a truck at the north limits of Fulton, Mo. J. W. Brooks, 18, of Mexico, third occupant of the car, was injured.

TOWN COULD PAY EXTORT DEMAND AND STILL PROFIT

Curious Boom Business in Prophetstown.

Prophetstown, Ill., July 12.—(AP)—Merchants in this little town of 1,500 reported record week-end sales today in the wake of an extortionist's threat to level the business community with dynamite or fire unless he was paid $1,000. It seemed that even if the merchants paid the $1,000 the town still would show a profit out of the affair.

Prophetstown's grocer mayor, George S. Brydia, who made a futile attempt to contact the extortionist at Rockford, Ill., last night in compliance with instructions contained in a note, attributed the sudden spurt in sales to publicity given the threatened village.

"Hardly Knows the Town."

The mayor said he "hardly recognized the town" when he returned from his rendezvous. Thousands of curious visitors thronged the streets and stores, and trafic was all tangled up, he declared, "automobiles were double parked and triple parked."

The mayor said insurance agents had "reaped a harvest" during the height of the scare. Most of the business men, he said, had purchased fire insurance policies with special clauses covering damage by explosion. Life insurance sales also jumped.

"We got a lot of nice publicity out of this thing," Brydia said, "and we are thankful to the newspapers for boosting our little town. However, we don't want to receive any more notes of that kind."

Happy Over Publicity.

The note, written on ruled tablet paper and purporting to have been written by a "Lemorra" society, was received Wednesday by the mayor. It was postmarked Wyoming, Ill., a nearby town, and bore a return address in Iowa.

The note instructed the mayor to raise $1,000 from merchants of Prophetstown—famed for its connection with the Black Hawk war and its lawn mower plant—and place the money in a shoe box tied with red cord.

Dynamite Threatened.

The box was to be delivered by the mayor in the reference room of the public library at Rockford, Ill., 75 miles away, last night. Failure to deliver, the note warned, meant destruction by fire or dynamite of the entire business district.

At first the mayor said he believed the extortion threat was genuine because of its wording, and there was talk of raising the money.

Friday, however, Brydia announced he would go to the library for the 7 p. m. tryst, and would carry the box, but no money.

The Rockford library threw things askew by closing ahead of time, at 6 o'clock, "because of the drouth."

The mayor did the next best thing—sat in an automobile outside the library, in company with Sherif A. E. Hamilton of Whiteside county and Rockford police. A crowd of curious appeared, but no extortionist.

HOFFMAN PASSES TEST OF SANITY, DARES HIS CRITIC

Trenton, N. J., July 12.—[Special.]—A new version of the old real life comedy entitled "Who's Looney Now?" was being acted today with Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey cast in a leading rôle.

His sanity questioned, Hoffman pulled a fast one on his critic by submitting to a mental test. He not only came out 100 per cent normal, but armed with a state psychiatrist's certificate to prove he "isn't nuts."

"Now you go and get one!" the governor challenged his opponent, John Borg, former Wall street broker and present publisher of Hackensack's Bergen Evening Record.

Wide reading has changed his outlook on life, as it has for most modern men, but his real religious background and inheritance break out in all his public activities. This tinges his social outlook, his governmental recommendations, his philosophy of life.

"For some time—several years, in fact——" he said in 1935, "I have been of the opinion that we will not have a real, solid, genuine recovery in this country until we have a moral recovery. And by moral recovery I mean character, integrity, upright honesty and square dealing. There is an old fashioned phrase that I remember my father and mother using as a boy. It is somewhat out of date these days, but describes what I mean. It is 'He is a man of principle.'"

Klan Record Significant.

The Landon record on the Ku Klux Klan issue in this state is significant of his character.

In 1921 the klan came over the border from Oklahoma, where Gov. Walton had to call out the militia to suppress it. It moved first in the town of Liberty in Montgomery county where men with white robes and masks took an old German out of his home and whipped him. The movement gradually became a religious and political issue and by 1924 was well organized in Kansas.

Clyde Reed and Ben S. Paulen were the Republican candidates for the nomination for governor that year, Reed on an open anti-klan platform. He was defeated by Paulen and then William Allen White, Emporia editor, came forward to run as an independent. His platform was something to the effect that "It has got to be a terrible situation when a bunch of sissies in night shirts and masks can control the affairs of Kansas. I am not going to let them do it."

Landon Backs White.

In the hot campaign that followed the fiery cross was burned in front of White meetings. Landon, who then lived in Independence and who had been for Reed, now came forward to help White. He made arrangements for a big White meeting at Liberty as a test of klan strength, and also arranged for a meeting for Charles F. Scott, another Kansas editor who came forth to blast the klan. White got 155,000 votes, but was not elected.

The klan died a natural death after this. The campaign had been sufficient to arouse a Kansas humor that "laughed it to death," according to White. It all helped in Landon's political education.

In 1933, as governor, Landon welcomed to Topeka the Kansas Knights of Columbus convention. He said to them:

"There is a great need for the organized fellowship which you delegates of the Knights of Columbus councils represent. If there ever was need for brotherhood, if there ever was need for organized effort for the general help and good of a people, it is today. Your record of past accomplishments speaks highly for your organization and for the leadership which your faith has contributed."

Quotes Theodore Roosevelt.

In his inaugural address in 1933 Gov. Landon said:

"We, as the chosen representatives of our people, will serve the state according to the standards of Theodore Roosevelt when he said:

"'The leader for the time being, whoever he may be, is but an instrument to be used until broken, then cast aside; and if he is worth his salt he will care no more when he is broken than a soldier cares when he is sent where his life is forfeit in order that victory may be won. In the long fight for righteousness, the watchword for all of us is spend and be spent'."

Soon after this, in speaking to a convocation of ministers, he said:

"The economic crash of 1929 brought us to our senses. It opened the gateway to our spiritual leaders. Once more we realize their indispensable value.

"We are now stopping to reflect and to realize the need for a fuller spiritual life. The old testament proverb, 'Pride goeth before destruction and a haughty spirit before a fall,' is as true today as in the days of Solomon. We must get back to a lot of good old Kansas fundamentals.

"Christianity again is faced with challenge. The church must lead the way back to old fashioned, rugged honesty in business and in our social life. This generation must win back a respect for government and social standards. We must feel in our hearts, as did our fathers, that a humble, contrite approach to our many great problems may help to bring their solution."

It was at the Methodist conference in 1935 that Gov. Landon most clearly expressed his growing concept of liberal government, and his unchanged faith in fundamentals.

"We speak of the foundation of our democracy as being the three R's," he said. "But the old Roman republic had the same three principles as the basis of their Democracy—plus one other—a fourth vital principle—service to the state. They made their republic last 500 years. Already there are those who question our ability to make democracy sound—when we have only been established 159 years.

Old Order Passing.

"I think we can all agree that the old order is passing. There is a world wide revolt against traditional habits and ways of doing things that ended in our era of speculation, debauchery, against governments and their functions, against the last decade of financial and business leadership. People everywhere are seeking new ideals and getting a better and clearer conception of what a square deal for everybody really means.

"No people can prosper, no nation can live, no civilization can exist where the craze for easy money in market speculation takes the place of honest toil and industry. When men are judged by how much money they have, how much wealth they have acquired irrespective of how that money and that wealth was obtained, a nation is doomed."

Topeka Only 15 Hour Drive from Chicago by Automobile

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Topeka, Kas., July 12.—[Special.]—Chicago motorists, you are only fifteen hours from this capital of a typical prairie state where Gov. Alf M. Landon will be formally notified on July 23 of his nomination as the Republican candidate for President.

The Tribune roadster arrived here last night, establishing this running time to cover the 586 miles at a conservative pace that seldom exceeded fifty miles an hour.

The thousands who will drive here for the event, anticipating its historical significance, will find the highways modern and able to handle the expected increase in trafic for the occasion. Approaching Topeka and within the city there will be congestion such as encountered at any big affair, but it will be handled with a minimum of inconvenience by a force of 1,000 National Guardsmen, thirty state patrolmen, and 100 city police.

Arrange Parking Route.

At a meeting this morning at the Topeka Chamber of Commerce arrangements were made to clear and to police a belt route so that automobile caravans from Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Michigan can reach ample parking space without entering the business district. The Chicago Motor club and others are organizing motorcades.

The parking will be in a fair grounds seven-tenths of a mile on a shaded boulevard from the capitol grounds, where speeches are to be made that may set the future course of this nation.

There will be a crowd that may exceed 100,000 listening to those speeches, so it will be of advantage on the dispersal to have an automobile a distance of six Chicago blocks from the center of the throng.

At this morning's conference the Topeka folks showed a disposition to spare themselves no trouble in accommodating the visitors who will outnumber the 73,000 residents. They sought and welcomed suggestions from THE TRIBUNE automobile department and from the Chicago Motor club.

"We'll close as much of the business district to vehicles as you think necessary to protect pedestrians," said Robert M. Owthwaite.

"Lay out a one way street system and we'll police it," added Holmes Meade, chairman of arrangements.

"Topeka residents will keep their cars off the streets for this one big day," said Arthur J. Carruth Jr., managing editor of the Topeka State Journal.

Details of the parking and trafic plan are to be worked out at a meeting tomorrow with National Guard and police officers to be attended by Arnold Faulkner, trafic engineer for the Chicago Motor club.

Lodging Main Problem.

"We'll be able to feed the visitors at lunch counters being erected in vacant lots by churchwomen's organizations," said Mark Drehme, "but lodging is a more difficult problem. The motor caravans and the automobile visitors should plan to spend the nights of July 22 and 23 away from Topeka.

"The historical pageant will start at 4 p. m., giving plenty of time for those who want to drive into Topeka that day. The notification ceremonies will start at 8 p. m. and will end by 10 o'clock. Kansas City is only seventy-five miles from here and St. Joseph, Mo., is only eighty miles. The highways will be well policed for the protection of drivers departing that night."

PEEK SCHEDULED TO MEET TODAY WITH LANDON

Topeka, Kas., July 12.—(AP)—George N. Peek, one time New Dealer who turned critic, is scheduled to confer tomorrow with Gov. Alf M. Landon, Republican presidential nominee.

The Kansas governor's office today said Peek had asked for the appointment. The purpose of his visit, Landon's aid said, was not specified.

Peek, a student of farm problems, supported Franklin D. Roosevelt in the 1932 campaign, after which he was made AAA administrator. Differences with Secretary Wallace and Undersecretary Rexford G. Tugwell led to Peek's resignation from the AAA long before its invalidation by the Supreme court.

The high spot in the week ahead for Landon will be the scheduled visit Wednesday of Frank Knox, his running mate. Tomorrow the governor plans to see Alfred H. Kirchhofer of Buffalo, N. Y., publicity director of the Republican national committee, and Hill Blackett, the committee's new director of public relations.

Utility Dresses
Fifth Floor, South, State (temporary location)
Also in Evanston and Oak Park

1. Silk shirting—the kind you usually find only in more expensive dresses. Comfortable action back. A pin dot tie gives color contrast. In white and pastels. 14 to 20. $7.95

2. The popular black and white in a fabric of linen-like appearance. White stitching adds an attractive note. The tailored pockets are bound in white and there's a white braided cotton belt. 14 to 20. $7.95

3. Another dress of this luxurious silk shirting. Trim and tailored, with convertible neck. It has contrasting color buttons and buckle for interesting touches. In white and pastels. 18 to 42. $7.95

ROOSEVELT ON QUIET VACATION AT HYDE PARK

Goes for Swim in Pool; Visits Neighbors.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., July 12.—[Special.]—In the quiet seclusion of his family estate President Roosevelt today began in earnest a three week vacation from official cares.

Mr. Roosevelt slept late this morning to rest himself from the fatigue of a packed day yesterday in which he participated in the dedication of the 63 million dollar Triborough bridge in New York City, met with the Roosevelt Home club of his Democratic neighbors, attended the wedding of Ruth Bryan Owen to Capt. Boerge Rhode of Denmark, and gave a wedding supper to the bridal party.

He breakfasted hurriedly with Mrs. Roosevelt and his mother, Sara Delano Roosevelt, and attended services in Saint James' Episcopal church, Inspects Parched Crops.

After services he drove about his mother's estate to inspect crops which had been slightly parched by the heat wave here. A downpour last night had returned a bright green to corn and wheat.

In the early afternoon he left the house for the cool of shaded groves. When the sun pierced the groves he went to his own property at neighboring Valkill to seek relief from the heat, like many other citizens, in a swim. He splashed about in the pool which he had built here a year ago.

After the plunge he called on neighbors and then returned to his mother's home to receive calls from old friends here. He reported to the temporary White House office by phone in the late afternoon that he dismissed all official cares for the day and was enjoying complete relaxation.

Goes to Maine Tonight.

Mr. Roosevelt will remain at his family home until about 9 o'clock tomorrow evening, when he will board his special train for the Maine coast, where for two weeks he will go to sea in the 56 foot schooner yacht Sewanna.

While the President slept last night a sneak thief in the Nelson house at Poughkeepsie, where the temporary executive offices are maintained, lightened the purses and heavied the hearts of three membrs of the President's party. The thief entered the rooms of Henry Kannee, assistant to White House Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre, a reporter, and a photographer, to gather $680 of expense money for accompanying the President's cruise.

HOWARD HUGHES FACING HEARING IN AUTO DEATH

Los Angeles, Cal., July 12.—(AP)—Wealthy Howard Hughes, record-smashing airman and film producer, was released from jail today on his own recognizance after his arrest in connection with the death of Gabe Meyer, 60, killed, police said, by a car which sped through a safety zone.

Investigating officers said an unidentified young woman leaped from the car after the accident and disappeared into the crowd.

Hughes spent part of last night in Central jail, where he was booked on suspicion of negligent homicide in connection with the trafic death of Meyer, a salesman, only a few blocks from the home of Hughes.

He was released on a writ of habeas corpus obtained by his attorney, Neil McCarthy.

After the accident, Hughes was pronounced sober by Dr. R. A. Chance as the result of a sobriety test at Hollywood Receiving hospital. The doctor's report noted Hughes had been drinking.

$25,000 CANTON FIRE LOSS.

Canton, Ill., July 12.—(AP)—Fire which attacked the Capitol theater here early today caused damage estimated by fire officials at between $20,000 and $25,000. Firemen said they believed the blaze was caused by spontaneous combustion.

MAN AFIRE TELLS TWO STORIES OF WHAT HAPPENED

Willard Hanson, 25 years old, 610 Wrightwood avenue, was in the St. Francis hospital in Evanston last night, critically burned on the chest and back under circumstances that mystified the Rogers Park police.

Hanson was brought to the hospital by a motorist, William Scott, of 1600 Jonquil terrace, who said he found the man with his shirt ablaze screaming at the corner of Parkhurst avenue and Howard street.

Hanson first told the police he was set on fire by friends who got angry with him and threw lighted matches at him. Then he changed his story, and declared he was burned when he walked into a blazing building.

U. S. TRIES 8 IN PORTO RICO ON SEDITION CHARGE

Sends Special Lawyer; Strengthens Guard.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, July 12.—(AP)—Prosecutors enlisted the aid of a former American prohibition director and took extreme precautions against disorder tonight for Tuesday's trial of eight ardent Nationalists accused of attempting to overthrow the government of the United States by force.

Col. Amos W. Woodcock, former United States director of dry law enforcement, arrived by plane and conferred at length with District Attorney Cecil Snyder today. He has been assigned to aid government counsel.

Despite the precautions against hostile demonstrations, the majority of residents appeared anxious for an orderly trial. The indictment, returned by a grand jury made up largely of Porto Ricans, charges crimes which are said to be without exact parallel in the past century of United States history.

Planned Rebel Army.

Specifically the indictment charges the defendants with conspiring to:

Oppose by force the authority of the United States;

Incite rebellion against the United States;

Recruit soldiers in Porto Rico to serve in armed hostilities against the United States.

Maximum punishment under the first count is six years' imprisonment, while under each of the other two counts two years is the most severe punishment possible.

The defendants are:

Pedro Albizu Campos, president of the Nationalist party. A graduate of Harvard law school, Albizu served through the world war as a lieutenant of infantry. He has been president of the party since 1930. In the 1932 election his party polled 5,000 votes.

Juan Antonio Corretjer, secretary general of the Nationalist party. Corretjer is now serving a sentence of one year in the San Juan jail for contempt of court for refusing to produce documents and records of the party in compliance with an order of Judge Cooper.

Oldest Defendant 45.

Luis F. Velazquez, treasurer of the party. A grandfather at 45, Velazquez is the oldest of the defendants.

Julio H. Velazquez, high school student, and son of Luis F. Velazquez.

A ninth Nationalist, Rafael Ortiz Pacheco, law graduate, and active in command of the Cadetes de la Republica, the Nationalist "army," also was indicted, but was out of the country at the time the indictment was found and has not since returned.

In general, the Nationalist defense will be based on the contention of its president, Albizu Campos, that no laws or acts of congress are applicable to Porto Rico because the treaty of Paris, by which Spain ceded the island to the United States, is void so far as Porto Rico is concerned.

WOMAN OUSTED FROM SUNNYSIDE HOME DIES AT 70

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—A telegram, signed Sunnyside Home Owners, was sent to Supreme Court Justice Arthur V. Norton today, calling to his attention the death of Mrs. Mary Homer, 70 years old, who took an active part in the strike of Sunnyside home owners for lower interest rates and whose home the justice ordered foreclosed.

Bernard Haldame, secretary of the Croix de Feu, veterans' organization telegram read:

"We remind you of your statement, 'I would not have it on my conscience to deny a dying woman her day in court.' Mary Homer of Sunnyside gardens, whom you foreclosed without a hearing on Dec. 12, 1935, will be buried in Calvary cemetery, Queens, at 10 a. m."

The day before he ordered the Homer foreclosure, Justice Norton said in court that if Mrs. Homer were unable to appear because of illness, testimony would be taken at her bedside. Next day, when her counsel presented a physician's certificate that she was too ill to be examined, Justice Norton ordered the trial to proceed.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt are interested in the development as security holders in the promoting corporation.

IT'S MISS ROSALIE JONES

The former wife of Ex-Senator C. C. Dill of Washington as she appeared (second from right) at Seattle "divorce luncheon" she gave after recent bitterly contested suit. She asked to be known by her maiden name. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Tells Plans

Spokane, Wash., July 12.—(AP)—The wealthy Rosalie Jones Dill set out today on the political trail which took her divorced husband, former Senator C. C. Dill, to congress for sixteen years.

Announcing her candidacy for the Fifth district congressional seat, which Dill held from 1914 to 1918 before his election to the senate, Mrs. Dill remarked:

"Other states are well advertised by congresswomen, so why not give Washington a break?"

She said she plans to open her campaign at once.

The former New York suffragist "general" will seek the congressional seat vacated by Representative Sam B. Hill, who was appointed to the board of tax appeals by President Roosevelt.

"I haven't had time to frame my platform yet," she said.

"I already have three speaking engagements. Six cars have been offered to me for the campaign, but I think I will buy my own."

Mrs. Dill said she would file for the office as "Miss Rosalie Jones," the name she said she will ask the New York courts to restore.

"Miss Jones" holds five college degrees and is qualified to practice law.

REP. ZIONCHECK DRAFTS OPENER OF CAMPAIGN

Seattle, Wash., July 12.—(AP)—Representative Marion A. [Zipper] Zioncheck, Washington's escapading congressman, prepared quietly tonight to deliver a speech tomorrow night on "Who's Crazy?" as the opening shot of his reëlection campaign.

Zioncheck recently took sudden leave—over the fence—of an institution near Washington, D. C., to end a series of exploits, which included arrests for speeding and allegations by his landlady that he ejected her from the apartment she had rented him and his bride.

300 ENGINEERS TO STUDY POWER PRODUCTION, SALE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—Three hundred of the world's leading engineers will visit Chicago in September to study problems related to the production and distribution of electric power. They will be members of the Third World Power conference, which will draw some 3,000 engineers, economists, and scientists from this country and abroad to Washington.

The world power conference is an international organization with a membership of forty-eight nations. Its third session will be held in the United States this year under the joint sponsorship of the government and the private electric industry for a discussion of electric power problems. The first conference was held in London in 1924; the second in Berlin in 1930.

A selected group of the engineers will visit Chicago as part of a "technical study tour" throughout the United States.

LAST SIX YEARS COST U. S. MORE THAN FIRST 127

Now Spending $2 for Each Dollar Taken In.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—Almost 38 billion dollars have been spent by the federal government in the last six fiscal years, approximately 12 billion dollars more than the expenditures of the United States in the first 127 years of its history.

This comparison was made by John C. Gebhart, director of the National Economy league, in a study of national expenditures made public today.

In his analysis of the official figures Gebhart gave the Hoover administration responsibility for a sizable share of the national deficit, but pointed out that the bulk of the huge national debt came under the New Deal administration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Debunks Asset Claims.

The economist also debunked the assertions of the treasury that it has recoverable assets of approximately four billion dollars. The probability is that not much more than two billion dollars of these assets are recoverable, Gebhart declared. This constitutes about 16 per cent of the 13 billions 120 millions spent for emergency purposes from 1932 to 1936.

Of all the emergency outlays to date, 70 per cent avowedly are unrecoverable, Gebhart stated. These include all relief expenditures, public works expenditures exclusive of loans, reimbursement by the treasury of the federal land banks for the reduction in interest on mortgages, and certain administrative expenses. The total that admittedly cannot be recovered is 9 billions 226 millions.

400 Millions AAA Loss.

Another 400 millions probably are nonrecoverable, Gebhart estimated. This category includes AAA expenditures for administration and the purchase of cattle and other commodities; outlays of the rural resettlement administration, which have been mostly for administrative expenditures, rural relief, and the purchase of submarginal land, and outlays of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The largest item in the "probably recoverable" class is 1 billion 734 millions of RFC loans.

"It is obvious, however, that even in this category are many loans and investments of very doubtful value, such as loans by the RFC to closed banks and railroads in receivership," the economist stated.

"From now on a much smaller proportion of emergency expenditures will be, even in theory, recoverable. The PWA now is a revolving fund. As securities are sold, the money is reloaned. Since it is the policy to sell the most marketable securities for ready cash, in time the PWA will be left with a residue of slow and doubtful assets."

11 Billions Dead Debt Added.

As a result of this nonrecoverable aspect of approximately three-quarters of government emergency expenditures, approximately 11 billions of dead weight debt must be paid by succeeding generations of taxpayers, Gebhart concluded.

As to the treasury's "general fund," frequently referred to as an offset to the increase in debt during the deficit years, Gebhart remarked:

"We might take some comfort from our swollen general fund if there were any immediate prospect of a balanced budget. The general fund balance hardly can be considered an asset when it is planned to spend 8 billions 800 millions in the current fiscal year, at least 3 billions in excess of expected receipts."

Throughout the last six years we have been spending $2 for every dollar collected in revenue, the economist declared.

MUSIC FESTIVAL DEADLINE TODAY FOR COOK COUNTY

The office of the Chicagoland Music festival, room 1418, in Tribune tower, will stay open today until 6 p. m., which is the deadline for the entry of Cook county vocalists, violinists, cornetists, harmonica players and yodlers in these preliminary contests of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S annual festival. Entrants are advised to appear in person as a mailed entry might not reach the office in time.

The first north and west side rehearsals for the festival dance pageant will be held this morning. The north shore girls will meet at 10 o'clock in the 202d Coast Artillery armory, 5875 Broadway, and the west side dancers at the Madison Athletic club, 4715 West Madison street. The first south side practice will be held tomorrow, at 10 a. m., in the Trianon ballroom, 62d street and Cottage Grove avenue.

David Anderson, 26 years old, of 6436 Eggleston avenue, a truck driver who is 6 feet 4 inches tall, left his truck underneath Tribune Tower and came in his work clothes to the festival office to fill in his entry blank as a basso.

WORLD CONGRESS TO STUDY NAZIS' VACATION PLANS

2,000 to Attend Parley at Hamburg.

HAMBURG, Germany, July 12.—(AP)—Nazi Germany, intent on fostering vacations for everybody, planned pageants and exhibitions tonight to show the second world congress for "vacations and recreation" how it hopes to do it.

The congress will be held between July 23 and July 30. Forty nations will send approximately 2,000 delegates. The pastimes of all nations, from games of the centuries old Japanese "samurai" to Scottish sword dances with bagpipes, will be portrayed.

To Tell of U. S. Vacations.

Gustavus T. Kirby, president of the International Council of America, is scheduled to inform the world what progress is being made publicly and privately in the United States to promote vacations and organized recreation for all.

The congress will be a curtain raiser for the Olympic games and will be attended by many Olympic guests and officials.

Several pageants to demonstrate what the Nazis have done to make holidays possible and cheap will mark the congress, along with addresses on how to enjoy life.

Zeppelin to Visit City.

The Nazis have given the congress their own motto, "Freut Euch des Lebens" [rejoice in life], which was coined by Dr. Robert Ley, leader of the Labor Front, as a slogan for the last workers' May day celebration.

The largest pageant, "people play for the people" or "happiness and peace," involving costumes and customs of many lands, will be given on Sunday, July 26.

On July 30 an air festival, in which the Zeppelin Hindenburg will fly over the city, will wind up the convention in time for delegates to reach Berlin for the opening of the Olympic games.

THROUGH THE EYES OF OUR FRIENDS

A Five-Year-Old Boy
by CALEB

"I LIKE this escavator. Look! I stand still on it and the whole store downstairs comes up to meet me. Let's do it some more. Can I slide down the banister? . . . . Why not? . . . Aw!

"Look at the baby cabs! Who has that many babies? Why are they all black? If I was a baby I'd want one yellow.

"Doll clothes! Dolls! Look, mother, you have me in the wrong place! I want to go where the boys' things are. Where are the trains and the boats and whistles and bikes?

"Hey, look! I see a boat. Buy me a canoe, will you, mom? I want a canoe. Here's a big one! . . . Not a canoe? Well, it looks like a canoe. Please buy me a boat . . . I know we haven't got any water, but they haven't got water here either, but they've got boats. Why can't I have a boat without water? I could sit in it. I could pretend.

"Look, mother. Can I get on that horse? . . . I'm not too big to just sit on it, am I? Look at the roller skates. I could go a thousand miles an hour on these, I betcha. I could beat Terry Jones on these, I could alright . . . What? . . . . I'm not talking loud. You talk lots louder than that to daddy, mom.

"Ummmm. Is that a swell dog! He's not real, is he? Hey, mom, he's not real. How'd he get down if he was real? Would he jump? . . . I know he's not real, but if he was real, would he jump? It's a long ways down . . . . Well, I'm not worrying about it, but I want to know if he would jump if he was real . . . Shucks. You never tell me anything.

"Look at the games! Is that a good game, mom? Don't you think we need a game? I'd like a new game . . . For littler children? . . . Then how's this one? . . . How's this one? . . . For bigger children? . . . Well, aren't any of 'em for my age? I bet you don't want to buy me a game . . . Why don't you want to buy me a game, mom? How's this one? . . . Good! Yes, I like this one. Oh thanks! . . . Will we carry it? . . . I can carry it. Then if I get tired you can carry it . . . Aw please!

"When I get my hair cut can I come here, mother? And see Pop-eye go past the barber chair, can I, mom? . . . Aw, I don't want to go home. Let's stay till dark. When can we come again? . . . Say, if I had an escavator stairs at home like this. I know what I'd do, I'd slide on the banisters I bet. What're they good for it you can't? What are they good for, mom?"

JAPAN EXECUTES 15 LEADERS OF MILITARY REVOLT

Two Escape Penalty for Feb. 26 Uprising.

TOKIO, July 12.—(AP)—The war office announced tonight that fifteen leaders of the bloody military rebellion of Feb. 26 had been executed.

No explanation was forthcoming as to why two others condemned to death were not shot. They are Yoshiaki Muranaka, former communist, and Asaichi Isobe, former quartermaster captain.

Expiating the unforgivable crime of rebellion and disobedience to the orders of the emperor, whom Japan reveres as more than mortal, the fifteen former officers and cadets were executed early this morning somewhere in the Tokio area.

Details Withheld.

It was assumed Isobe and Muranaka still live. Both were among the earliest plotters of the uprising, and although they did not participate directly in the resultant assassinations they led the seizure of the war minister's residence and played a leading rôle in all negotiations between the rebels and army leaders.

The laconic communique which informed the nation of the passing of fifteen leading actors in the most sensational coup in Japan's modern history said merely: "The sentence of death pronounced July 5 by special court martial upon the following was executed July 12: Kiyosada Koda, Teruzo and [both former captains] Yasuhide Jurihara, Tsuguo Takeshima, Katsuo Tsushima, Motoaki Hakahashi, Seichu Niwa, Naoshi Sakai, Masaru Tanaka [former first lieutenants], Kamji Nakashima, Yu Yasuda, Taro Nakashi, Hachiro Hayashi [second lieutenants], Zensuke Shibukawa, and Genji Minakami [a cadet and a former army officer]."

Died as Rebels.

The crimes for which the fifteen died constituted what all Japan merely called the "incident of Feb. 26." They included the assassination of three of the empire's most distinguished leaders, the deaths of a half dozen lesser lights and the creation of a state of siege in the heart of Tokio which paralyzed the capital for four days.

It was, however, as rebels against the lawful authority of the sovereign that they died.

Despite the communique's lack of detail, most well informed observers belived the executions were carried out in the courtyard of Shibuya military prison, where the condemned had been held since their surrender on Feb. 29.

It also was agreed they died by shooting, but whether singly, before the rifles of small squads, or together, before one fusillade, or under the withering scythe of machine gun fire, was not known.

Sympathy and Relief.

The spirit with which the Japanese people received the doom of the young men was one of mingled sympathy and relief. Undoubtedly the great majority of the masses and most of the nation's leaders believed their motives unselfish and that they sought the empire's advancement in accordance with their intelligence.

However, widespread relief at their fate was reflected in the editorials of all newspapers and in the rising trend of the stock market.

Everywhere the executions were considered tangible evidence of the army's determination to stamp out the cult of direct action and end a period in history in which nearly every eminent Japanese, particularly those with liberal leanings, lived always in the shadow of possible assassination.

SPAIN ORDERS END OF STRIKE; PREPARES TO SUPPRESS RIOTS

MADRID, July 12.—(AP)—The government took precautions tonight to maintain order tomorrow, the date of expiration of a government ultimatum to striking Madrid construction workers to return to their jobs. Observers believed the day would bring a showdown on whether syndicalists or socialists control the labor elements in the capital. Syndicalists have refused to comply with the orders of the prepondernatly Socialist government.

Jose del Castillo, an assault guard captain, was slain by a group of men who police said were Fascists. Officers said Del Castillo was believed to be the man who killed a cousin of Jose Antonio Primo de Rivera, Spanish Fascist leader now in jail, during demonstrations May 2.

Three alleged Fascists, arrested in Valencia, were convicted of participating in the holdup of a radio station last night. Fascist propaganda was broadcast while eight men controlled the station. Fifteen other Fascists were seized in Valencia in connection with Rightist-Leftist clashes, which followed the broadcast.

WOMAN, CHILD KILLED, 4 HURT IN PALESTINE

JERUSALEM, July 12.—(AP)—A woman and a child were killed today and four other persons were wounded as brigands attacked military and police patrols in northern Palestine, a government communique said. The child, the announcement stated, was killed by a stray bullet while asleep in a hut at Acre.

A prominent Jewish merchant, Isaac Cohen, was shot in both legs in the first daylight attack to occur in the New City quarter of Jerusalem. A British soldier was wounded when Arabs fired on a military patrol at Nablus. An Arab about to throw a bomb in Jaffa lost both his hands when it exploded prematurely. Another bomb was found in his possession. An official communique said police searching an Arab encampment near Ekron were fired on. They wounded and arrested an Arab.

A military patrol, heavily fired on near Lydda, searched the house from which the shooting had been done and arrested four Arabs. Adam Lipkin, 31, a native Palestinian Jew, was accidentally killed by the revolver of a British soldier.

Search for Yachtsman Blown from His Boat

Los Angeles, Cal., July 12.—[Special.]—Blown from the deck of his power boat in the Catalina channel, Phillip L. Coke, Standard Oil branch manager at Monrovia, Cal., was the object of search by coast guardsmen today. The tragedy was reported by a fellow voyager, H. V. Austin, who said he threw life presesvers to the drowning man and spent the night circling the spot where the body had gone down.

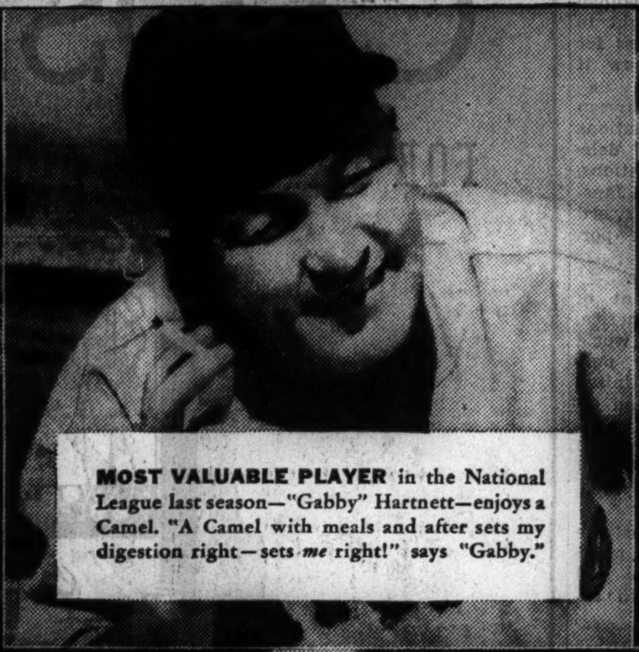
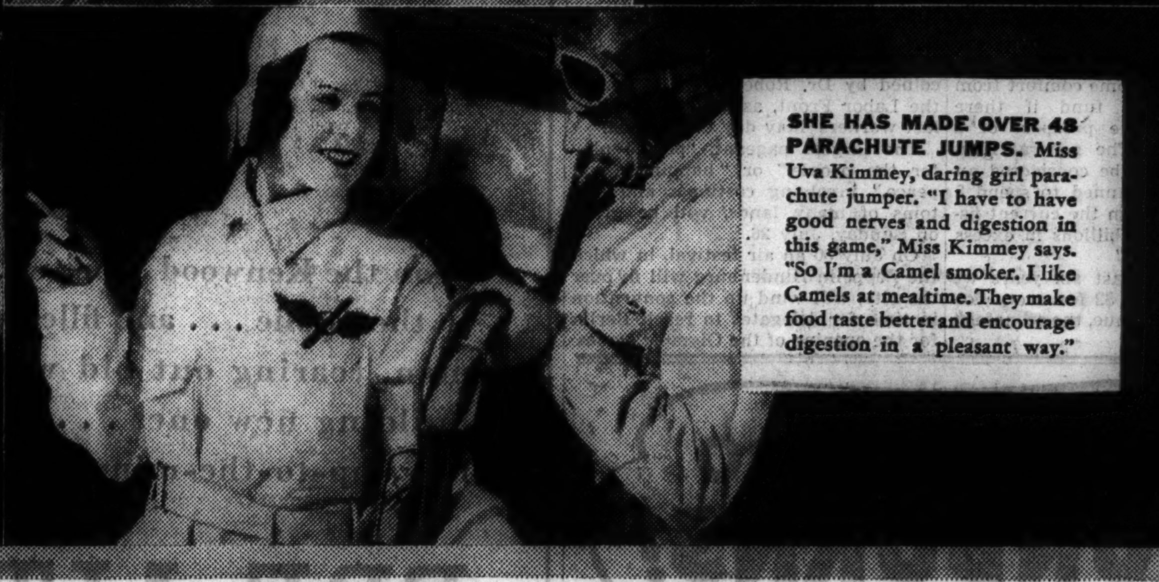
The appetizing array of cold cuts shown below is a feature of the July menu in the Louis XVI Dining Salon of Washington's Hotel Shoreham—a rare dish to delight the host of brilliant people who frequent the Shoreham. And here Camels and good food go together. As Robert, watchful maître d'hôtel, observes: "Washington's international society demands the finest in foods and also the finest in cigarettes. Camels are the outstanding favorite at the Shoreham."



MOST VALUABLE PLAYER in the National League last season—"Gabby" Hartnett—enjoys a Camel. "A Camel with meals and after sets my digestion right—sets me right!" says "Gabby."

ON THE GO all the time. Bill Ferguson, salesman (right), says: "I smoke Camels during meals and after as an aid to digestion. Camels give me a sense of well-being."



SHE HAS MADE OVER 48 PARACHUTE JUMPS. Miss Uva Kimmey, daring girl parachute jumper. "I have to have good nerves and digestion in this game," Miss Kimmey says. "So I'm a Camel smoker. I like Camels at mealtime. They make food taste better and encourage digestion in a pleasant way."

MACHINE-SHOP FOREMAN. John A. Merritt (on right) works amid the thump of heavy machinery. "I enjoy Camels any hour," he says, "but they taste best of all at mealtime. When I've finished my meal, I shove back my chair, take out another Camel, and enjoy myself."

"For Digestion's Sake . . . Smoke Camels!"

Camels make meals more pleasant—digestion is stimulated—alkalinity increased

In our busy lives, mealtime often finds us in a state of rush and tension. The excitement and nervousness slow down the flow of digestive fluids.

Remember, then, to pause for a Camel. When you smoke Camels at mealtimes, the flow of digestive fluids is helped back to normal. Alkalinity is increased. You get more zest out of your food, and experience the well-being that follows a good meal well digested.

There is no milder cigarette than Camel. Camels are gentle on your throat and they never get on your nerves. Enjoy them often for their cheery "lift" . . . for their unequaled taste . . . for digestion's sake. Camels set you right!

HITLER VISIONS 5 POWER TIEUP IN AUSTRIAN PACT

Would Include Poland in Pre-War Alliance.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 12.—An alliance more powerful than the Austro-German-Italian triple alliance before the world war practically has been concluded among Germany, Austria, Poland, Italy, and Hungary.

"We now form a solid bloc of virile nations that will not tolerate discrimination of any kind," Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, German propaganda minister, told a a friend today.

Thus he revealed that the powers dissatisfied by the division of spoils after the world war are drawing together to insist on what they consider their rights.

The prospect of the larger alliance comes on the heels of the new Austro-German pact of friendship announced yesterday. Germany promised to respect the full sovereignty of Austria and Austria promised to adopt a more friendly policy toward Germany.

[A London dispatch to the New York Times said the Austro-German pact contains two secret annexes. One provides that Austria must increase its army to 300,000 men and the other seeks to postpone any early action on the restoration of the Hapsburg monarchy.]

Hail Hitler's Success.

The Nazis, in private conversation, make fun of democratic countries "which are unable to grasp how Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler is winning one diplomatic success after another without making use of their old fashioned methods.

"Even if the world disapproved of our agreement with Austria or anything else it would not dare do anything about it," they declare.

"Everything comes to the fuehrer in due time. The day will come when he will find a practical solution of the problem of Danzig—that of the Polish corridor. All that Germans must do is trust in his guidance and obey his instructions," Nazis say.

"We are confident Italy will maintain her refusal to go to the Brussels conference to revive the Locarno pact because the whole question of remilitarization of the Rhineland is antiquated. There is no use talking about it."

Rivals of Old Entente.

A prominent Nazi summarized the general situation for THE TRIBUNE as follows:

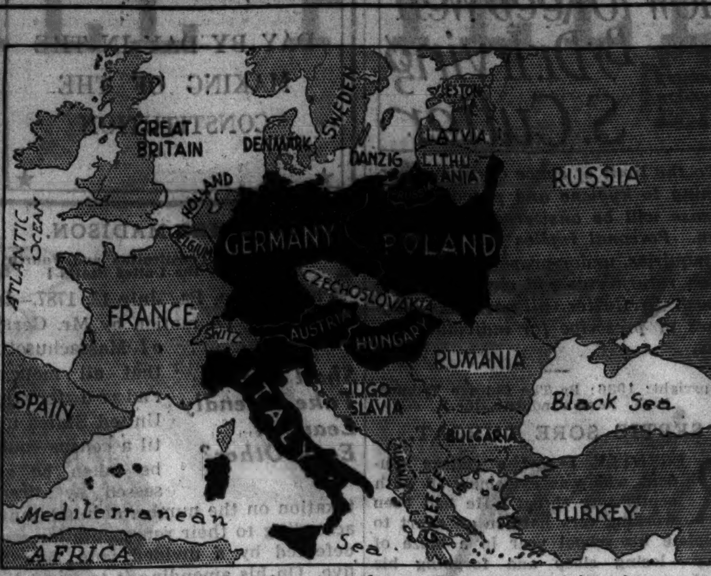
It is understood Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria will meet in the near future, probably at Berchtesgaden, Hitler's summer home.

With the league of nations gradually turning into a combine of powers which formerly belonged to the triple entente [England, France, and Russia] Eorope seems in a sitoation as desperate as, and similar, to, that of 1914.

[Paris observers predicted that at Brussels France would attempt to bring Britain and Belgium into a new bloc with France, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, Jugo-Slavia, Greece, and Turkey.]

Diplomats of Germany and Italy say a catastrophe can be avoided by forming a four power pact among Italy, Germany, England, and France, which Premier Mussolini has been advocating for years. The Germans rather approve the idea because their main grievances are along the eastern border, and if they are given a free hand in the east they are willing to find a substitnte for the Locarno treaty guaranteeing boundary lines along Germany's western border.

NAZIS WORK FOR NEW ALLIANCE



The black portion of the map shows Germany's vision for a new alliance in Europe. This lineup would revive the pre-war Austro-German-Italian triple alliance, with the addition of Poland. The new Austro-German friendship pact is seen as the basis for the new grouping.

France Loses Grip.

By coming to terms about Austria, Premier Mussolini and Hitler secured control of southeastern Europe. How they will divide the spheres of influence remains to be seen. Germans are confident France has completely lost her hold over the southeastern states of Europe, except Rumania and Czechoslovakia.

Rumania, though, is on the eve of a big cabinet crisis with nationalist groups wanting to break away from France because of her alliance with Russia and urging King Carol of Rumania to move closer to Germany. Economic pressure has been used adroitly by Germany to strengthen her foothold in Rumania. The latter wants to sell her agricultural produce to the Germans.

The nervousness in Prague, Czechoslovakia, was tremendous after Czech statesmen realized Poland, Germany, Austria, and Hungary, all of which claim part of Czechoslovakia as their own, had formed a "united front."

The Austrian chancellor, signing simply "Schuschnigg," sent a message of congratulations to "the fuehrer and chancellor of the German reich," sealing the Austro-German agreement.

Schuschnigg wired that the occasion gave him the opportunity to express his conviction that the effect of the agreement "would be to the advantage of the whole German people."

Hitler, in replying, expressed the wish "that this agreement will reestablish the old traditional relations springing from racial unity and the centuries long common history."

France Sees Annexation.

PARIS, July 12.—(AP)—French officials tonight saw in the Austro-German agreement an initial step toward German annexation of the little Austrian republic without resorting to war. They said they believed Reichsfueher Adolf Hitler's actual entry into Vienna was only a question of time.

Authoritative French sources said they thought Hitler had signed the accord merely to have his hands free for action against the Free City of Danzig and Czechoslovakia. When he was "finished" with them, these observers suggested, he would return to Austria.

Some sources said Italian diplomats admitted Premier Mussolini had permitted the agreement in order to have his hands free to pacify Ethiopia and to force maximum concessions from Great Britain and France as the price of his friendship.

The little entente, officials and diplomats both declared, is divided regarding German domination of Austria. Jugo-Slavia, they believed, might welcome a régime in Austria which would definitly end all chances of a Hapsburg restoration. Rumania's chief concern at the present time, they said, was to keep Hungary from pushing her claims for return of pre-war territory. Chancellor Hitler, these sources declared, already had approached Czechoslovakia with promises of nonaggression and friendship treaties preparatory to Austria joining the reich.

Predict Four-Power Lineup.

ROME, July 12.—(AP)—Informed political sources tonight predicted four-power collaboration in all major problems of Europe—between Germany, Austria, Italy and Hungary—would be the first result of the Austro-German accord.

Some of them also said Premier Benito Mussolini was studying a revival of the pact between these nations, with the addition of Russia and Poland.

While some other sources were doubtful that Mussolini would want to form an actual alliance with Germany at this time, they conceded the possibility Il Duce and Adolf Hitler might sign a simple treaty of nonaggression.

The possibility of another meeting between the two dictators was rumored in the capital. It might take place, some said, at Venice soon.

Blow to Hapsburgs.

VIENNA, July 12.—(AP)—A torrent of enthusiastic press comment and rejoicing in the families of thousands of Austrian political refugees tonight greeted the reëstablishment of friendly relations with Germany.

Even some of the troublesome Austrian Nazis seemed satisfied. However, legitimists and Heimwehrmen [home guard members] were embittered.

The legitimists pointed out the new agreement presented no technical obstacle to making the Archduke Otto emperor, for Germany pledged itself not to interfere with Austrian internal affairs.

Actually, however, with thousands of Germans again crossing the border and the aggressive German influence given a freer hand, difficulties of the legitimists were greatly increased, the leaders conceded.

Clash of Religions.

"It is ridiculous to hope this new friendship can help restoration," said Baron Hans von Zesser, legal adviser to the 23 year old Hapsburg heir apparent. "It is absurd to think Austria's Catholic culture and German paganism can flourish on the same soil."

Immediate following announcement of the agreement, President Wilhelm Miklas appointed Edmund Glaise-Horstenau, director of war archives and a staunch friend of Germany, to be minister without portfolio in the cabinet. Political sources called him "Germany's representative."

ENEMIES TAKE UP PEACE WATCH AT VERDUN GRAVES

BAR LE DUC, France, July 12.—(AP)—War veterans of Verdun, both enemies and allies of twenty years ago, joined in a pilgrimage of peace to stand watch tonight over 12,000 graves at the historic fortress of Douaumont.

The pilgrims gathered first at Bar le Duc to g in army trucks to the cemetery, where they took up the watch from 9 p. m. to midnight. Ceremoniously they pledged themselves to work for peace. The French government appropriated 3,000,000 francs [about $130,000] for the pilgrimage. The pilgrims were assembled by the French Federal Union of Former Combatants, which represents a million veterans of liberal political tendencies.

Four hundred German veterans came for the march on the twentieth anniversary of the battle of Verdun. Thirty American veterans from Paris represented the United States. English and Italian veterans also came.

SHOCKING DISCLOSURES.

According to a preliminary report of the senate commerce committee on air safety investigating the airplane crash at Atlanta, Mo., on May 6, 1935, that caused the death of Senator Cutting of New Mexico and four others, department of commerce aids to navigation "failed" the pilot of the plane. The committee further found that the bureau of air commerce, responsible for the failure, was in need of a thorough overhauling and recommended that Mr. Roper proceed at once with the task. Not only was the organization found to be faulty, but the personnel, with the exception of Colonel Cone, lacked experience. "A director of air commerce must be chosen," according to the report, "not with reference to his political affiliations but strictly because of his professional ability . . ." The present incumbents were found rich in the former but wanting in the latter qualification.

The American voter has, of course, become accustomed to appointments of incompetent politicians as heads of government bureaus, but it will nevertheless come as a shock to learn that the spoils system has penetrated the government air navigation services, to risk the lives of whole shiploads of passengers, to say nothing of American air supremacy. A thorough housecleaning of the bureau of air commerce and the substitution of officers drawn from the air industry will be the only satisfactory answer.

WISCONSIN'S CANDIDATE IS WORTHY.

The action of Wisconsin Republicans in selecting Alexander Wiley of Chippewa Falls as their candidate for governor and party leader was strikingly similar to the procedure of the national convention in choosing Gov. Alfred Landon as its canidate for President.

Mr. Wiley came to the Milwaukee convention supported only by those of his own western and northern neighbors who have lived with him and but little known to the industrial section of the south and east. The bosses never had heard of him. He promised nothing more than if elected he would serve his best with integrity, economy, and industry.

The character of the man is so stamped upon him that within a day he had impressed the convention with his sincerity and directness of purpose and there was an overwhelming swing toward him. His nomination was assured on the first ballot and it was not necessary to complete the second until it was apparent that he was the man the convention sought and the nomination was made by acclamation.

Mr. Wiley is about as far as a man can be from the traditional office hunting politician. He is new to the mechanics of vote seeking which was one of the characteristics which seemed to endear him to the convention.

His record as a lawyer and a citizen, however, shows that he has the skill to present his appeal earnestly and the industry to make the right campaign for the office for which he has been named. His record as a man is proof that the state government will be honestly and efficiently administered in his hands.

The Wisconsin Republican convention, to those who observed it carefully, was an outstanding political phenomenon. The delegates were not ward bosses looking for a politician to lead them to jobs. They were not the party horses who have run state conventions time out of mind. They were new faces, youthful faces. There never was a convention in Wisconsin attended by so many farmers.

They were there in a patriotic service. The sentiment of the convention was expressed in a single line of their platform, "our country is in imminent peril." Emotion did not run high but determination did.

Of no less importance than choosing the right candidate, the delegates pledged themselves to hard labor and organization to the most remote precinct. They showed the resolution and the intelligence to know that in naming their candidates their work was only begun.

Republicans can carry Wisconsin this fall for Wiley and for Gov. Landon for President. They have had bitter experiences in past elections in the futility of trimming and trading and swapping support for vague and uncertain personal advantage. The party apparently is more united and in greater harmony than it has ever been. The men selected to run with Mr. Wiley are men of character and standing who will give strength to the ticket.

The meeting in Milwaukee is proof that Republicanism in Wisconsin has had a rebirth. There is no room for doubt that if the wisdom of the convention is backed by hard work and intelligent organization Wisconsin is safe for Gov. Landon and the strong Republican ticket it has just named.

OUR POLITICAL SHOWS AND CERTAIN OTHERS.

The English correspondent of the Manchester Guardian reporting the Democratic convention in Philadelphia and describing the antics of the delegates when they were masquerading and cavorting about the floor concludes with the remark "American politics are very physical."

That's probably true. The sideshows of the national conventions have their occasional critic among American observers, but a more tolerant view is that if very physical they are also very democratic both as Republican and Democratic outpourings. In their more public aspects they are not gatherings of the elder statesmen and probably all too often are assemblages of jubilant jobholders who hope to retain their jobs. Behind the scenes there is of course a good deal of thoughtful work, sometimes degenerating into mere political shrewdness, sometimes soaring pretty high as wishful thinking, but with it the admixture in many instances of patriotic desire to do nothing injurious to the major interests of the common country. Let an exception be made of the Roosevelt convention in Philadelphia if you will.

The English idea that the British politics stands on a higher spiritual plane may not be so clearly perceived here as over there where it is more thought of. It is to be noted from time to time in the pictorials as well as in the news that there is an elaborate mummery connected with the conduct of the British government. It may seem majestic to some whose eyes are filled with it although to less impressionable observers merely pompous, silly and antiquated. It is not democratic and is not intended to be. It is an elaborate upholstering of monarchical pretensions for the delight of adoring people who still love the king. Its justification in tradition and historic institutions may be conceded for what it is worth, and still it remains mummery.

Let it be conceded that much of the claptrap in an American political convention is as artificial as Jack Garner's subscription to New Deal policies, still there is many a whoop which proceeds from the pure democratic spirit enjoying itself in its quadrennial fling. British politics when it gets away from the exploitation of the crown as a foundation for government can put on as rough a political garment as is worn by any physical aspect of political action here. Only recently Mr. Lloyd George has been showing how to take the rafters down and throw the pieces at his opponents. Few American ward politicians would find an English political meeting so refined that they would retire abashed to hide their own unworthiness.

THE SMART ALECK.

If a physical examination of the applicant were made a prerequisite for securing an automobile license any board that issued a certificate to a one armed man would be regarded as having reached the height of official incompetence or worse. Yet how many drivers, possessed of both arms, can be seen daily on Chicago's boulevards guiding automobiles with a single hand! The other rests on the window sill, or more frequently the left arm is extended through the window and upward to grip the guttering above the door.

Of all the senseless risks that are practiced by motorists this one assumes the stellar rôle. The hand is just as comfortable, if not more so, on the wheel, where it will be available in case some prompt action is necessary. Far from impressing other occupants of the car, this silly carelessness creates an uncomfortable sensation of apprehension, to say nothing of the mental condition of the driver of the car behind, who, noticing the arm half out of the window, is anticipating a signal.

Ever since the automobile was invented the motoring public has fumed about the "one arm driver" who blissfully meanders along the highway with his right arm encircling the waist of his lady companion. Even he can be tolerated, perhaps, on the principle that "all mankind love a lover." But there can be no excuse whatever for the simpleton who deliberately defies the principles of common sense and invites disaster merely to gratify an exaggerated ego.

The Other Side

SELLING KANSAS IN ENGLAND.

[New York Times (Dem.).]

"Your Correspondent in Kansas" gets a whole page in the Spectator to blow the horn of Kansas. The piece is called "Mr. Roosevelt's Opponent." English readers may be forgiven if they get the impression that Kansas is that opponent. It is written from Kansas City, "the real capital of Kansas" and "the home of the most promising schools of art and poetry in the country." Here is a canto of its poetry:

> Kansas is the inheritor of the old Puritan morality which once dominated New England. It is indeed, in a very literal sense, the last refuge of the Puritan, for Kansas was settled from the old stock of Massachusetts Bay. To this day first and second generation immigrants and Negroes together make up only about one-tenth of the population. Its physical descent from Bradford, Winthrop, and Williams is only one degree less certain than its spiritual heritage from the same men. Kansas, even among farming states, is the most jealous upholder of prohibition and the Sabbath. And this again does little to endear it to the wet and licentious east.

The notion that the Pilgrims and the Puritans were drys is an amusing and a curious myth. But it is as a chapter of Kansan-Landonian propaganda that these musings from the real capital of Kansas must be judged. What agony will possess the soul of John Hamilton when he reads them! Only the other day we got rid of the teetotaler that was sent to us for a rod. Now the rod is raised again. This Know Nothing and Ku Klux contempt for "foreigners" and Negroes, this hatred of the east, would seem incredible if they occurred in a "campaign document." Just the usual "forged letter," fair-minded people would say. Yet when, as the correspondent says, "Kansas is feeling proud of herself" that pride would naturally take the form of asserting her moral superiority over the "wet and licentious east."

And what does that dissolute region amount to?

> Alf Landon may not command very many votes in the industrial east, but he commands plenty of votes where they are most badly needed—here in the farming states.

Such is the strange revenge contemplated by our interesting friend in Kansas City on Babylon and its suburbs. Wetness and licentiousness are not the full catalog of their crimes. They take a devilish delight in chanting:

Folks don't stay up very late
Way out west in Kansas.
They take the sidewalks in at eight

Etiquette Rules for Park Sleepers.

All night guests will please find the spots where they are going to bed down as early as possible. Sleepers dislike having people wandering around in the dark step on their ears.

Overnight guests are requested not to eat lunch at midnight and throw chicken bones and bread crusts into the night. Even people fond of chicken dislike very much to be hit in the nose by a drum stick.

Harmony quartets and impromptu glee clubs will kindly pipe down at 11:00 o'clock. "Sweet Genevieve" and "My Adeline" are very tuneful ditties, but many sleepers dislike exceedingly to be awakened by them at midnight or 1:00 or 2:00 o'clock in the morning.

Snorers will have to sleep in the snoring section provided for them in each park unless they fasten clothes pins on their snoots. People inclined to talk in their sleep are requested to refrain from political subjects as their remarks may stir up strife among other guests near by.

Guests who expect the delivery of telegrams or letters during the night should leave their names and the location of their parking space at the office so they can be readily paged; for instance: Mrs. Ima Sweltering, 25 feet north of Lincoln monument; Mr. George Coolinoff, 35 feet due east of Shakespeare memorial; Mrs. Cuthbert Gold-Coaste, 10 yards sou, sou west of Goethe monument [pronounced Goethe and not Go-ee-zey].

TO LIVE.

Bring the bonds of petty things,
  Bind me to the earth:
Too much meditation makes Life seem little worth.

Bring the duties of the day,
  Heap them in my path,
Stop my ears from hearing should
  Distant satyrs laugh.

Let me care that some one's maid
  Said that thing or this;
Let me care what clothes you like,
  Where you drink—or kiss.

Jealousy and fear and hate
  Are poor human swords;
Let me blindly walk unarmed
  Through their phantom hordes.

There is time to learn to die;
  Truths are cheap to give.
Pile their volumes at my feet—
  I would learn to live.

SOUNDS LIKE A GOOD IDEA.

And in the seven plenteous years the earth brought forth by handfuls.

And he gathered up all the food of the seven years, which were in the land of Egypt, and laid up the food in the cities; the food of the field, which was round about every city, laid he up in the same.

And Joseph gathered corn as the sand, very much, until he left numbering; for it was without number.

And the seven years of plenteousness, that was in the land of Egypt, were ended.

And the seven years of dearth began to come, according as Joseph had said: and the dearth was in all lands: but in all the land of Egypt there was bread.

THIS PHRASE "SOCIAL SECURITY" always makes me wonder. Is there anything secure in this world? I've tried them all, even to skating over the ice on the Illinois river in January. And still I haven't found anything that was really secure. I loaned a hundred bucks to the best friend I had twenty years ago. I haven't got back the hundred bucks yet. Security! I put on my best pair of pants that I had made by the most fashionable tailor in London to wear to an afternoon party. But after I got them on I found the moths had eaten out the knees and the seat. Security! There is no such animule!

Its phantom voice fashioned a phantom tune;
But when the shadow smiled at us and vanished
We turned our eyes to the intruding moon.

SEPTIC SORE THROAT.

RECENTLY I saw a college student who was extremely ill with septic sore throat. He had been working very hard in an effort to complete his school year in a blaze of glory — losing sleep and forgoing his usual exercise. Digestion had been somewhat upset and he was distinctly below the normal standard of resistance. Then, on one of those chilly nights that come occasionally in the last weeks of May, he had taken cold and wakened next morning with a severe sore throat. Two important final examinations faced him, neither of which—so he thought—could be postponed. The result was that he dragged through both grueling tests and by night was acutely ill with a temperature of 102 degrees F. He is now convalescent but has passed through a serious illness, attended with considerable suffering, anxiety, and expense.

The day that I visited him his temperature had ranged from 101 to 104½ degrees F., the pulse was high, and the face, eyelids, tongue, and neck markedly swollen. The white cells of the blood rallying to his support had increased to more than four times their normal number.

Most physicians recognize in this situation a dangerous infection caused by our ancient enemy, the streptococcus. Try as we will we cannot eliminate these organisms entirely. We can look after the mouth, the teeth, and the throat with scrupulous care, but we cannot eradicate them all. Enough remain so that whenever conditions are ripe for their spread and invasion of the tissues, a rapid onset is the rule. Rarely will they develop to the point of danger unless the defensive forces of the body have dropped below par.

The disease usually appears quickly. The mucous membranes and lymph tissue of the mouth and throat become red and swollen, and within from 12 to 24 hours a puslike exudate may appear. Because of the close proximity of the glands of the neck and the middle ear, abscesses are likely to develop. A chill may indicate that the infection is spreading, possibly to the circulation. Sometimes a streptococcic pneumonia enters the picture.

As recovery begins the patient should be managed with great skill, as complications may appear at any time. As long as the throat remains abnormally red there is every reason to believe that bacteria lie in the tissues and that they are still active and virulent. Infection of the lining of the heart, arthritis, and inflammation of the kidneys may develop several days after we have lulled ourselves into a sense of false security just because the temperature dropped to normal.

Every effort should be made through the use of proper mouth washes, gargles, etc., to reduce the number of organisms in the throat and emphasis must be placed on bringing about as prompt a rise in resistance as is possible. This means complete bed rest for a week or two—at least—after the disappearance of fever. Even then activity should be limited for an additional week.

Streptococcic serum is often of value in treatment and scarlet fever or convalescent serum may be used. Abscesses occasionally require opening and when they do the minimum of anesthetic should be employed. Gas anesthesia is greatly preferred.

Some authorities have recommended X-ray exposures within the first day or two or before the infection has reached its maximum. There are many reports in which the temperature dropped promptly within a relatively few hours following these treatments, with a corresponding lessening of symptoms. Great skill, however, is required in applying this powerful agent and the doses must be regulated carefully.

More diseases result from this sort of infection than almost any other of equal virulence and it means that a patient with a sore throat should go to bed, use plenty of fluids, fruit juices, mild alkalis, and irrigate the throat with salt solution as hot as can be borne. Good nursing with a prompt advance attack will draw the fangs of this vicious disease and save the coming of thousands of cases of heart disease, kidney involvement, and joint and ear complications.

FISTULA.

C. S. writes:
1. What causes a fistula?
2. How can it be prevented?
3. Cured?
4. Is there some relation between fistula and tuberculosis?

REPLY.

1. There are many varieties of fistulæ—rectal, salivary, bladder, etc. For example, in a rectal fistula a new channel is established from the rectum to the outside of the body. Ulceration of the mucous membrane of the lower bowel results in a local abscess, and pus burrows through the muscles, etc., to the skin nearby.
2. Avoiding constipation, and hence injury to the lower bowel.
3. Careful surgical dissection is necessary.
4. Many rectal fistulæ originate in ulcerated areas brought on by the tubercle bacillus.

We refer you to article which appeared May 14. This goes into more detail than is possible by letter.

COLITIS.

Mrs. A. C. H. writes: Our family physician tells me I have colitis and an ulcer in the rectum. I would like to know something of the nature, general treatment, and prognosis of these conditions.

REPLY.

Your questions cannot be answered accurately as the nature of the colitis is not indicated. Should it be the result of tuberculosis, it calls for a particular type of management. If infectious, caused by some such organisms as the streptococcus, bacillus coli, etc., the plan of treatment is quite different. Rectal ulcers may be excised surgically and this is often the best procedure.

We have a diet for mucous colitis [noninfectious] that we will send if you enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

DIABETES.

L. B. writes: If a person has diabetes and has been on a diet for several months and has no sugar at present, would you advise stopping the use of insulin?

REPLY.

Insulin should not be stopped until the amount of sugar in the blood is under control. Sometimes—with a fairly high level in the blood—no sugar appears in the urine. In other words, a test of the urine is not entirely safe. Your physician can advise you best, as he has no doubt studied your individual symptoms.

DAY BY DAY IN THE MAKING OF THE CONSTITUTION

BY JAMES MADISON.

[Father of the Constitution and Fourth President of the United States.]

Shall We Take Friendly Leave of Each Other?

Philadelphia, Pa., July 13, 1787.—In convention. [A motion by Mr. Gerry of Massachusetts that all moneys raised for the United States until a census could be taken be assessed by direct taxation on the number of inhabitants according to their representation was defeated by a divided vote, five to five. On his amending it to avoid the mention of inhabitants and impose the tax on the state itself according to the number of representatives it passed, 5 to 4, Pennsylvania divided.]

On the motion of Mr. Randolph of Virginia the vote of Saturday last authorizing the legislature to adjust from time to time the representation upon the principles of wealth and numbers of inhabitants was reconsidered by common consent in order to strike out "wealth" and adjust the resolution to that requiring periodic revisions according to the number of whites and three-fifths of the blacks. Mr. Gouverneur Morris of Pennsylvania opposed the motion as leaving still an incoherence. If Negroes were to be viewed as inhabitants they ought to be added in their full number. If as property the word wealth was right. The train of business and the late turn which it had taken had led him, he said, into deep meditation on it and he would candidly state the result. A distinction had been set up and urged between the northern and southern states. He had hitherto considered this doctrin as heretical. He still thought the distinction groundless. He sees, however, that it is persisted in and that the southern gentlemen will not be satisfied unless they see a way open to their gaining a majority in the public councils. Either this distinction is fictitious or real; if fictitious let it be dismissed and let us proceed in due confidence. If it be real, instead of attempting to blend incompatible things, let us at once take friendly leave of each other.

Mr. Butler of South Carolina: The security the southern states want is that their Negroes may not be taken from them, which some gentlemen, within or without doors, have a very good mind to do. It was not to be supposed that North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia would have more people than all the other states, but many more relatively to the other states than they now have. The people and strength of the United States are evidently bearing southwardly and southwestwardly.

Mr. Wilson of Pennsylvania: If a general declaration would satisfy any gentleman he had no indisposition to declare his sentiments. Conceiving that all men wherever placed have equal rights and are equally entitled to confidence he viewed without apprehension the period when a few states should contain the superior number of people. The majority of people wherever found ought in all cases to govern the minority. If the interior country should acquire this majority it will not only have the right but will avail themselves of it whether we will or not. This jealousy misled the policy of Great Britain with regard to America. The fatal maxims espoused by her were that the colonies were growing too fast and that their growth must be stinted in time. Again he could not agree that property was the sole or the primary object of government and society. The cultivation of the human mind was the most noble object. With respect to this right, as well as to other personal rights, numbers were surely the natural and precise right of representation. In no point of view, however, could the establishment of numbers as the rule of representation in the first branch vary his opinion as to the impropriety of letting a vicious principle into the second branch.

On the question to strike out "wealth" and make the change as approved by Mr. Randolph, it passed in the affirmative.

FARMING

Q.—What did Thomas Jefferson have to say about control of agriculture?

A.—He said: "Were we directed from Washington when to sow, and when to reap, we should soon want bread."

100

Q.—Has the government subsidized foreign farming enterprises?

A.—The Delta and Pine Land company of Scott, Miss., is controled by the Fine Spinners and Doublers' association of Manchester, England. In 1934 this company received $123,747 for not growing cotton on part of its land.

101

Q.—How many men would be required to produce the amount of cotton by which the foreign sales of cotton have been reduced under Roosevelt?

A.—About 1,000,000 men to produce it in one year.

Q.—What was Wallace's "hot potato"?

A.—The New Deal Potato Control act provided that no farmer could raise over five bushels of potatoes without a permit. Public resentment caused the law to be dropped.

Q.—Could a person be jailed for a violation of the potato law?

A.—Second offense for selling potatoes without permit or tax certificate carried jail sentence.

A.—About 2,000 per cent more was imported in 1935 than in 1934.

IN SEARCH OF A MAID.

Mirror Lake, Wis., July 9.—I have been trying for several weeks to find a girl or woman for general housework in a family of two. I have advertised, offering good wages, pleasant surroundings, and other advantages, and I have petitioned my friends to help in my quest. A few girls telephoned and later failed to keep their appointments. Several demanded wages far above their capabilities. One girl stayed two weeks, another one week, both claiming that the work was too hard. I heard afterward that both were on relief.

Some of the employment agencies admit this and say that many girls prefer to accept a small dole and have nothing to do, an encouraging thought for the taxpayers.

From a neighboring city I have procured a woman of 60 who was too proud to ask for relief as long as she was able to do light housework.

Is there no clause in this gigantic relief program which provides that those who refuse work shall be refused help?

TAXPAYER.

A MENACE TO BATHERS.

Chicago, July 10.—Permit me to call attention to a terribly dangerous menace at the Foster avenue beach which causes hundreds of cuts, bruises, and numerous infections [one case of tetanus last summer]. The menace consists of a barbed wire fence which was erected by agreement two summers ago between the Lincoln park board and the Saddle and Cycle club. I don't just know and don't particularly care for what reason this fence was erected, but somebody ought to keep this fence in condition so it won't constitute a danger.

Last summer this fence collapsed and part of it lay in the water, wires hanging in the air loose. Nothing was done by either party to repair or remove the débris.

The life guards themselves are provoked; they are rendering first aid to an average of 25 to 35 cases a day due to this obstruction in the water. The fence, with the open, sharp wires attached to a big wooden pile, still lies in the lake submerged, and it is a pity to watch little children come out of the water with cuts, skin abrasions, bleeding toes. I was present when an elderly lady came out of the water with rubber shoes all torn up by these loose wires. She complained to the life guard, who answered that the most he can do is paint some iodine on her scratched foot, but could not help her about her torn bathing shoes.

THE FAMILIES OF CANDIDATES.

Elmwood Park, Ill., July 5.—How about a presidential candidate without a family? I'm not going to like a series of Peggy Landon photos any more than I like those of Mrs. Roosevelt. Anyhow, it is the achievements of the Presidents [or their nonachievements] that interest us. Their families should be kept in their places.

O. A. B.

STRAYS.

Lake Forest, Ill., July 9.—On the front page of your issue of July 9 you ran an article dwelling on the stray dog problem in Chicago and its menace to citizens. Animal welfare societies have been prophesying such conditions since 1931 when the Arvey ordinance was passed by the city council. Under the terms of this ordinance the dog pound is run as a collecting station for the medical schools.

To proponents of vivisection such a ruling may seem a wise measure, but in every city where this has been tried results have followed just as they have in Chicago. The dog catchers cannot keep the streets clear of strays without the coöperation of the public. A frightened, hungry dog skulking in an alley may elude a dog catcher all day. As a secretary of an animal charity I read and answer many letters from Chicago citizens who deplore the stray dog situation in Chicago but state their unwillingness to coöperate with the dog pound.

If proponents of the Arvey ordinance would study conditions in other cities where pounds are run by humane societies and have the coöperation and the confidence of the public and where a stray dog is an unusual sight even in the poorer residential districts, they might step into line with the animal welfare organizations in asking that our Chicago pound be run on the same basis.

MILDRED FITZ-HUGH.

THE PATTERN NEVER VARIES.

Chicago, July 9.—For 3,000 years the pattern of dictatorship has been the same. Hard times, depression, the savior appears. Sound principles are enunciated, the people respond. Office is taken, principles are abandoned, the debt of the state increases by leaps and bounds, the burocrats gather round in hordes; then comes the inevitable taxation. The end is always the same—oppression, leading to repudiation and war. And liberty is lost. The weary grind upward is then resumed. You can still choose your path. Nov. 4, 1936, may well be your last chance.

J. ANDERSON.

PARADISE.

Talihina, Okla., June 29.—I have lived in Talihina, Okla., for thirty years and cannot understand why the people continue to stand for the alphabetical foolhardiness of the present administration. Let them move out to places like Talihina, Okla., where roads are good—likewise schools—ditto water, air and living conditions are obtainable without the necessity of selling one's birthright, that is the right to sit beneath one's own vine and fig tree.

J. A. CRUTHIS.

EXPLOSIVES.

Chicago, July 10.—I just read a letter in your column suggesting that a law be passed prohibiting the use of fireworks in the city. Why not go to the source of the evil and prohibit the manufacture of the noisy and harmful kind?

STATIONARY ENGINEERS.

West Chicago, Ill., July 9.—[Friend of the People.]—Could you please tell me on what day and where examinations for stationary steam engineers are held? Also, are they granted to destinations outside city limits of Chicago? What are the fees?

J. S. H.

Licenses issued by the board of examiners of stationary engineers of the city of Chicago are in force and effect only within the city limits of Chicago.

The city ordinance provides the following qualifications for licenses: "An applicant for a license as engineer shall be at least 21 years of age, temperate, of good habits; he shall have had at least two years' practical experience as a fireman, engineer, or machinist in the operation or construction of steam engines and boilers; all of which shall be vouched for in writing by two citizens of Chicago."

Examinations are held twice monthly. Application forms may be obtained at the offices of the board, 1008 City Hall.

HENRY G. McMAHON,
Secretary Board of Examiners of Stationary Engineers.

REPAIRS ORDERED.

Chicago, July 9.—[Friend of the People.]—I have on different occasions reported the building north of my property, but so far nothing has been done. This building is of frame construction and leans way over on my property, especially the bay on the south wall of the building, and gutters are in bad shape. When it rains hard we get all the surface water in our basement. Hope you will look into this matter or advise me what I can do about it.

H. N.

With regard to above complaint, owner has been notified to straighten up building and put in a new foundation, also to make such repairs as are necessary to put building in good condition, or wreck it, and if our notice is not complied with we will proceed as the law directs.

The matter of gutters and drainage has been referred to the department of health for attention, as such matters are within the jurisdiction of that office.

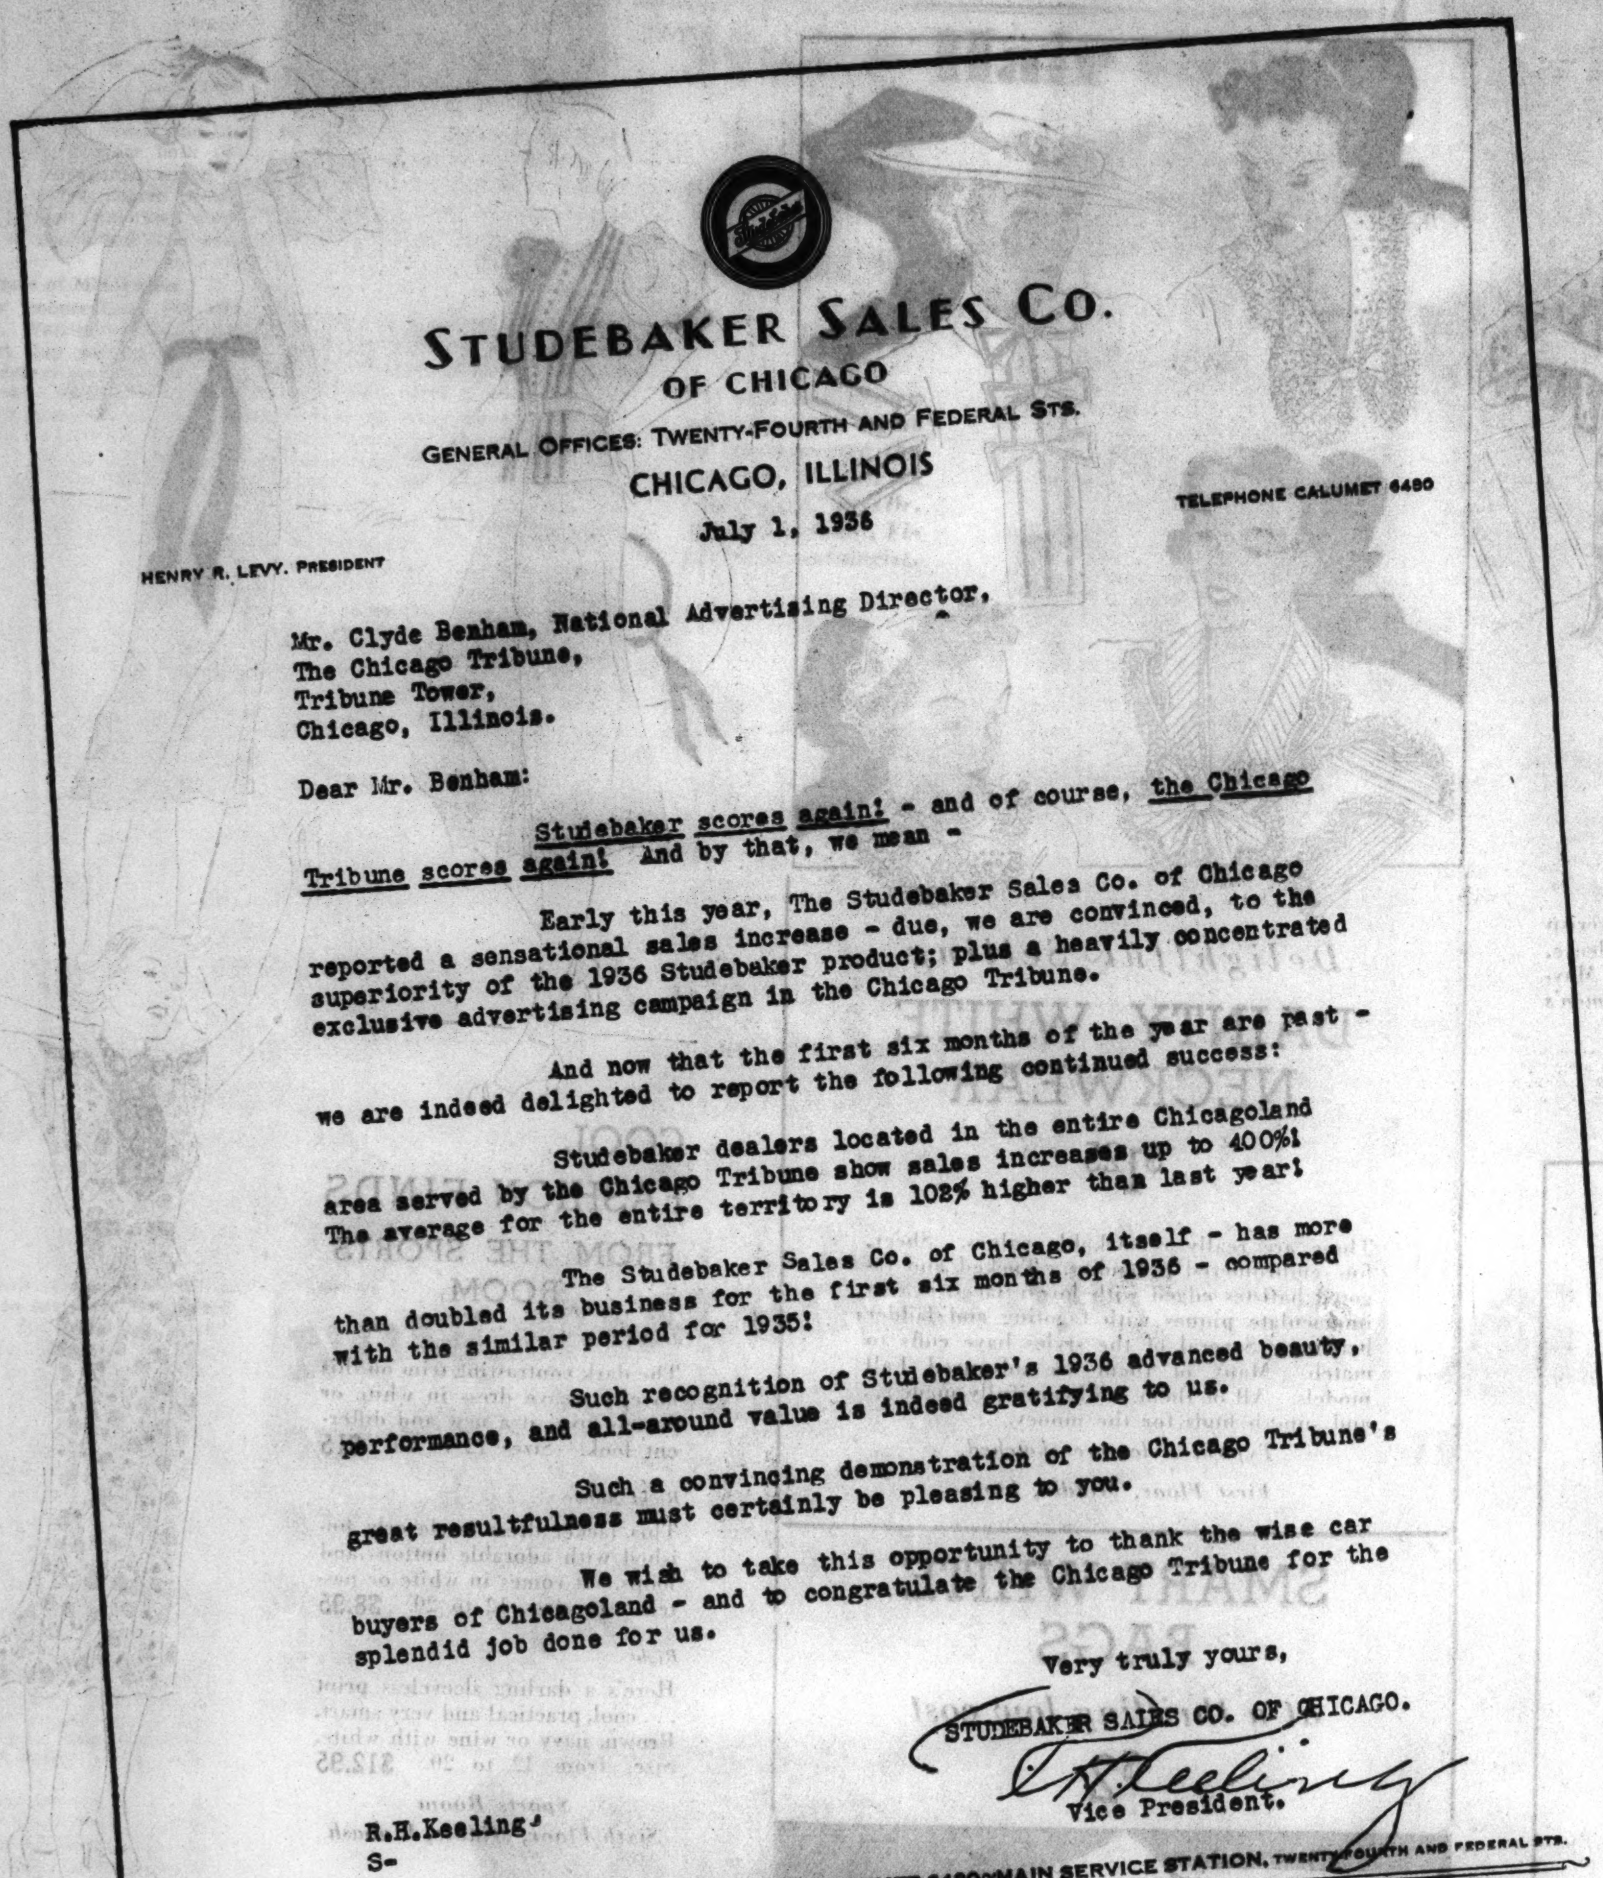
Studebaker Sales Doubled!



STUDEBAKER SALES CO.
OF CHICAGO
GENERAL OFFICES: TWENTY-FOURTH AND FEDERAL STS.
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS
TELEPHONE CALUMET 6480
HENRY R. LEVY, PRESIDENT

July 1, 1936

Mr. Clyde Benham, National Advertising Director,
The Chicago Tribune,
Tribune Tower,
Chicago, Illinois.

Dear Mr. Benham:

Studebaker scores again! - and of course, the Chicago Tribune scores again! And by that, we mean -

Early this year, The Studebaker Sales Co. of Chicago reported a sensational sales increase - due, we are convinced, to the superiority of the 1936 Studebaker product; plus a heavily concentrated exclusive advertising campaign in the Chicago Tribune.

And now that the first six months of the year are past - we are indeed delighted to report the following continued success:

Studebaker dealers located in the entire Chicagoland area served by the Chicago Tribune show sales increases up to 400%! The average for the entire territory is 102% higher than last year!

The Studebaker Sales Co. of Chicago, itself - has more than doubled its business for the first six months of 1936 - compared with the similar period for 1935!

Such recognition of Studebaker's 1936 advanced beauty, performance, and all-around value is indeed gratifying to us.

Such a convincing demonstration of the Chicago Tribune's great resultfulness must certainly be pleasing to you.

We wish to take this opportunity to thank the wise car buyers of Chicagoland - and to congratulate the Chicago Tribune for the splendid job done for us.

Very truly yours,

STUDEBAKER SALES CO. OF CHICAGO.

"HEAVILY CONCENTRATED EXCLUSIVE ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE SCORES AGAIN"

—R. H. KEELING Vice President
Studebaker Sales Co. of Chicago

Chicagoland Dealers Show Sales Increases Up to 400% . . . Average for the Entire Territory Is 102% Higher Than Last Year

"We have a number of people coming in, every day, to see the new Studebaker and a large percentage of them mention that the advertisements in the Chicago Tribune brought Studebaker to their attention."

OLMSTEAD MOTOR SALES,
Battle Creek, Michigan.

"I have had numerous people to whom we have sold new cars remember about how they saw our new cars pictured in the Tribune, and it goes to prove that an article well displayed at the proper place is half sold."

BURLINGTON MOTOR SALES CO.,
Burlington, Iowa.

"Advertising in the Chicago Tribune seems to bring results as we have had many inquiries about the Studebaker cars, and our sales have shown an increase because of this fact. We believe our sales will keep on improving due to Tribune advertising and we also notice that the class of people are of the better element."

RUSSELL S. LINDBURG, INC.
Springfield, Illinois.

"We have noticed that with the Studebaker ads in the Chicago Tribune we are receiving many inquiries regarding the Studebaker cars and it looks like our sales should increase more and more as time goes on. We also notice the inquirers are of a better class of people, which is to our advantage, and the cause of our sales showing an increase."

ALCORN MOTOR SALES,
Beardstown, Illinois.

"The new car advertisments that have appeared in the Chicago Tribune have been of benefit to my agency, due to the fact that the Tribune is a popular paper locally."

GULLETTE MOTOR COMPANY,
La Fayette, Indiana.

"We appreciate the advertising you have been doing in the Chicago Tribune. There is a large circulation of the Tribune here and it reaches the people who would be interested and could buy the Studebaker car."

FORTIER MOTOR SALES,
Muskegon, Michigan.

"I have always found Studebaker advertising in the Chicago Tribune beneficial to our business. As the Tribune is widely read in Indianapolis, it has a tendency to bring worthwhile prospects to our showroom and many inquiries from the Indianapolis area."

LITZELMAN & MORRISON, INC.
Indianapolis, Indiana.

"Any number of my 1936 buyers have told me they were first attracted to Studebaker by the type of advertising which they saw in this paper. I only hope our names can be listed in these ads, for the Chicago Tribune has a wide circulation in Janesville."

RANDALL-FRANCISCO CO.
Janesville, Wisconsin.

"The Tribune has a large circulation here, particularly among those who are in a position to buy our cars. Many a sale that we have made is traceable as a prospect coming from the Tribune."

GANO & BLEAKLEY,
Mattoon, Illinois.

"We consider Studebaker advertising in the Chicago Tribune very valuable in the promotion of sales in our territory. Increased advertising in the Chicago Tribune has meant increased sales to us."

HAGEMAN MOTOR SALES CO.,
Clinton, Iowa.

"The large size ads Studebaker uses have been commented on a great deal. And being a subscriber I cut out all ads and use them in my sales talks. I, for one, am willing to pay a little more for a car and put it into even more advertising. I have already sold 15 more Studebakers in the first six months of this year than I sold all last year."

HOBBS MOTOR SALES,
Aurora, Illinois.

"In presenting the results of the Chicago Tribune in our territory, it is the hope of our organization that the Tribune will continue the advertising of our Studebaker cars."

KLEIN MOTOR SALES,
Muscatine, Iowa.

"Most of our prospects and owners read the Tribune so this advertising is effective. It brings visitors into the salesroom and creates a good feeling in the buyer's mind prior to the visit of our salesman."

CONZELMAN MOTOR CO.
Waukegan, Illinois.

"After reading the ads, they come in and mention having read them. My personal opinion is that the ads have been a great aid in making Studebaker a great sales standout this spring."

WARREN MOTORS, INC.
Oak Park, Illinois.

"I think the ads in the Chicago Tribune have been beneficial. It makes our trade more Studebaker conscious."

SAWYER MOTOR SALES,
De Kalb, Illinois.

"It has sold more new cars than ever before, brought more people in our showrooms. Hope they continue to use Tribune advertising."

WALTER SCHROEDER,
La Grange, Illinois.

"It has been consistent advertising and therefore has repeatedly brought our name before the public."

AVENUE GARAGE,
Glen Ellyn, Illinois.

"The circulation of the Tribune here is quite large and consequently reaches many people who would be interested and could buy the Studebaker car."

VENHUIZEN AUTO COMPANY,
Holland, Michigan.

"We are very much satisfied by your advertising in the Tribune. We have had several compliments from our local people in regard to your Studebaker ads. Although this is a Chicago paper the circulation is very good in this locality. We have derived a great deal of benefit from this sort of advertising."

TWIN CITY MOTOR SALES,
Benton Harbor, Michigan.

"We are thoroughly convinced that the display advertising as furnished by the Studebaker Corporation of America and the Studebaker Sales Corporation is of the highest consideration as a sales help to Studebaker dealers throughout the Chicago zone. We watch closely these advertisments as they appear and are gratified with the results obtained therefrom."

KISER SALES COMPANY,
Keokuk, Iowa.

"Advertisments appearing in the Chicago Tribune have been productive of many inquiries from many people who are in a position to come into the Studebaker family and as a result we have benefited substantially from a standpoint of sales."

FROST & COOPER,
Dowagiac, Michigan.

"We are distributors for Studebaker cars and trucks in 22 counties in Iowa and Illinois and have had any number of our dealers mention the fact that their purchasers have been seeing these Studebaker ads in the Chicago Tribune, and some of their sales have actually been made through this advertising."

GRAMPP MOTOR SALES CO.,
Davenport, Iowa.

"We have been watching your advertising in the metropolitan papers that reach this community and find that we receive more inquiries from the Chicago Tribune readers than any others and we believe you have selected wisely when using this paper in which to advertise."

BEERS MOTOR COMPANY, INC.
Grand Haven, Michigan.

LAST January Studebaker began a consistent drive in the Tribune. They made news of Studebaker values — and told it in Chicago's first newspaper.

Results came at once. And week after week the advertising has appeared in the one Chicago newspaper that enables Studebaker dealers to take full advantage of their expanding sales opportunities.

ENTIRE TERRITORY UP

"Studebaker dealers located in the entire Chicagoland area served by the Chicago Tribune show sales increases up to 400%," says Mr. R. H. Keeling, Vice President of Studebaker Sales Co. of Chicago. "The average for the entire territory is 102% higher than last year!

"The Studebaker Sales Co. of Chicago, itself —has more than doubled its business for the first six months of 1936—compared with the similar period for 1935."

1936 has been a great year for new car sales in the Chicago market but Studebaker sales increases are far above the average for the industry.

The Chicago Tribune gives extra power to Studebaker advertisments by giving them full market circulation. From one end of the Chicago market to the other more families read the Tribune than read any other Chicago newspaper.

FIRST AMONG READERS

Because it prints the news — accurately, promptly, uncompromisingly — the Tribune is first among newspaper readers.

Chicago Tribune news columns provide dynamic effect on thinking. Their appeal is universal—regardless of income, social status, creed, or political affiliation.

LOWEST COST PER SALES RESPONSE

Use Chicago Tribune advertising and you immediately broaden your market. Use it and you step up staf morale and dealer tieup.

Use it and you cut your advertising costs. The rate per line per 100,000 circulation is among the lowest in the publishing business. It is the lowest per sales return in Chicago.

WALLACE'S BOOK FRANKLY URGES COLLECTIVISM

Would Supplant Trade with Co-operatives.

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.

Criticism was leveled yesterday at Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace's enthusiastic sponsorship of consumer coöperatives, as opposed to competitive enterprise, by Marshall B. Weaver, secretary of the Chicago and Cook County Retail Butchers' and Grocers' association.

Mr. Wallace advocated creation of consumer coöperatives in his recent book, "Whose Constitution? An Inquiry Into the General Welfare," published a few weeks ago. His expressions viewed in the light of the Democratic platform, President Roosevelt's acceptance speech, and a New Deal commission to study European coöperatives, appear to reveal the objective of coöperatives for both the producer and the consumer which, if carried to unlimited degree would replace the present American business system of profit and free competition.

Take Place of Middlemen.

"Producers' coöperatives are not enough," Mr. Wallace writes. "For the most part they merely take the place of middlemen, and while in many cases, they save a substantial part of the middleman's profit for the producer, they do not have any very profound effect on the people whom they serve. The coöperative way of life must pervade the community, and this means there must be consumers' coöperatives as well as producers' coöperatives."

These statements drew Mr. Weaver's fire.

"The proponents of consumers' coöperatives," he said, "are receiving governmental support, both moral and financial, and they, no doubt, will advocate and secure legislation which will remove much of the regulation under which retailers now are operating.

Silent on Unemployment.

"Mr. Wallace fails to point out how the consumer coöperatives will absorb the unemployment situation which naturally would follow were the movement successful to the extent of eliminating all retailing in the food industries. Today there are more than 475,000 food retailing establishments in the country, with an average of three employés each.

"Private, competitive enterprise has, since the earliest recorded history, provided the most efficient and economical method of distribution. Our American retail merchandising metods are recognized by the entire civilized world for their efficiency and our world leadership in manufacturing and distribution is a tribute to private enterprise. The individual retail merchant is and always has been the backbone of community progress."

As set forth in his book, however, Wallace's ideal does not stop with the consumer and producer coöperatives. It is not enough that the NRA-harassed New Jersey pants presser alone should be removed from free competition, but the Pennsylvania battery manufacturer, too, must get into the coöperative enterprise.

Opposes Private Profit.

"In the United States it is obvious that we cannot have a coöperative commonwealth without dealing with the question of our great industries which make up the chief part of our economic life," Wallace writes. "Unquestionably some means must be found by which these industries may operate more and more according to the needs of society and less on the basis of control by a few individuals for purposes of profit to the relatively few.

"As such means are found, it will be possible for more of our people to live in a way which enables the individual to perform the task he is best fitted for while at the same time he may take pleasure in the knowledge that he is truly serving the general welfare. As it is now, too many of us have to perform tasks and are forced at times to make decisions which, while they may temporarily advance our own interests, are not in accord with the general welfare."

Some Advances Made.

Some advance along the coöperative line has been made, Wallace admits, during the last three years of the Roosevelt administration, in which he occupies a key position. In stating this he said he was thinking of the county committees of farmers who are "the focal point of economic democracy for agriculture." Meanwhile, he says, there is nothing more important than for more people to "become actively imbued with the idea of a coöperative society." He also advocates the creation all over the country of committees for the general welfare, or consumer coöperative organizations.

These outspoken pronouncements of Wallace recalled to observers the plank on consumers adopted by the Democratic national convention in Philadelphia. Consisting of one sentence, it read: "We will act to secure to the consumer fair value, honest sales, and a decrease spread between the price he pays and the price the producer receives."

Fear Radical Plank.

This apparently was the only form of the plank on which committee agreement could be had. Reports are that the President had prepared, and his inside New Dealers wanted, an outright indorsement of consumer coöperatives. A fight ensued in the resolutions committee over this demand, the conservatives, especially from the south, arguing that the indorsement would be construed as radical and would become a difficult-to-explain campaign issue. The forthright indorsement was dropped, but the significance of its proposal and its open advocacy by Secretary Wallace remain to disturb the small retailer.

Coincidentally with the publication of Wallace's new book there sailed from New York harbor for Sweden and other European lands, under President Roosevelt's orders, a three man commission. It was under orders to study huge consumer coöperative organizations in the old world and possible application of their methods to coöperatives in the United States and, undoubtedly, to any new ones that might be formed here.

Subjects to Be Studied.

The commission is headed by Jacob Baker, assistant works progress administrator. He said that the commission is especially interested in coöperatives dealing in foodstuffs, clothing, water power, health, and other personal services.

"We also are instructed," Baker said, "to study the methods of coordinating farmers' and city workers' coöperatives."

The commission begins its work in Stockholm and will give especial attention to collectivism in Sweden, where, under a socialist régime, coöperatives have had an extensive development. This Swedish development is given special reference in Wallace's book, he citing the work there as an example of "gradual change," while hinting, or threatening, perhaps, that unless there is submission to coöperatives here "violent action" might be precipitated.

"The American Way."

Mr. Wallace refers to a coöperative society as "the American way." Mr. Roosevelt, in his acceptance speech, also spoke of the "American way of life."

Finally, in looking over the New Deal expressions on consumer coöperatives there is recalled the declaration of Rexford Guy Tugwell, undersecretary of agriculture, some time ago that under the new order he envisages for America business as it is known now logically would tend to disappear.

Guard Surprises Thieves; Killed, Thrown Into River

Waltham, Mass., July 12.—[Special.]—River thieves, surprised while moving part of a $20,000 stock of electric clocks from the Waltham Watch company plant early this morning, killed Harry E. Bradley, 55 year old watchman and father of ten children. The watchman's body was thrown into the Charles river after he had been strangled with his own belt. Police recovered the body.

"Make Hair Grow while the sun shines"

"It is a well known phenomenon that in the summer the growth of hair is more rapid," says Dr. Arnold Lorand, Vienna Dermatologist.

THAT Hair grows faster in the summer than at any other season is an established scientific fact. You can take advantage of this seasonal peculiarity by starting Thomas' hair and scalp treatment at once.

Your hair will respond more quickly to this famous proved method of treatment now than at any other time. Within an unusually short time your dandruff will disappear, hairfall will stop, and new hair will actually be visible on the thin and bald spots. Call at the Thomas' office and talk your problem over with the specialist in charge. He will gladly examine your scalp without charge or obligation and frankly tell you what Thomas' treatment can do for you.

Headaches Come from Constipation

Most headaches are due to poisons formed in the waste matter and absorbed by the blood. Slowly but surely these poisons undermine your health. Get rid of constipation and your headaches will disappear.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Just try Nujol regularly for the next month and see if you don't feel better than you ever suspected you could.

Ask your druggist for Nujol.

DR. S. P. CADMAN, FAMOUS 'RADIO PREACHER,' DEAD

Plattsburg, N. Y., July 12.—[Special.]—The Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, widely known radio preacher, died in Champlain Valley hospital this afternoon of peritonitis resulting from a ruptured appendix. He was 71 years old.

Dr. Cadman, who rose from the mines of England to a position of one of the most famous pulpit orators of his time, underwent an emergency operation last Monday after he had become ill while delivering a lecure the previous night.

A blood transfusion and an oxygen tent prolonged his life, but physicians and members of his family late last night said they had abandoned hope. Death came at 12:22 p. m. [Chicago time].

Daughter, Son at Bedside.

Present at the time were a daughter, Miss Marie L. Cadman of Brooklyn, who gave blood for the transfusion; his son, Frederick L. Cadman; his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frederick L. Cadman, and Dr. George L. Buist, his personal physician.

Describing his passing, the son said that Dr. Cadman "fell asleep as peacefully as a child." The son said the body probably would be taken directly to the Cadman home in Brooklyn and that burial would be in Mensico cemetery, Westchester county, probably Wednesday morning.

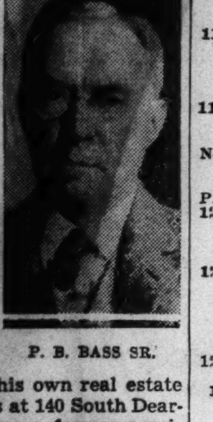
Born at Wellington, Shropshire, England, on Dec. 18, 1864, the Rev. Dr. Cadman had for his congregation the people of all the North American continent. As the first of the "radio pastors" his sermons reached the ears of millions. For many years he wrote "Dr. Cadman's Daily Column" for newspapers in all parts of the United States.

Of Militant Type.

He was of the militant type—an ardent speaker who expressed his views as freely on politics, literature, civic affairs, crime, and women's fashions as he did on religious affairs. He was so popular as pastor of the Central Congregational church in Brooklyn that parishioners cheerfully paid more than $40,000 for pew rentals.

In his youth Dr. Cadman worked as a "pony boy" in a mine. At 14 he had begun to read theology; at 17 he joined the church, and at 18 preached his first sermon. Before coming to the United States in 1890 he was graduated from Wesleyan college in England.

P. B. BASS SR., 70, REALTY DEALER SINCE 1895, DIES



P. B. BASS SR.

Perkins Burnham Bass Sr., a Chicago real estate dealer since 1895, died yesterday in the Presbyterian hospital following an operation four weeks ago. He was 70 years old. His home was at 1027 Grove street, Evanston.

Mr. Bass was born in Kankakee county and came to Chicago with his parents when he was a small child. He was graduated from Northwestern university in 1888. Since 1911 he had been president of his own real estate concern with offices at 140 South Dearborn street. He was a former president of the Chicago Real Estate Board.

Surviving are his widow, Mary, and three children, Perkins Burnham Bass Jr., Mrs. A. A. McLean, and Mrs. Frank E. Corliss. The funeral will be held at 4 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel of Rosehill cemetery.

Fredrick Ohlsen, who celebrated his 101st birthday last April 27, died early yesterday in the home of a son, Niels, 3448 South La Salle street, where he made his home. Mr. Ohlsen was born in Denmark, came to Chicago fifty years ago, and worked as a machinist. Another son, Marius, lives at 8143 Evans avenue. Also surviving are eight grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren. Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 3 p. m. in the Golgatha Lutheran church, 5931 South Morgan street. Burial will be in Oak Woods cemetery.

Hold Funeral Tomorrow for Mrs. Selma F. Cohen

Funeral services for Mrs. Selma F. Cohen, 42 years old, 17747 Howe avenue, Homewood, who died Saturday in her Chicago home in the Windermere East hotel, will be held tomorrow at 11 a. m. in Rosehill cemetery. Mrs. Cohen was the wife of Daniel R. Cohen, scrap iron broker. She was born in Ironwood, Mich., and came to Chicago 23 years ago.

Samuel N. Leitzell Rites Will Be Held Tomorrow

Funeral services for Samuel N. Leitzell, 46 years old, 3018 North Mansfield avenue, who died Saturday after an illness of two months, will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. in the chapel at 318 North Central avenue. Mr. Leitzell had been a pressman for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for the last 27 years.

Mrs. Eva Reynolds, 90, Is Dead at Logansport

W. E. DICKEY, 63, INSURANCE FIRM PARTNER, IS DEAD

William E. Dickey, vice president of W. A. Alexander & Co. and one of the best known insurance men in Chicago, died of pneumonia yesterday in St. Luke's hospital. Mr. Dickey, who was 63 years old and lived at 3030 Sheridan road, had been in the hospital five days.

Born in Valparaiso, Ind., Mr. Dickey after coming to Chicago started with the Alexander company as an office boy, eventually achieving a partnership in the firm. He was a member of many clubs, including the Chicago club and the Chicago Athletic club, and was a noted sportsman.

Surviving are the widow, Mary, a daughter, Mrs. Josephine Rogers, and a sister, Miss Genevieve Dickey of Indianapolis. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 3 p. m. in the Fourth Presbyterian church. The body will be taken to Valparaiso for burial Wednesday.

DR. BURNE SIPPY FUNERAL WILL BE HELD TOMORROW

Funeral services for Dr. Burne Olin Sippy, professor of orthodontia at the University of Illinois college of dentistry, will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in his home at 204 Sunset avenue, La Grange. Dr. Sippy died Saturday night at the age of 50 in the Washington Boulevard hospital after a long illness. He was a former president of the Chicago Association of Orthodontists and had been treasurer of the Illinois State Dental society since 1934. Surviving are his widow, Mae Dorothea, and two sons, Kenneth and Francis. Dr. Sippy was the son of the late Asher F. Sippy, a Chicago physician for many years.

Mrs. Nelly T. Ryan Dies at 60; Catholic Club Leader

Mrs. Nelly Tansey Ryan, 60 years old, 6512 Woodlawn avenue, prominent in Catholic club and charitable activities, died yesterday in her home. She was the widow of M. Frank Ryan, vice president and western representative of the Pittsburgh Spring and Steel company. Mrs. Ryan was born in Chicago and lived here her entire life. She was a member and past president of the Catholic Women's league. Funeral servies will be held Wednesday at 9 p. m. from the home to St. Clara church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet cemetery.

Dr. F. J. Buss Funeral Service to Be Held Today

Funeral services for Dr. Francis J. Buss, a Chicago physician for 35 years, will be held at 3 p. m. today in the chapel at 523 Lake street, Oak Park. Dr. Buss died Saturday at the age of 60 in his home at 2058 Foster avenue. He was graduated in 1901 from the University of Illinois college of physicians and surgeons. He was a member of the stafs of the Belmont and Ravenswood hospitals. Surviving are his widow, Blanche, and four children, Francis Jr., John, Blanche, and Celemarie.

Mrs. Edith Wight Dies; Owner of Corset Shop

Mrs. Edith G. Smith Wight, 68 years old, owner of a corset shop at 58 East Washington street, died of a heart attack in her home at 2334 Indiana avenue yesterday. Mrs. Wight opened her corset shop twenty-two years ago. She is survived by her second husband, Byron W. Wight, a retired attorney. Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow from her residence. Burial will be at Shipshewana, Ind.

Californian Coming Here for Visit Dies on Train

Mrs. Anastasia Abraham, 67 years old, of Montrose, Cal., was found dead in her berth on a Santa Fe railroad train at Galesburg yesterday morning while en route here to visit her daughter, Mrs. Albert Lagal, 4943 Concord place. Death was attributed to heart disease. Funeral services will be held here later in the week. Surviving besides Mrs. Lagal are three other daughters and three sons.

Mary Senior's Engagement Is Told in East

Betrothed to Morton Fearey of Garden City, N. Y.

BY JUDITH CASS.

FROM Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., where Mr. and Mrs. John L. Senior have the Archibald Roosevelts' house for the summer, comes the announcement of the engagement of Miss Mary Senior to Morton Fearey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morton L. Fearey of Garden City, N. Y. Miss Senior made her debut in Chicago, where her parents then lived, in 1932, and was one of the prettiest and most popular buds of that year. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. William Foster Cowham of Chicago and of Mrs. George Edward Senior of Montgomery, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Senior and their daughter and son, John L. Jr., moved east two years ago last May. Their New York home is at 10 Gracie square, New York. They also have a residence in Belleair, Fla. Miss Senior, who was graduated from the Concord academy the June before her debut, has been at Vassar college for the last three years and is a member of the New York Junior league. Her fiancé was graduated in 1935 from Yale university, where he was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and the senior society of Scroll and Keys. He now is at the Yale law school. He is a grandson of the Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, former bishop of Massachusetts, and the late Mrs. Lawrence, and of the late Mr. and Mrs. William H. Fearey of Albany.

Nelle Offutt to Wed Where Mother Became Bride.

There is an unusual amount of sentiment connected with the marriage of Miss Nelle Thornton Offutt, to Frederick Francis Chesley of Washington, D. C., which will take place on Aug. 19, for Miss Offutt is to wear her mother's wedding dress, and when the service is read she and her bridegroom will be standing in the same spot in the old house, Monte Visto, where the former Nannine Thomasson was married to the late Mr. Offutt. The lace veil that Miss Offutt will wear is being lent to her by the bridegroom's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Thomasson Jr., uncle and aunt of the bride-to-be are present day owners of Monte Visto, the former home of his mother. It is about a mile and a half outside of Oakland where Mrs. Offutt's home, Hazlehurst, is located. The Rev. David Trimble of Washington, who is minister at Oakland's little Episcopal church in the summer time, will officiate at the wedding, which is to be held at 8 o'clock in the evening in the dining room of the Thomasson home.

The bride will have one attendant, Miss Katherine Murphy of Washington. Casselman Chesley will serve his brother as best man, and ushering will be Nelson Thomasson III. and his brother, Gardiner.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomasson motored to Chicago from Oakland to spend the last week-end here, and they are leaving today to motor back to their country home.

Walter P. Paepckes' Home Ready in Fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Paepcke, who have been spending week-ends on their farm near Sandwich, Ill., are glad that they are not living out there permanently, for it is much too hot. They stay, during the week-end, in a little bungalow on the property. The bungalow later will be used as a guest house after the main house, under construction now, is completed. The house should be finished in the fall.

Also house building are the young James Dumas Henrys of Atlanta, Ga., who are building down there. Mrs. Henry's parents, the David J. Molloys, who are living at the Deerpath inn this summer, spent the last week-end with the former Catherine Molloy and her husband.

There will be no house building for the newly married Jay Fred Reeves for some time to come at least, since they have found a 70 acre farm north of Wheaton and will make their home there after they return from a fortnight of salmon fishing in Alberta. The former Josephine Patterson's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Brooks of New York, have gone up to Canada with them.

Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, who is now at her country place near Libertyville, is going east on the 23d to join her other daughter and son-in-law, the Griffith Marks, at a camp at Saranac lake in the Adirondacks for the remainder of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard F. Rogers [Mrs. Ezra J. Warner] have gone to Harbor Springs, Mich. and have opened their home there. They spent Names—Letter.

IN THE morning mail. "The other day you published a list of peculiar names of veterans who were to receive bonus bonds and you mentioned one Dewey Moon. . . . Dewey Moon . . . so that's where he's been all these years . . . . in Chicago.

"Dewey was born about the time of the battle of Manila and was, as his name implies, christened after Admiral George Dewey. He was the star boarder at the Terrills' down on Broadway in Fort Wayne, Ind. His mother or aunt had been a friend of Lily Terrill and when he left his home town his mother had asked Lily to take him into family life and be good to him.

"WE liked Dewey. . . . Our favorite game was Pedro, and though Helen and I were only about 9 years old and Evelyn and Donny slightly younger, he used to join in our games. We liked to explore his dresser drawers . . . and found such fascinating items as foreign post cards, a little red date book . . . a buckeye for rheumatism in case he ever got it . . . and other tidbits. I suspect now that we made life miserable for Dewey at times. We eavesdropped on his telephone conversations and inspected the postmark of every letter that came addressed to him.

"DEWEY was generous and gave us dimes and nickels whenever we asked for them. He worked as an usher in the local burlesque theater called the Lyric and when our mothers gave us money for the movies we went to the Lyric—without our mothers knowing it and Dewey let us in for nothing and we spent the movie money on candy. The only condition to our attending the Lyric was that we sit in the balcony and keep the whole thing under our hats. . . . We used to go home and sew copies of the burlesque costumes for our dolls. Need I add that was before the days of the strip performance.

* *

"WAR got going in earnest and we ran a fish pond at the Thompson avenue Red Cross bazar and a little girl named Jane Peters helped us. [Jane now is known by the more theatrical name of Carole Lombard. Then one day Dewey Moon packed up his foreign post cards, his deck of playing cards, the buckeye for rheumatism. He was off to war. . . . It always seemed to me that my Dewey Moon enlisted in the navy, because the navy suited Dewey to a T, but I don't know. Years later I met Helen one day. . . . I asked her about Dewey Moon and she retailed some news to the effect that he had returned from war safely and was married. I forgot just what she said. I really didn't care.

Ravinia Crowd Gives Lange a Noisy Farewell

'Meistersinger' Music Stirs Emotional Excitement.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra and a large Ravinia park audience bade Hans Lange a noisy farewell yesterday afternoon.

This widely esteemed conductor of the New York Philharmonic orchestra had served the Ravinia festival as guest director during its entire second week. The demonstration which followed yesterday's concert — the fourth and final one in Lange's series —was compounded of lusty applause, a blaring fanfare, and several shouted bravos, and owed as much of its fervor to the emotional excitement induced by the grandiose "Meistersinger" music that closed the program as to the genuine respect which this competent and likable gentleman had won in the few short days of his stay.

For Hans Lange flung wide the gates to Wagner for this last hour of the last concert, after carefully excluding him from all of the preceding programs. The knowing Richard discharged admirably the duty which this peculiar placing imposed on him —that of combining terrific effectiveness with high musical worth and thus ending the week on a note of climax.

It could not have taken Mr. Lange more than the first ten minutes of his first rehersal to discover that the Chicago symphony orchestra boasts a superb brass section. In "Die Meistersinger" yesterday he let the boys give it everything they had, confident that none of the effects would fail to come off because of any gaucherie on the part of these canny lipped fellows.

The result was stunning—magnificent sonority wedded to scrupulous accuracy. There is something about great volume—as there is about great size—which frees the healthy old Adam locked within the sophisticated modern breast. In brave brassy blares or half a dozen Matterhorns is an exultation which forty or fifty centuries of a growing cult of the exquisite have not been able to destroy.

The rest of Wagner's contribution to the program consisted of the two "Lohengrin" preludes and "Siegfried's" forest music. The latter fits perfectly into the Ravinia scene—sun flecked trees pressing right up to the very edge of the pavilion, and a drowsy summer sky peeking through their leaves for a glimpse of the stage.

Mr. Lange gave most of the early afternoon to the Brahms Fourth symphony, thus completing the miniature festival during which the four symphonies of this composer came to performance. How many of yesterday's audience saw in their mind's eye the gyrations of the Lichines and Toumanovas of the Ballet Russe, whose "Choreartium" was based on the Brahms fourth?

There is not much to add to the comments on Mr. Lange, which appeared in this column last Friday after his first Ravinia performance. Better than another windy description of some of the points of his style—and certainly far easier to write and to read—is the simple statement that Hans Lange possesses a deep and genuine sense of beauty.

Other pastel colors also trimmed with the rickrack braid are obtainable in the same moderately priced assortment.

Hot Days Start Rush for Cool Clothes to Wear in the Country

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Country clothes are getting the big rush these hot days. Simple cottons, airy muslins, nets, rough and ready shirtwaist tub dresses, dresses with gouged out tops, revealing sun tan back lines, playtime outfits of shorts and a halter top are the selections.

With the July sales as bait, it doesn't take any time at all to pick out some summertime winners. And the reduced price tags will please every one. There are all kinds of slick one piece cotton dresses, black linens, Paisley prints, all of them brief of sleeve, scant of skirt, and cut for coolness to the nth degree.

Dotted swiss ensembles, in green, navy, and brown as well as black, are plentiful. Cotton lace two piece suits and one piece dresses—the cotton lace with lots of holes to assure supercomfort—come in colors and dark street shades and have amazingly low price marks.

Thin net and marquisette dresses, made with plaited skirts, with shoulderlines that just cover the top of the shoulder, and simple plaited or tucked bosom blouse top, are the coolest and airiest outfits you can wear to town, especially in black or navy. The marquisette is guaranteed not to cling to the skin and it keeps in press and plait for days. Even though these sheer creations are a bit more expensive than chiffon or cotton, they're worth all you pay.

'$2,500 a Week All I Ask,' Says Bette Davis

Actress Airs Grievances Against Producers.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., July 12.—[Special.]—Spiking the belief that she is a highly paid actress, Bette Davis, current holder of the Motion Picture academy acting award, says she earns less than $2,000 a week, according to a story in the Los Angeles Times.

The actress has refused to appear before the camera until her request for a revision of her contract with Warner Brothers is granted.

"I don't think I'm a star and I don't expect $5,000 a week," the actress told the Times in summarizing her position in the contract fight, "but I am asking for $2,500 a week. I don't expect to be allowed to pick my own stories, but I do not want to make more than four pictures a year. As it is they can put me in eight or ten a year, many of indifferent quality, and that is a good way to make the public tire of me."

As for her present salary, the actress said that if she "were paid even $2,000 a week it would be a considerable raise for me." She said she is "ashamed" to tell how much she is receiving from Warners.

Other issues are involved in the present dispute. Miss Davis declared that Warners intervened to prevent her from playing Queen Elizabeth in an R. K. O. production with Katharine Hepburn, at the same time giving her no work themselves.

Miss Davis withdrew from the cast of James Oliver Curwood's story, "God's Country and Women," several weeks ago over her contract difficulties. She says she is anxious to play the part assigned to her, but is determined to see her "argument through, even if I have to lose out on that."

The opening of Descanso street at Avalon, Catalina Island, turned into something of a movie parade by land and sea. The new strolling strand at the island is laid out between the larger hotel structures and gardens on one side and the white sands on the other. A lot of coconut palms have been transplanted there.

Coming to enjoy the combination of bathing suits, guitar players, strollers in Spanish caballero outfits [the hotel and island operating companies dress all employés, including waitresses and newsboys, in Spanish style] were the Douglas Fairbanks party, soaking up sea air and tall drinks under an umbrellaed table for several days.

Mrs. Fairbanks [Lady Ashley] accompanied her husband and so did Merle Oberon and David Niven, English actor. They cruised to the island on the yacht Velleron.

Anchored off the Catalina airport was Cecil De Mille's yacht, Seaward, while the movie producer-director went over further research on the early west with Harold Lamb, novelist, who now is on personal contract

SHERIDAN ROAD

By Helen Topping Miller

SYNOPSIS.

Eden Faraday, young secretary, opens the door of a taxi and finds a man murdered. She is taken to the police station, where she meets Jack Garnett, newspaper cameraman, and Owen Field, assistant district attorney, who arranges her release. Eden had been mistaken for Gracie Lincoln, a gunman's widow. The man murdered was a notorious gangster, Grappi. Eden's mother, Bridget Faraday, sells gowns and is in love with suave Sidney Creighton. Eden and her spoiled young sister, Robin, and brother, Coburn, depend on their peppery grandmother. Because of a rumor that Eden can identify the murderers Owen Field has her guarded. Raquel Rusak, an older woman, is trying to force Coburn Faraday to marry her. Robin is carrying on a secret flirtation with Sidney Creighton. Eden goes with Garnett to see Gracie Lincoln, now married to Clint Jarvis, a taxi driver, who has been forced to drive the murderers of Grappi. Eden promises to help Clint gain an audience with Mat Burke, district attorney, friend of her grandmother. On his way there Clint is deliberately run down by a car. Garnett, with Eden and Gran, bring Gracie to the hospital. Coburn has told Eden about Raquel and she promises to get him money to go away. Gran leaves to meet Coburn. Owen Field drives Eden home.

INSTALMENT XXV.

A CONQUEST.

"I think I won't go home," Eden said, "I think I'll go to Martin Burke."

"There's nothing you could do by going to Burke."

"I can save Clint Jarvis. I can help Gracie."

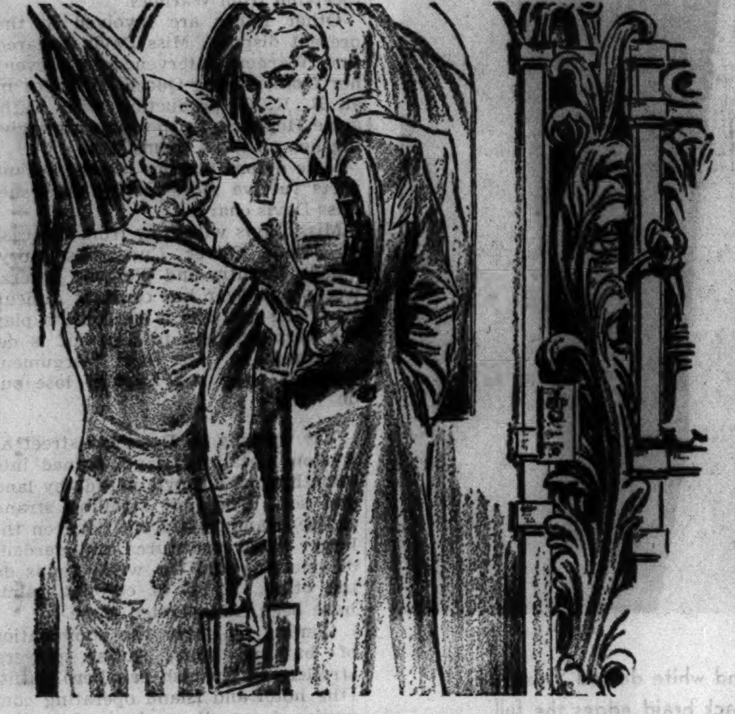
"You could only tell what you have been told—if any one has told you anything. And hearsay in our office isn't evidence, dear girl. You're making yourself unhappy and running into danger following this young Garnett's absurd hunches. We're getting just a little tired of Garnett's officiousness. Sorry but I can't possibly take you to Burke."

Owen Field gave her one of his dazzling smiles, full of charm, and Eden smiled back. There was in her eyes a glint of Gran's indomitable obstinacy.

"Then I suppose I'll have to go alone," she said.

He drove slower. "Listen, Eden, before we go any further, there's one thing I wish to say. You know this, I think you should know it. I've fallen in love with you. You're lovely—loyal—splendid; everything that a man wishes for in the woman that he loves. You must have seen—I've been quite helpless to hide my feelings—I love you. Now, do you see why I can't let you be fouled and harassed and endangered by being mixed up in this Grappi business?"

Eden sat very still. She was still because not a nerve, not a muscle, hardly a drop of blood would have stirred in her at that moment. She was still and taut in body, but her brain was spinning and a curious melody seemed to be quivering through it like a love song played on a violin.



"I must keep you safe—you see that, don't you, Eden?"

A man loved her—a man, handsome, successful, agreeable, superior—everything that a girl could desire. She had felt it—known it, sensed it impending, of course. Women always knew—yet she had dreaded the definite revelation.

Owen Field was somehow a man a woman must either love or detest. And she did not want to dislike him—yet she could not love him. This inward shivering, this frozen feeling, the barbed clutch that tortured her throat, could not be love. Love did not wince, ache, and chill. Love was not afraid.

"I'm sorry——" began in a small, wan voice.

He laid his hand on hers quickly.

"I've been too abrupt," he smiled a little—sure of himself—so terribly sure. "I should have waited—for a moon. But I do care, Eden. Will you think about that a little—about me a little?"

"Yes," Eden forced calm into her voice. "Yes, I'll think about it."

"I'd try to make you happy. I could, I think," he went on, as they slowed down before her apartment building, "but we won't talk about it any more today. I'll go in with you. You're technically detained, you understand?" He smiled at her whimsically. "We'll have to put you under arrest if you behave badly. I must keep you safe—you see that, don't you, Eden? You're very precious to me. More than anything else in the world."

"Yes, I see," she said, as they waited for the elevator, "I'll be careful. I'm sorry I can't feel anything——"

"I'm not giving up, you know." He gave her the smile again, a bit wistfully this time; so wistfully that Eden sat for a long time in her room afterward a little disturbed and distressed because she could not feel any tenderness for him.

Another girl—almost any girl would have thrilled at making such a conquest. Sheridan Road. An old proud family, money, success, and a charm that she could not deny even when she resisted it. Why was she so cold? And why, even while she was trying to relent a little, did she keep seeing Jack Garnett's lazy grin, hearing the caressing drawl in his voice? Jack Garnett—who had nothing, nothing but a camera and a job.

She called Mr. McLachlan and found that gentleman perturbed.

"I understand they've caught the fellow who killed Grappi," he said. "There's an extra out about it. They claim the chap was smashed up in a wreck by Grappi's friends, and that he's in the hospital now."

"How absurd! That man in the hospital had no more to do with the killing of Grappi than I."

"Well, be careful who you say that to, Miss Faraday," Mr. McLachlan begged, "for if that bunch of punks thought you knew something that you aren't telling, things might be unpleasant."

"I'll be careful," Eden promised, hanging up.

She was troubled and impatient. Martin Burke should know Clint had nothing to do with the killing of Grappi. Why did they let such rumors get about?

The police, of course, were obliged to believe any suspect guilty until a preponderant weight of evidence freed him. She took up the telephone to call Martin Burke, then thought better of it. Burke was wise and shrewd; fairness was written in every line of his craggy Irish face. And if things went too glaringly wrong she could always enlist Gran's help with the district attorney.

She called the hospital instead and asked for Jack Garnett, but a frigid voiced person at the other end of the wire could give no information so she had to content herself with leaving a call at the Tribune office. And even there she was baffled. Garnett, said an informant, came in only now and then.

"He's supposed to be working here," said this person, "maybe he'll come in."

Nothing to do but wait, and waiting was nerve racking business. The sky cleared and thin spring sunshine came in at the south windows.

Eden went into Coburn's room, looked at the bed that would not be slept in tonight, opened drawers and noted their emptiness. A ragged undershirt, a few soiled ties, a worn pair of pajamas. Some one would have to tell Bridget Faraday tonight that her only son was gone.

Bridget would be hurt, she would not understand. She had not heard that girl's voice in the dark or seen the young wretchedness in Coburn's eyes. She was proud and she wanted prideful things for her children.

Pomona came in and said, "Your grammaw comin' back for lunch, Miss Edie? She don't never be out for lunch."

"She'll be here by one, I'm sure," Eden said.

But one struck, and two and Eden ate alone. Gran did not come. At 2:30 Robin came in with a new spring hat, looking a little startled at seeing Eden.

"Hello. I didn't know that you were at home. Where's Gran? I hear they've caught your Grappi murderer."

"He isn't caught—and I'm technically detained again. I don't know where Gran is. I'm worried about her."

"Well, don't be. She's the most fiendishly capable person I know about taking care of herself. Frankly, I'm glad that she's out. I'm escaping an argument. I'm going out—up the shore for the week-end—with some friends. Tell mother and Gran, will you, Eden? They don't know this family I'm going to but it's perfectly all right. So keep any row under control like an angel, will you?"

the early part of the summer at the Deerpath inn in Lake Forest and will be returning there Sept. 1. Mrs. Charles S. Frost and her daughter, Miss Virginia Frost, who also were early residents at the inn, will return on Sept. 1 from a summer at Northeast Harbor, Me. They have rented their Lake Forest house to Mrs. John F. L. Curtis.

The John M. Simpsons were other early residents of the inn, but they now have moved into their own home which recently was completed. Mrs. Edwin F. Carry and her grandchildren, Peggy Nicholson and Edwin Carry Nicholson, will be arriving in Lake Forest Aug. 15 after several weeks abroad. They will stay at the inn, where two girls about Miss Nicholson's age, the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. A. Werner Lawson, also are staying. The Lawsons, whose daughters attend the Girls' Latin school, have come from New York to live. They spend the winters in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hamill have gone out from town to spend a week at the inn in order to attend the concerts at Ravinia with greater ease. Mr. Hamill is president of the Orchestral association.

Bachelors and Summer Bachelors Living at Inn.

Several bachelors are stopping at the inn, some of them only summer bachelors, however. They include Knight C. Cowles, J. Sanford Otis, Joseph Terbell, James A. Cook, Eugene M. Barnhart, and Buckingham Chandler. Mrs. Cowles has gone with the children to the seashore in the east after renting their house. Mrs. Chandler and her daughters, the Misses Eleanor, Betty and Celia Coit, are at their home in Green Lake, Wis., where Mr. Chandler joins them for week-ends. Miss Celia Coit is to be presented to society in the fall at Mr. Chandler's Winnetka home, which is rented this summer.

Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Ryerson are at the inn, where Mrs. Farwell Boston is staying with her mother, Mrs. Granger Farwell, until Mrs. Boston returns to England. Mrs. Horace H. Martin will return to the inn Aug. 15 from Lake Geneva, where she is visiting Mrs. Martin Ryerson. The Frank G. Wrights, who stopped in Lake Forest early in the summer, have gone east, but will return in September and will stay in town with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Oates Jr.

The senior Mrs. William Burry, the John E. Wheelers and the Henry S. Buntings are others at the inn. The Buntings have decided not to go up to an island in northwestern Ontario that belongs to Mr. Bunting's brother, Franklin Bunting, for they do not want to go north without their son, Van Asmus Bunting. Young Mr. Bunting has returned to the University of North Carolina, where he is a student, to take a summer school course.

Herbert E. Bradleys Return from Wisconsin.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Bradley have returned to the city from their rustic retreat, Lost Lodge, in Wisconsin, to await the arrival of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Davey, from New Mexico. Mr. and Mrs. Davey, who are motoring here from California, have stopped to visit his mother, Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, in Santa Fé, but they are expected within a week.

The Bradleys and the Daveys will spend the next month or so at Lost Lodge, and then will return to Chicago together to spend a few weeks. The former Alice Bradley and her young husband have not decided where they will live next fall, but it will not be here. They want to go somewhere to be away from friends and the temptations of a social life, for each is interested in an art—Mr. Davey in writing, and his wife in painting.

Miss Barbara Eldridge arrived at home on Friday night after several months in Europe. Her mother, Mrs. Harold Eldridge, and her brother, Huntington Eldridge, met the traveler in New York. Miss Eldridge will be in Chicago for two or three weeks before going to Michigan.

The Hobart Chatfield-Taylors were at the Blackstone for a few hours between trains Saturday on their way from England to their home in Santa Barbara, Cal.

"Cold Plates to Tempt Summer Appetites," a booklet of hot day menus and accompanying menus, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

"I think," our hostess said ruefully, "I think there's something wrong with this Mocha cake frosting." And there certainly was!

"The recipe said 'one tablespoon of coffee,'" she grinned, a bit embarrassed. "And I never once thought that it might mean boiled coffee!"

She tried again, this time using coffee from her percolator. And in no time she had a perfect frosting. This was her recipe:

MOCHA FROSTING.

⅓ cup butter, creamed
1½ cups confectioner's sugar
1 egg yolk, beaten
1 tablespoon coffee [liquid]
1 tablespoon cocoa
Few grains of salt
Slight sprinkling of cinnamon

Add half the sugar gradually to the creamed butter. Mix in the egg yolk, coffee, salt, cocoa, and cinnamon. Add gradually the remaining sugar and work until smooth. Use on spice or plain cake.

Butter frostings or toppings are easily made and are usually "flop-proof." [Althought if you do bungle your recipe, it's simple enough to start over again!] What's more, these frostings remain soft and creamy on the cake. Here's a recipe for an orange butter frosting which is delicious for white layer cake. This amount will frost two nine-inch layers.

ORANGE BUTTER FROSTING.

3 tablespoons butter
1 unbeaten egg yolk
⅛ teaspoon salt
3 cups confectioner's sugar
4 tablespoons orange juice
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind

Let grated rind stand in fruit juice while you cream the butter, add the yolk and salt, and mix well. Add sugar gradually and blend. When about half the sugar has been added, alternate the rest with the fruit juice. Beat until smooth.

For an entirely different frosting of the butter type, try this recipe which substitutes cream cheese for butter:

CHOCOLATE WONDER FROSTING.

1 package [3 ounces] cream cheese
2½ tablespoons milk
2 cups confectioner's sugar
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
Few grains of salt

Soften the cheese with the milk. Add the sifted sugar, a cup at a time, blending after each addition. Add chocolate and salt and beat until smooth.

For angel food or delicate white or dark cake, a banana icing is attractive and delicious. Mix the pulp of one banana with one teaspoon of lemon juice and two cups of confectioner's sugar and stir well.

A hot cake, fresh from the oven, may be frosted on the spot by buttering the top crust and sprinkling it with a mixture of confectioner's sugar and either shredded almonds or coconut. Place the cake back in the oven for long enough to brown the nuts or coconut.

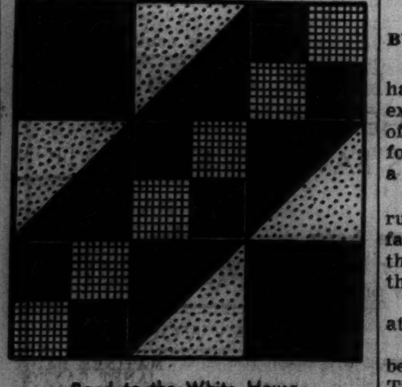
Old Nine Patch Pattern Quilt Has Ancient History

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.



Road to the White House.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The history of today's quilt pattern leaves plenty of room for guesswork and plenty of opportunity for dispute. In the first place, both Maine and New York take credit for originating it. More than that, none of the authorities are able to state for which of the Presidents it was made. "Road to the White House" is an old nine patch pattern and deserves a place in every album.

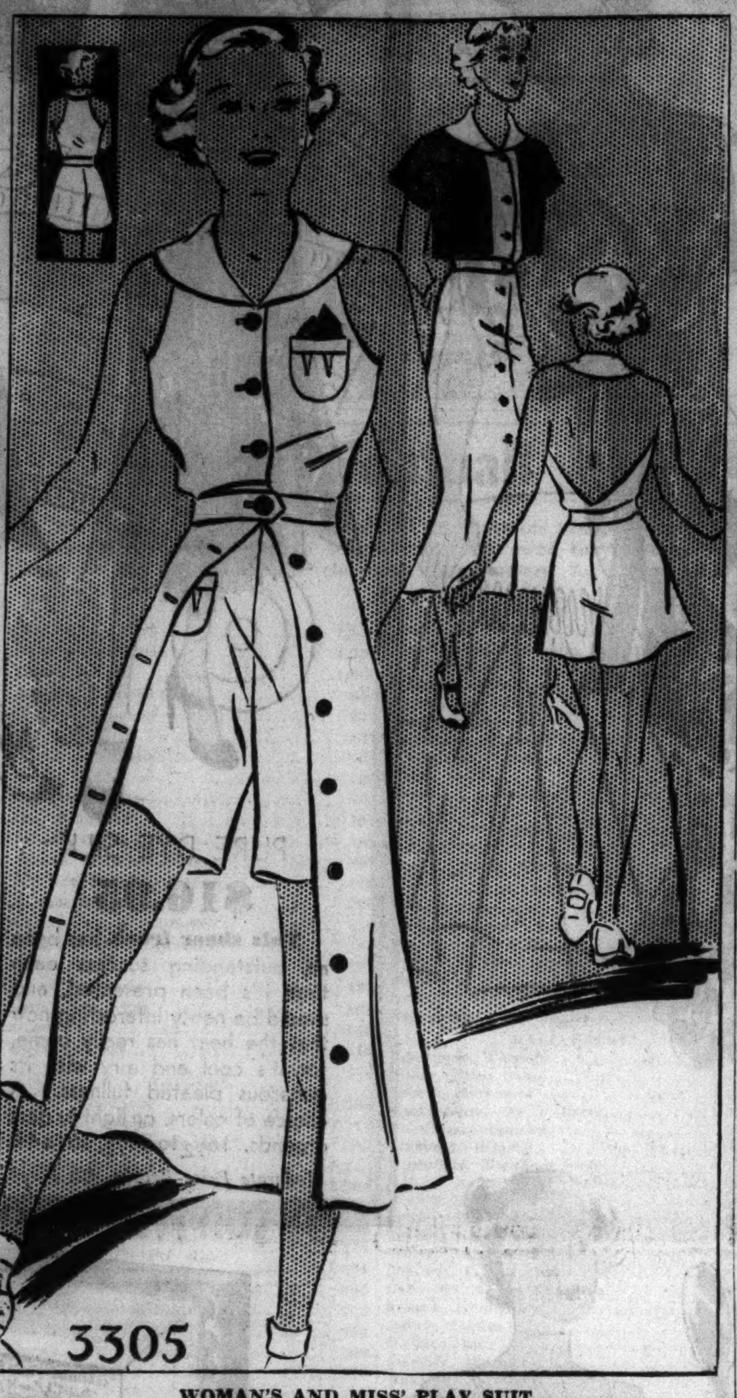
Four Piece Sports Outfit



WOMAN'S AND MISS' PLAY SUIT

Four pieces for sports! The variety of garments included in this pattern allows the wearer to adapt her clothes to the particular game which she is to play. For tennis she may wear only the top and shorts, donning the skirt and bolero later when she again is in the city streets. For golf she may wear the top, shorts, and skirt, while for general street and spectator wear the entire ensemble may be worn. When all four pieces are worn together the effect is that of a stunning tailored dress with accompanying bolero jacket.

There are two versions of the top. It may be a regular shirtwaist blouse with high back and comfortable armholes, or it may be a halter type topper with low back. Both versions have the smart and rather broad shirtwaist collar. The blouse, in either case, buttons down the front, to match the buttons and styling of the detachable skirt.

There are two smart pockets in the outfit, one on the blouse and a matching one on the shorts. The bolero has no collar of its own, but makes use of the attractive one on the topper.

The original of this ensemble is attractive in strawberry-rose cotton crash, with the little bolero in a darker shade with the same tone, a color resembling burgundy.

White cotton madras is another popular choice, with nautical blue buttons and pocket "hanky."

Style No. 3305 is designed for sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material for the shirt, shorts, and skirt, with 1 yard of 39 inch material for the jacket.

Happiness Results from Co-operative Spirit in This Family

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Resentment of the unnecessary unhappiness caused children often is expressed in letters I receive, many of them from wise onlookers. The following, from an aunt, is written in a good cause:

"I wonder what causes mothers to ruin a child's disposition by showing favoritism toward the new baby, thus arousing a feeling of jealousy in the older son or daughter.

"I have a nephew and two nieces at the ages of 18, 16, and 15.

"There is not now and never has been any jealousy between them. The boy was capable of getting clothes and helping care for little sister at his mother's bidding when the first little sister came along.

"This sister and big brother are pals today. They live on a farm, and she would rather be out helping him than doing housework.

"The oldest sister is quite a violinist, also exceptionally good in languages, and helped brother through his senior Latin while she was just a junior.

"They are simple children, raised in a home where mother and dad are pals—a home that knows the sting of poverty and the lack of many things their associates have, but no complaining.

PERFUME MADE OF MOONBEAMS

It is whispered that of all the gorgeous perfumes in this world, none is as charming as Rigaud's Un Air Embaumé . . . A perfume as regal as the queen who wears it. As romantic as the palpitating hearts of lovers in the moonlight.

Un Air Embaumé costs $6 an ounce in New York. Now also in a purse flacon at $1.15.

Badly Planned Clothes Spoil Girl's Looks

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"A pretty girl, but very badly dressed!" Just another of those frequent comments heard from a restaurant diner about a girl passing by! She WAS badly dressed, in colors badly assorted and lines lending too much bulk.

Attention is called to this common criticism for two reasons. First, to remind women that about 100 per cent perfection is expected of them today. Men don't say: "She's so pretty she doesn't have to care about dress!" Men are getting so clotheswise they aren't inclined to forgive a shiftless get-together of color and line. In fact, you find a little resentment, if the girl is pretty and she hasn't the sense to capitalize her prettiness with ultra smart dress.

The other reason is that beauty today, or what we keep on calling beauty, includes smartly planned clothes. And it will be but a short time now before you'll be planning the fall outfit. Resolve to plan on one good solor scheme for the fall suit, or coat and dress. You're going to have one completely perfect outfit from head to foot. No more dashing in and picking up an article without thought of what is to be worn with it.

I was talking with one of the smartest dress designers in town the other day who named a certain business woman in a large organization. She called her one of the best dressed women she knows and always a good looking woman, she added, indorsing the affiliation between dress and looks.

Countless numbers of women, the dress designer confided, could be many times better looking if they would take time with their wardrobes, and work out a definite plan. I asked for plan guidance.

"Decide on that one good outfit that's going to get the most wear—suit with blouse, or coat with dress. Know your best color. Ignore new, off shades unless you are a color artist. Get this basic outfit first and then plan your accessory items with the same deliberate care. From this one good start, you can branch out on your extras!"

The trouble with many women, she concluded, is that they are slapdash buyers [grabbing the first thing in sight] or emotional buyers who buy a dress just because they like it at the moment.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

There couldn't be a better time than midsummer to get acquainted with a remarkable new product for the hair. This steps up the shampoo, makes it more efficient, and leaves the hair soft and silky. Women with dingy hair; women whose scalps have a fatal fault of collecting debris and dandruff which the average shampoo can't dislocate effectively, and women whose hair is always unattractively dry and unruly after it's washed should make its use part of the hair cleansing ritual.

It isn't expensive and its use is simple. The product, which looks like a shiny white salt, comes in a glass jar, with a composition measuring spoon tossed in. One level measureful of it is dissolved in a glass of hot water; this is poured over the dampened hair and worked in slowly over the entire scalp BEFORE the soap is applied. Don't rinse it out—just continue to shampoo as you usually do, using a pure, bland soap solution or your favorite shampoo.

There will be this difference: you won't need to use so much shampoo solution as usual—and there will be enough lather to float the Queen Mary. Rinse as you always do [and we hope this is with a bath spray because they're so efficient!] and then you'll have the satisfaction of knowing for a certainty that your hair and scalp are completely CLEAN.

The dandruff is dislodged, there isn't a smidge of soap left to dim the luster and your hair, once dry, will have a sheen and softness that will make your fellow women envious.

According to CULBERTSON

THE FORCING TWO-BID.

An opening two-bid in a suit is the strongest bid in bridge, and is forcing to game. Your partner must respond, even if he has no card as high as a ten.

Since a game must be reached, you cannot safely open with a two-bid unless you consider your playing strength as well as your honor tricks. No two-bid ever should be made without at least four honor tricks, and usually five or more are required. In addition, the following formula must be observed:

Open with a two-bid only when your hand contains a biddable suit and MORE HONOR TRICKS THAN LOSERS.

Bargain Hunting.

With some trepidation I dedicate this article to my feminine readers. They, more than the men, I believe, are addicted to buying as cheaply as possible. An admirable trait, I must hasten to add, in the mundane walks of life, but not so good at the bridge table!

Take this hand, for instance.
South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 clubs	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 no tr.	[fin. bid]

With all the suits bid against him, West could not find a better opening than the fourth highest heart. Dummy's nine was played and, when East did not cover, declarer allowed the nine to hold. He then led a low spade to his hand. East ducked and the king won. The queen of spades went to East's ace and East now led the ten of clubs. Declarer covered, and West let him hold the trick. In order to cash dummy's good spades, declarer had to overtake his heart king with the ace. He cashed the spades and the heart queen, and then led up to his diamond K-Q. But East was "on the job." He put up the ace and shifted back to clubs. On the lead of the nine, declarer was helpless to avert defeat. Whether he covered or not, the defenders had to get three club tricks which, added to their two aces, defeated the contract.

As so often is the case, declarer defeated himself on his first play! He should have counted that the timing element would not permit the establishment of spade, club, and diamond tricks. The best chance was to play for four tricks in both hearts and spades, and only one in either of the minor suits. Thus he should have refused to buy the first trick so cheaply! Had he overtaken with his heart king, cleared the spade suit, and then finessed against the jack of hearts, his contract would have been undefeatable.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Is it true that a doubleton is a poor opening lead?

Answer: No. It often is a good one.

Hotel Playroom Will Be Scene of Sally Party

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Do you children remember the windows of the big department stores in the loop at Christmas time—all filled with toys and games and dolls and other fascinating things? Did you ever stand and wish for this and that and that? Well, how would you like to be turned loose in just such an array of things that every boy and girl in the world would like to own?

The Stevens hotel playroom is just like a toy display—without, of course, the tinsel and snow and sleds. There's a Santa Claus, though, in the person of Otto K. Eitel, managing director, who, although he isn't wearing a red suit or a white beard, is generously playing host to 100 lucky boys and girls who will attend a party there on July 23.

If you're looking for a chance to play with an electric train, a hobby horse, a completely furnished little doll house, dolls, carpenter sets, swings, modeling sets, fire engines—oh, I can't possibly tell you about half of the toys which will be available—I think you'd better try to win an invitation to this party and come with me and see for yourself!

In addition to all these playthings, we've arranged games of every sort, with prizes for the winners. Charles C. Peterson, world's champion fancy cue shooter who was so nice to my guests last year, will be present again this year. The room is equipped with numerous pocket billiard tables, and Mr. Peterson will teach and exhibit some of his trick shots and will award silver cups to the best boy and the best girl players.

If you think you'd like to come to this party, write me a letter telling why you think you'd enjoy yourself. If you can convince me that you're just the boy or girl for whom such parties were intended, you may see your name printed in next Sunday's TRIBUNE, which will carry the names of the 50 boys and 50 girls who will be my guests.

Our rules are few and simple: Each child must write his or her own letter; you must tell me your full name, address and age, and your letter must reach me not later than next Thursday morning. The address is just Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

All youngsters whose names were listed in my column on Sunday should have received personal invitations by mail. If your address was printed incorrectly or your letter hasn't come by tomorrow morning, please let me know at once.

Quick Help for Weak, Nervous Rundown, Skinny Women!

How Amazing New Sea Plant from Pacific Ocean Feeds IODINE-STARVED GLANDS Quickly, Renews ENERGY, Builds Glorious NEW STRENGTH, and ADDS 5 lbs. in 1 Week or No Cost!

Here's new hope and encouragement for thousands of tired, weak, worn out, haggard-looking women whose energy and strength have been sapped by housework and worry, who are nervous, irritable, always half-sick and ailing. Science has at last placed its finger on one of the principal causes of this dangerous rundown condition—IODINE STARVED GLANDS. When these glands don't work properly, all the food in the world can't help you. It just isn't turned into flesh. The result is, you stay skinny, rundown, ailing.

The most important gland—the one which actually controls body weight and strength building—needs a definite ration of iodine all the time—NATURAL ASSIMILABLE IODINE—not to be confused with chemical iodides which often prove toxic. Only when the system gets an adequate supply of iodine can you regulate metabolism—the body's process of converting digested food into firm flesh, new strength and energy.

To get this vital mineral in convenient, concentrated and assimilable form, take Seedol Kelpamalt—now recognized as the world's richest source of this precious substance. It contains 1,300 times more iodine than oysters, once considered the best source. 6 tablets alone contain more NATURAL IODINE than 486 lbs. of spinach or 1,387 lbs. of lettuce.

Try Seedol Kelpamalt for a single week and notice the difference. See flattering extra pounds appear in place of scrawny hollows. Notice how much better you feel, and if you don't gain at least 5 lbs. in one week the trial is free. Seedol Kelpamalt costs but little to use. Your own doctor will approve this way. Try it today. Sold by all good stores.

Manufacturer's Note:—Inferior products imitating the genuine Seedol Kelpamalt are being offered as substitutes. Don't be fooled. Demand genuine Seedol Kelpamalt Tablets. Results guaranteed or money back.

to De Mille; Gladys Rosson, the No. 1 De Mille secretary; Margaret Timm, Bill Pine, formerly of a Chicago theater chain, and Al Wilkie of New York.

Ivan Lebedeff, Mrs. Adelaide Jones, and Ralph Goetz joined the celebrators from the latter's yacht Conquista. Mr. and Mrs. Skeets Gallagher chartered the yacht Wanda and cruised to the pageant. Mrs. Gallagher [Pauline Gallagher] and her business partner, Bebe Daniels, have opened a dress shop at Avalon. This makes four women's wear shops Pauline and Bebe have opened. Other guests aboard the Wanda included Mr. and Mrs. Buster Cellier, Mae Sunday [formerly Mrs. Billy Sunday Jr.], Wesley Ruggles, Bill Haines, and Carolyn Newell.

Claudette Colbert and her husband, Dr. Joel Pressman were there. Mr. and Mrs. William Goetz and Director George Cukor cruised to the island on Baron Long's yacht, Norab. Freeman Gosden [Amos] and Mrs. Gosden sailed to the island as guests of Milton Bren, actors' agent, on the yacht Gitana, and Johnny Hoble, who wrote "My Little Grass Shack," was the guest of David M. Renton, official of the island company.

Donald Crisp is tinkering up the old bus and packing his traveling kit for his eighth consecutive combination solo vacation and exploratory trip. This time he is going to drive through Indo-China. Crisp is actor, writer, and director. The sandy haired Scotsman, with the yerning for far places shining out of his light blue eyes, made a "deal" with his wife, Scenarist Jane Murfin, seven years ago.

The "deal" was that it would be good for Crisp's health and peace of mind to visit distant and interesting places while Miss Murfin, who is one of Hollywood's most sought after and highly paid scenarists, thought her health and welfare would be better preserved by staying here.

In the carrying out of this agreement, Crisp already has motored, strolled, and bicycled through all countries of the British Isles, all the Scandinavian countries, Italy, and Egypt. He boards a tramp steamer and starts to Indo-China as soon as he completes his part in Katharine Hepburn's "Portrait of a Rebel" at R. K. O.-Radio.

When Radio studio needed 100 extra girls to wear up-to-date white evening gowns for a scene in Astaire-Rogers' "Swingtime," the studio learned, to its surprise, that there weren't that many "dress extras" [$15 a day] among the film girls with such gowns. The studio itself had to scurry around and rent and borrow gowns for extra girls to wear.

Arthur Schwartz, composer, has arrived from London and New York to do the music score for Lily Pons' second movie, story based on "Street Girl" and new title not yet chosen. The film will be launched next month. This film will be turned out at Radio studio, which in the last year has completed other musicals containing music by Irving Berlin, Jerome Kern, and Vincent Youmans.

Louise Beavers, the big colored girl who made such a hit in "Imitation of Life" that it ran her salary up to a figure that hampered her in getting more parts, is back before the camera, playing with Mary Boland and Charlie Ruggles in "Wives Never Know" at Paramount.

When we visited the set Miss Boland was doing the inevitable scene in negligee. Ruggles was a sorry sight with left eye black, hat muddy, and dirty spots over his blue serge coat and trousers, which indicated he had met with some misfortune. Miss Boland was taking Charlie's arm and helping him carefully down a long, winding staircase while she sought in a deceptively soft and soothing voice to extract the details of how he got so banged up.

LOSS OF INCOME SEEN AS KEY TO A. F. OF L. PEACE

Personal Quarrels May Block Compromise.

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—Varying reports on the possibility of a split in the American Federation of Labor were heard tonight after a week-end of informal conferences among federation leaders.

The federation's executive council is slated to vote Tuesday on a motion to suspend the United Mine Workers and 11 other unions affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Although 16 of the council's 17 members are out of sympathy with the committee's aim—to organize all workers in each big industry into one big union—a minority thinks it would have an adverse result on the American labor movement to oust the committee members and the 1,000,000 workers under them.

Bitter Feelings Run Rife.

These minority members, led by George M. Harrison, president of the Railway Clerks, faced bitter personal feeling, as well as a difference of opinion on the fundamental issue, when they tried to win a stay in suspension.

William Hutcheson, president of the powerful Carpenters' union, was said to insist that the miners be suspended. John L. Lewis, president of the Mine Workers, knocked Hutcheson down at the last A. F. of L. convention after heated debate on a motion to keep the craft unions out of the mass production industries.

Arthur Wharton, president of the Machinists, also was said to be a leader among the majority favoring suspension. Animosity between Wharton and Lewis has developed from the three year fight over industrial unionism.

Income Is Peace Lever.

Some observers continued to contend, however, that the majority would be won over to a policy of delay before the vote was taken. Not only the loss of members but the loss of more than $10,000 a month income to the federation would figure in the decision, they said.

Others were equally certain the Harrison group's peace efforts would fail. Feeling ran too high to permit delay, they contended.

Textile Strike Threat Grows.

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—The threat of a strike of 100,000 workers in the woolen and worsted industry loomed larger today after the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, through its president, Arthur Besse, refused to negotiate with the union on its demands for higher wages and improved working conditions. Besse reiterated his statement of two years ago that the association could not represent its members in connection with their individual relations with employés.

The Federation of Woolen and Worsted Workers of America, affiliated with the United Textile Workers of America and the American Federation of Labor, has mapped strike plans in anticipation of the manufacturers' refusal to negotiate.

Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America, announced last May that he would "direct the fight" and that Francis J. Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers, who led the national strike of nearly 500,000 textile workers nearly two years ago, would "secure statistical facts to show the public that the woolen and worsted workers are victimized and exploited."

DROWNS IN DES PLAINES RIVER.

William Frank, 35 years old, 20 East 33d street, colored, was drowned yesterday in the Des Plaines river at Willow Springs road when he went swimming alone.

150 ARE SAVED AS STEAMSHIP GROUNDS IN FOG

Bar Harbor, Me., July 12.—(AP)—Between 150 and 200 passengers were taken off the steamship Iroquois when the New York bound vessel went aground on Bald Porcupine Island, one mile south of Bar Harbor, early today. The passengers were removed by the tender Normada.

A dense fog contributed to the grounding of the steamship, which was freed by the mine sweeper Owl.

Officers of the Iroquois said a hole eight feet long and three feet wide was stove in the bow ten feet back from the prow.

Collide in Harbor.

Boston, Mass., July 12.—(AP)—The Eastern Steamship liner Yarmouth and the freighter Losmar, proceeding slowly in a dense fog, collided today in Boston harbor. A score of the Yarmouth's more than 200 passengers and two members of her crew were bruised.

The impact tore a hole in the lumber laden Losmar, of the Calmar Line, below the water line. The steel hull plates of the Yarmouth were ripped open above the water line, leaving a gash twelve feet long and about three feet wide.

Both vessels docked later. None of the passengers who reported injuries, Eastern Steamship officials declared, accepted medical treatment.

Flyer's First Concern Is Cost of Smashed Barn

Los Angeles, Cal., July 12.—(AP)—Down crashed the airplane several hundred feet—against a barn. Out of the wreckage stepped Pilot C. L. McHolland, 21, a bit groggy and asked the first to reach the scene: "Did I damage the barn?" A smile spread over his face when he was assured the only damage was a badly smashed plane and a slightly bruised pilot. "I don't earn much and it would have been hard to pay for it," he said.

EX-POLICEMAN SLAYS SELF.

GOPHER STARS LEAD ALL-AMERICAN FOOTBALL POLL

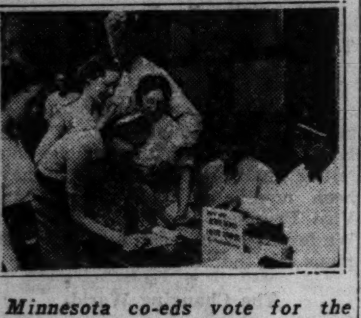
FANS HONOR MEN WHO HAVE YET TO BE BEATEN

Half Back Race to Be Close.

BY ARCH WARD.

Minnesota's graduating football players, none of whom ever has played in a losing game, are scoring heavily with the fans of the nation. First returns in the poll now being conducted by 180 newspapers to pick a team of College All-Americans for the game with the Detroit Lions at Soldiers' field Sept. 1 show seven regulars from last year's undefeated Gopher eleven among the leaders.

The significant thing about today's standings is that the vote includes no ballots from Minneapolis and St. Paul, where five newspapers and two or three radio stations are soliciting expressions from the fans. The returns are principally from Chicago and territory within a radius of 200 miles.



Minnesota co-eds vote for the Gophers and Bernie Bierman. Every Minneapolis fire station is an All-Star polling place.

Dick Smith Leads.

The most popular player thus far is Dick Smith, Minnesota tackle, who received his early training at Rockford High school. Smith has a wide lead over Galbreath of Illinois, Spain of Southern Methodist, Reynolds of Stanford, Wasicek of Colgate, and Lutz of California, all of whom were sectional or national favorites last fall. Glen Seidel, Minnesota quarter back, is the other Gopher leading the voting at his position. It is doubtful, however, whether Seidel could hold his place if he were dependent upon Chicago territory for his support, because Smith of Alabama, Pincura of Ohio State, and Fromhart of Notre Dame are at his heels.

Other Minnesota players who are running strong are Oech, guard; Rennebohm, center; Roscoe and LeVoir, half backs, and Beise, full back.

It is not surprising that Minnesota's athletes are drawing a handsome vote. Few college players have attained greater success. In their three years of varsity competition Minnesota didn't lose a game. The Gophers played four ties in 1933 and won all their games in 1934 and 1935.

Bierman Is Popular.

If any of the seven Minnesota seniors fails to make the starting lineup for the game against the world's professional champions it will be no fault of football fans in the northwest. The Minneapolis Journal, Minneapolis Star, Minneapolis Tribune, and the St. Paul News and St. Paul Pioneer Press are exhorting their readers to vote the Gopher ticket straight.

Football leaders in the Twin Cities predict that Coach Bernie Bierman will pull more votes from Minnesota in the coaches' poll, which will open in two weeks, than either President Roosevelt or Gov. Landon gets in the November election. If this develops, Minnesota will take rank with Alabama for football enthusiasm. Frank Thomas, who won the coaches' poll last summer, received 155,000 more votes in Alabama than President Roosevelt did in the Democratic landslide of 1932.

The player poll has particular importance this year because the men chosen by the fans will start the game and will remain in the lineup until the coaches decide they are physically unfit or deem it necessary for strategic reasons to make substitutions. There is a possibility that one or two players picked by the fans will be unable to join the squad, and there also is the danger that a man may be incapacitated during training. In either case, the No. 2 man at that position in the fans' vote must be given the honor of starting the contest.

Pilney Runs Well.

It is apparent that the battle for half back positions will be hot and heavy. When alumni and civic groups begin to operate there is no telling what the final standing will be. Jay Berwanger, brilliant back field star of University of Chicago's last three teams, is in front this morning, but his margin over Andy Pilney of Notre Dame, George Roscoe of Minnesota, and Bill Shakespeare of Notre Dame is almost negligible. All of these players are certain to run well everywhere because of the national prestige they acquired in their undergraduate days. Shake-

Chicago Girl Named on U. S. Swim Team

New York, July 12.—(AP)—Eighteen of Americas greatest women swimmers, one-third of them veterans of international competition, were selected today for the United States Olympic swimming team.

Leading the team, which is expected to sail intact on the S. S. Manhattan with full funds next Wednesday, were 19 year old Katherine Rawls of Miami, who qualified to compete in three events; Mrs. Eleanor Holm Jarrett of New York, 1932 Olympic champion in the 100 meter back stroke, and Mrs. Dorothy Poynton Hill, Los Angeles, who will represent the United States in the three meter and high platform dives.

Two Three Timers.

Mrs. Jarrett and Mrs. Hill won places on the Olympic squad for the third time, both competing in the 1928 and 1932 teams. Mrs. Jarrett is the only swimmer in this country's history to make three teams. Mrs. Hill and Helen Meany, who also had done it three times, are divers.

Here are the members of the United States women's Olympic swimming team in order of finish in each tryout event with the winners' times:

100 METER FREE STYLE—*Katherine Rawls, Miami Beach, 1:11.1; Bernice Lapp, Newark, N. J.; Olive McKean, Seattle, Wash.; Mavis Freeman, New York; *Dorothea Dickinson, New York; Elizabeth Ryan, New York. [First four also to swim in 400 meter relay with Dickinson and Ryan as alternates.]

*On 1932 American Olympic team.
†On 1928 and 1932 American Olympic teams.

Two alternates on the 1932 United States team and three national A. A. U. outdoor champions failed to make the 1936 squad. The former Olympic team members who failed were Norene Forbes, Los Angeles, who was eliminated in today's final of the 400 meter free style, and Anna Mae Gorman, Homestead, Pa., who was defeated in the 100 meter backstroke final.

Claudia Eckert Fails.

The three national champions to fail were 16 year old Olomay [Toni] Redfern, New York girl who upset her field to win the 100 meter free style title last month; Claudia Eckert of Chicago, A. A. U. three meter springboard diving titleholder, and Ruth Jump, Los Angeles, winner of the A. A. U. platform dive crown. Summaries of today's events:

HIGGINS BREAKS WORLD MARK IN OLYMPIC SWIM

Warwick, R. I., July 12.—(AP)—Only financial worries remained for the United States Olympic men's swimming committee today when Johnny Higgins of Providence climaxed the final tryout competition by giving a world-record breaking performance in the 200 meter breast stroke event.

Higgins forced his powerful butterfly strokes to pull him to the finish wall in 2 minutes 41.1 seconds with 10 yards to spare on his closest rival, Jack Kasley of the University of Michigan. The best previous time ever made anywhere in the world for this event in a 50 meter pool was the 2:41.2 turned in by Reizo Koike just before he left Japan for Berlin to train for the defense of his Olympic title. Koike's 2:44.9 victory at Los Angeles in 1932 is the Olympic record.

Kiefer Breaks Record, Too.

Higgins was the second to improve a world mark during the tryouts and the third to get under an Olympic mark. Last night Adolph Kiefer, 18 year old Chicagan, clipped a tenth-second off his own world record and came seven-tenths of a second under the best Olympic time when he won the 100 meter backstroke final in 1:07.5.

The other performance that delighted the Olympic committeemen was the 4.47.8 victory of Ralph Flanagan of Miami, Fla., last night in the 400 meter free style. This was seven-tenths of a second faster than the Olympic record.

After the last of the final tryouts the 200 meter free style, which was captured by Paul Wolf, Los Angeles, in 2:17, the four committeemen present named nineteen swimmers and five divers, who qualified in Chicago on July 4, for the United States Olympic forces.

Striving to Raise Funds.

The action must be approved by the full committee of thirteen, which now is striving to raise sufficient funds for Coach Bob Kiphuth of Yale and Manager Ed Kennedy of Columbia to take a team of twenty-four to Berlin.

The others to win Olympic assignments today were Kasley and Ray Kaye of Detroit, who placed second and third behind Higgins, and six of the seven 200 meter free style finalists.

They were Wolf, Charlie Hutter of Harvard, who was second; Ralph Gilman, Alameda, Cal.; James Gilhula, Detroit; R. A. Cooke Jr. of Yale, and Tom Haynie of the University of Michigan.

200 METER BREAST STROKE—Won by John Higgins, Providence; Jack Kasley U. of Michigan, second; Ray Kaye, Detroit, third; Kenneth Degnan, New York, fourth; Mike Sojka, Buffalo, fifth; Jack Gorman, Cleveland, sixth. Time, 2:41.1 [fastest ever made in 50 meter outdoor pool, best previous mark was 2:41.2, set by Toike of Japan].

200 METER FREE STYLE—Won by Paul Wolf, Los Angeles; Charles Hutter, Harvard, second; Ralph Gilman, Almeda, Cal., third; Jim Gilhula, Detroit, fourth; R. A. Cooke Jr., Yale, fifth; Tom Haynie, U. of Michigan, sixth. Time, 2:17.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Rip Radcliff of the White Sox got six hits in nine times at bat yesterday to move up to second place in the Big Six with an average of .379, only five points behind Lou Gehrig of the Yanks, who lost ground by getting only two hits in eight times at bat.

Baxter Jordan of the Bees pulled up to a third place tie in the National league with Dolph Camilli of the Phillies, getting one hit in four times at bat for a .347 mark. The standings:

Albritton and Johnson Jump 6 Ft. 9 3-4 In. at Olympic Trials

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—America flung out her challenge to the rest of the world today with a series of magnificent performances as the final Olympic trials were staged before a capacity crowd of 21,000 in the new Randalls Island stadium.

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Out of the blazing competition the American Olympic track and field team emerged, the strongest ever to represent the United States in international competition. Two world records, two American marks, and three Olympic standards—seven in all—gave ample testimony of the overwhelming strength that this country will send next Wednesday to Berlin.

The Records Broken.

Here are the high spots:

1. Cornelius Johnson and Dave Albritton, colored jumpers with kangaroo legs, broke together the world high jump mark with unbelievable twin leaps of 6 feet 9¾ inches.
2. Jesse Owens, the incomparable, shattered the world 200 meter record around one turn with a superb 21-second-flat performance.
4. Glenn Hardin cracked the American 400 meter hurdles record with 0:51.4.
5. Forrest Towns dipped under the Olympic high hurdles time with 0:14.3.
6. Glenn Cunningham went under the Olympic 1,500 meter standard with 3:49.9.
7. Earle Meadows, Bill Sefton, and Bill Graber broke the Olympic pole vault record, tying at 14 feet 3 inches.

Five world records holders failed to make the team—Ben Eastman in the 800, Bill Bonthron in the 1,500, George Varoff in the pole vault, and both Walter Marty and Ed Burke in the high jump.

The standout athlete was Owens with three places on the team, both sprints and the broad jump.

The only double qualifiers were Don Lash in the 5,000 and 10,000 meter runs and Bob Clark in the broad jump and decathlon.

Jumpers Take the Play.

But in all the deeds of achievement there was none that could quite take the play away from the two colored jumpers. Upward the bar moved and upward they moved with it. They left Delos Thurber of Southern California behind at 6 feet 6 inches, his place on the team secure.

Then together they cleared 6 feet 8 inches and the cross piece advanced to the unbelievable height of 6 feet 9¾ inches, higher than man ever has jumped before. Each missed once, then Johnson poised himself on the runway, off to the right. With cautious bounding stride he approached and then took off. His body rolled cleanly and down he came into the sawdust. There was an expression of utter amazement on his features as he gazed at the stil motionless bar. He looked as surprised as a swimmer who had just accidentally swallowed a fish.

Radio announcers led him over to a microphone and the still bewildered Cornelius muttered a few incoherent words into it. But before he was given a chance to realize what had happened, Albritton, seven or eight shades darker, gathered himself in the runway to the left.

The Ohio State ace had not even

Eyston Sets New Records on Salt Beds

Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, July 12.—(AP)—World automobile speed records fell like tenpins tonight before Capt. George Eyston and his two ton Speed of the Winds. At least five marks had been broken as the English driver completed the first 10 hours of a grind that may run 48 hours.

Capt. Eyston did the first 500 kilometers in a reported 153.302 miles per hour, bettering the record of 151.32 miles per hour of his countryman, John Cobb. He traveled the first 500 miles at 152.343. Cobb's official record is 147.66.

Runs Out of Gas.

Then he went on to cover 600 miles in 152 miles per hour, against Cobb's unofficial mark of 144.64; 1,000 kilometers in approximately 152 miles per hour, against the old record of 145.01; the 1,000 miles in 152.138 against the old of 144.93.

Has Relief Driver.

Eyston lost 16¾ minutes pushing his car to the pit after it ran out of gas, but raced on to break the 2,000 kilometer record of 144.21 with 151.944 miles per hour. At 1,500 miles his average was 148.266 miles per hour.

Radcliff Hits Homer in Each Battle.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—Old Ted Lyons stepped out of the tintype era this afternoon and spread panic among the league leading Yankees. With a flash reminiscent of his palmy days, the veteran swung the whitewash brush, his White Sox pals meanwhile galloping to a 5 to 0 victory in the first half of a double-header. After that it was different, the first placers triumphing in the second battle, 5 to 4, as the result of a lathering administered to the left handed Italo Chelini.

Some 36,000 spectators who ceded Lyons was a talented performer in the opening battle also had to get up and acknowledge that Rip Radcliff was quite a hitter. He defended his place among the league's ranking stick artists with four safeties, one a homer, in the Chicago victory. And in the second fight he continued to prove the stadium is his paradise. He came up with another single and his second homer, giving him seven home runs for the season.

Radclift Is Big Gun.

The second struggle was decided right at the start. The Yanks landed on Chelini for five runs in two innings, but Dykes, satisfied with one victory and appreciating the shortage of pitchers, permitted the young man to hang around and gather experience. Chelini did an about turn by yielding only three hits after the third. Meanwhile his mates, with Radcliff's second homer and triples by Bonura and Luke Sewell, struggled valiantly to catch up on Bump Hadley, but they couldn't make it.

The four top hitters of the league were in action in the first battle, and three of them in the second, but Radcliff was the only one to show a profit. His fellow hit artist, Luke Appling, was restricted to one hit in seven appearances. Lou Gehrig, the leader among the big four, had eight chances to promote the Yankee cause, but produced only twice. Bill Dickey, the other half of the Yankee power plant, disappeared from action after the first game. He harvested nothing in four efforts against the uncanny pitching of Old Man Lyons.

FIRST GAME

The bespectacled Broaca restricted the Sox to one hit in the first three innings. He also held them to one hit in the fourth inning, but this whack did a lot of damage. Haas led off with a pass and Bonura sacrificed. Appling also walked. Hayes lined into right center for two bases, Haas and Appling running home.

Radcliff Smacks One.

In the fifth, with one out, Mr. Radcliff did his bit. He banged his sixth homer over the right field fence, giving Lyons a 3 to 0 edge. Appling and Dykes collaborated to make it 4 to 0 in the sixth. Appling opened with a two bagger over third and Hayes bunted to Broaca, but Appling wisely decided to remain at second. Dykes stepped into Broaca's first pitch and knocked it into center for a single, Appling scoring. Sewell hit into a double play, started by Rolfe.

The first time that Lyons had heavy work on his hands was in the second. Selkirk and Powell singled after two were out. Ted emerged unscathed by fanning Lazzeri.

Dykes Flags Hard Drive.

The fifth was a bit more serious. Powell opened with a two base fly close to the right field line and moved to third when Lazzeri followed with a single. Broaca was set down on a soft tap to Lyons. Then the Sox veteran enjoyed a break. Dykes flagged a whistling liner off Crosseti's bat and tossed to Hayes to double Lazzeri off second.

The Sox greeted Murphy with three hits in the eighth, but only one man

FRENCH WINS NO. 8; WARNEKE IS ROUTED IN 2D

41,693 See Double Header.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Erring shortstops were the heavy villains in yesterday's double-header between the Cubs and the New York Giants. Three of the runs which enabled the Cubs to beat the Giants, 4 to 2, in the first game bloomed after Dick Bartell dropped an easy pop fly which should have been a third out. A wild toss by Bill Jurges on a double play ball blew Lon Warneke out of the arena in the seven run second inning of the second game, which resulted in an 8 to 6 New York victory, thus halting the Giants' losing streak at six straight.

The contests were witnessed by an overflow turnout of 41,693 paying guests, most of whom stayed for strikeouts by Bill Herman and Augie Galan which terminated the afternoon's entertainment at 7:12 o'clock.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

The Cubs were especially aggravated by the outcome of the second game, for if they had been victorious they would have gone back into first place, inasmuch as the tail-end Brooklyn Dodgers jolted the league leading Cardinals, 6-3, and 11-4, at St. Louis. But Chicago sorrow in this regard is not so deep, at that, for on this bright Monday morning the Cubs are only two percentage points behind the Cards.

French Is Deserving.

Larry French registered his eighth victory of the season in the first game and pitched well enough to earn the reward, even though it technically was unearned. Clay Bryant relieved Warneke, following a flash appearance by Roy Henshaw, after the second inning blowup, and did the best pitching of all the gents who worked on both sides.

While Bartell's amazing lapse gave the Cubs an opening in the third inning of the first game, the boys had to do some nice socking off Hal Schumacher after Bartell had thrown open the gate. This took the form of a double by Frank Demaree and a single by Phil Cavarretta, with the bases full.

Though the Cubs were quick to seize opportunity in the first game they were indeed punchless many times in the second game after the second inning had put the heat on them. They made fifteen hits and had fifteen left on bases. There wasn't an inning in which from one to three Cubs weren't left stranded on bases.

Bryant Settles Down.

Warneke had been knocked out of four games successively previous to yesterday. He went into the second inning leading 2 to 0 yesterday. If Jurges had completed the double play for which he was trying when he made his grievous toss Lon would have escaped the inning with a 2 to 1 lead, even though he'd been nicked for three singles before the accident. Two more singles happened and Lon went away.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Roy Henshaw came in to walk Hank Lieber on five pitches and he, too, was bounced. Then Bryant had trouble putting out the fire, after which he did his excellent pitching the rest of the way.

FIRST GAME

The jitters theme bobbed up in a big way in the Chicago half of the

Granville, Memory Book, Mr. Bones Shipped.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The three intrepid musketeers—Granville, Mr. Bones, and Memory Book, all that is left of a once formidable army of eastern 3 year olds—will come swashbuckling into Arlington Park today to joust for the still unclaimed crown of their division in the $35,000 Classic stakes to be run one week from next Saturday afternoon.

Their arrival nearly a fortnight before the running of the race is due to two circumstances.

In the first place their trainers want to have them here in plenty of time to become acclimated and go through their final training drills over the Arlington course, a track on which none of them has ever raced.

Fillies Come for Lassie.

Secondly, the powerful stables which they represent—Belair stud, John Hay Whitney, and Greentree stable—are all sending their star 2 year old fillies here for the $40,000 Lassie stakes to be run on Saturday. And so it was more convenient to make the transfer from east to west in one big shipment.

Three three musketeers—one the winner of the Belmont stakes, another the hero of the Withers, and the third a record smasher at Suffolk Downs in the recently run Yankee stakes—will find stiff opposition awaiting them here.

If they win out in the Classic they will have to vanquish Hal Price Headley's Hollyrood, Warren Wright's pair of Count Morse and Sun Teddy, E. K. Bryson's fast filly Carvola, the California colt Valiant Fox, Col. Edward Bradley's Bow and Arrow, and the two colts, The Fighter and Sangreal, owned by Mrs. Ethel V. Mars.

All Are Battle Scarred.

These western ranks, however, are also battle scarred. Once in the front line with the mighty warriors mentioned above were such gallant campaigners as Coldstream, Grand Slam, and Indian Broom. They, too, have fallen by the wayside, although Grand Slam is still around and there's some talk of him going in the Classic if mud comes up.

The iron horse Rushaway is also a Classic possibility. He is in New England, and inasmuch as his trainer Al Tarn learned long ago that horses cannot win races if they are left in their stall, Rushaway probably will be whisked back west for a try at this pot of gold.

So many things have happened in the 3 year old ranks this year that the Classic once again shapes up as the event out of which will come the recognized champion. It was just so in these other renewals of the Classic that proved beyond a reasonable doubt that Blue Larkspur, Gallant Fox, Cavalcade, and Omaha were the best 3 year olds of their year.

Richest Filly Stake.

The Lassie stakes coming up on Saturday is the richest race in the world fashioned exclusively for 2 year old fillies. Hal Price Headley's Apogee's great race in the Hyde Park stakes last Saturday, in which she was beaten by a narrow head by Nation's Taste for all the money, probably will send her to the post as the favorite. A lot of Chicagoans, however, believe the Tranquility Farm stable's Challite will take her measure.

BOXER IS NAMED BEST IN SHOW AT LAKE GENEVA

Lake Geneva, Wis., July 12.—[Special.]—Fire of Mazelaine, a Boxer dog imported from Germany last January by Kenneth Candee, Milwaukee, tonight was named the best dog of the 389 entered in the first annual show of the Southern Wisconsin Kennel club.

Gopher Stars Lead in Nation Wide Ballot

speare, who comes from Staten Island, New York, is expected to roll up a heavy vote in the New York Herald Tribune poll.

One of the surprises in the early voting is the strength of Bill Crayne, Iowa full back, who is leading Beise of Minnesota and Grayson of Stanford. Grayson was an almost unanimous choice of All America pickers last fall. The coast player probably will move up when returns from San Francisco, Oakland, Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle, and other voting centers are filed.

WALDORF'S BALLOT

"My selections have been made almost exclusively on the basis of Northwestern's 1935 games," Waldorf said.

"It may be that there are several men of greater reputation, but I feel sure that whoever coaches this team could relax and watch them work. The back field is particularly well balanced."

Coach Waldorf's team follows:

ENDS—Wayne Milner, Notre Dame, and Frank Loebs, Purdue.
TACKLES—Dick Smith, Minnesota, and Bob Reynolds, Stanford.
CENTER—Gomer Jones, Ohio State.
BACKS—William Shakespeare, Notre Dame, Dick Crayne, Iowa; Sheldon Beise, Minnesota, and Wally Cruice, Northwestern.

WARBURTON'S PICKS

Los Angeles, Cal., July 12.—[Special.]—Cotton Warburton, for three years a back field star at Southern California and a member of last year's All-American football squad which opposed the Chicago Bears in the annual All-Star game, today cast his ballot for the 1936 College All-Star eleven. Here's how Cotton voted:

ENDS—Topping, Stanford, and Milner, Notre Dame.
TACKLES—Smith, Minnesota, and Lutz, California.
GUARDS—Wetzel, Southern Methodist, and Oech, Minnesota.
CENTER—Lester, Texas Christian.
QUARTER BACK—Smith, Alabama.
LALF BACKS—Berwanger, Chicago, and Hamilton, Stanford.
FULL BACK—Grayson, Stanford.

Cotton said: "I have heard that the Detroit Lions think they can beat a gang like the above by three touchdowns. Well, they can't. All the All-Star coaches need to do is put a bunch of those Minnesota linemen in there and I don't know whether anybody can talk about beating them. Those Minnesota boys are powerful."

Cotton is a film cutter and technical assistant at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, Culver City. He also has launched on a career as a foot ball official.

ST. ADRIAN WINS EIGHTH STRAIGHT IN C. Y. O. LEAGUE

SIX TURNVEREIN GIRLS TO RACE IN TRIBUNE SWIM

Trials to Be Held in Two Pools This Week.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Today's mail will complete the list of contestants for THE TRIBUNE'S preliminary 100 yard free style swimming races at Cermak pool and Whealan pool this week-end. Letters postmarked before midnight will be accepted.

If you wish to compete in the seventh annual races there still is time. The third and final qualifying sectional will be held at the Lincoln park lagoon July 25. Entries for these races will be accepted until midnight Friday.

Qualifiers in the ten age class events for boys and girls will meet in the finals Sunday afternoon, July 26, at the Lincoln park lagoon.

Yesterday's mail brought the entry of six contestants from the Lincoln Turnverein. The entries were submitted by Coach Walter R. Moore, who will have his team in the Lincoln park preliminaries. The Lincoln Turnverein team is composed of Anna Voelker, Marie Voelker, Ruth Pilz, Roy Bauman, Wilma Neuman, and Meta Neuman.

Hopes to Repeat Sister's Victory.

Another interesting note was received from Billie Nicholson, who will compete in class A. She wrote, "My sister, Jackie, won The Tribune swim three years ago, and now I hope to do the same thing this year." Even if Billie is not successful in winning a gold championship medal, she will receive a gold medal if she is one of the 180 qualifiers for the ten title races July 26. Moreover, she also will be awarded a merit button for swimming 100 yards and a ribbon badge if she wins her first trial race.

THE TRIBUNE races were planned originally to encourage swimming by all boys and girls rather than to emphasize the superior ability of a few. This ideal has been maintained. In the last six years more than 10,000 boys and girls have won merit buttons. At the same time the sixty contestants who have won championships have been rewarded with handsome gold medals. Silver and bronze medals are the prizes for the second and third places in each of the ten finals.

Send in Entries Now.

Five days remain in which to file an entry for this year's trials. Even if you believe you will not win a championship prize, and even if you have had no experience and believe you can't win one of the 180 gold qualifying medals, it is worth the effort to prove your ability and win a merit button. Perhaps next year you will advance to the championship class.

Lomski, Boyle Clash Tonight at Marigold

Leo Lomski tonight will make his fourth appearance at Marigold gardens, Broadway and Grace street, and his fifth in his current comeback campaign in an eight round return bout with Eddie Boyle of Cleveland. The old Aberdeen Assassin, terror of the light heavyweights a few years ago, defeated Boyle in a great battle at Marigold May 25. Lomski weighed 184 pounds on that occasion, 8½ more than the Cleveland youngster. Both may be a little heavier tonight.

Lomski scaled 186½ when he scored a three round technical knockout over Adolph Wiater June 8 and was at 185 against George Vallas, whom he defeated in five rounds May 18. He fought ten rounds to a draw with Ford Smith at Red Lodge, Mont., July 4.

Ali Baba and Paul Shikat will be opponents in a heavyweight mat windup tonight at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. They will meet for one fall with a 60 minute time limit. Ken Fenlon faces Mike Kilonis, Rudy Kay tackles Ernie Peterson, Red Vagnonne clashes with Jack Kogut, and Phil Grueber opposes Hans Bauer.

Tigers Trade Reiber, Catcher, for Myatt

Philadelphia, Pa., July 12.—(AP)—Acting Manager Del Baker of the Detroit Tigers announced today the trade of Frankie Reiber, catcher, to Montreal for Glenn Myatt, catcher, who has had experience with the Cleveland Indians and the New York Giants.

Five Killed as Woman Racer's Car Turns Over

SAO PAULO, Brazil, July 12.—[Special.]—Five spectators were killed and 19 injured in a sensational accident at the automobile speedway here today, when the machine driven by Helle Nice, French woman racer, turned over and threw her 65 feet. It was feared her injuries were fatal.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

WAKE MAIL BOX.

DEAR WAKE: I am a White Sox fan but not anti-Cub. Except in the intercity series contest I pull for Grimm's team. Now I think the Cubs will outlast St. Louis for the pennant, but some way I feel that if St. Louis won the pennant it would have a better chance against American league champions than the Cubs would.

In short, I like the Cubs for a season's effort but I don't like them for a short journey like a world series. What I wonder is whether I'm just a record book follower or whether I'm right. Can you or any one else set me right if I'm wrong?—Al Hefford.

[Editor's note—We think it was pretty generally conceded that a break in their favor might have won the last world series for the Cubs. We leave answer or argument on this season's outlook to Cub standpatters, if they care to answer.]

I was pleased with your comment on the outcome of the Schmeling-Louis contest because it came nearer my own views than others. Obviously Louis was overwhelmingly outclassed that particular night. He met a man eight years older who was just as powerful a hitter and who proved a more clever boxer, whose more experience and more wideawake mind was too much for the sluggish and purely instinctive gropings of Louis.

The trouble with the guessers was that they vastly overestimated the element of youth. Youth is fine, but who has in life seen any figure that had reached maturity at 22?

The important thing, however, is what will Joe Louis do now? Engage in another fight with Schmeling or some one else in September? That is nonsense. It wasn't an accident that defeated Joe. It was immaturity. Let him play for a few months, develop a nervous system [he falls asleep too easily] and let him sit at the feet of the best boxers in the world until he becomes so conscious of every possible move in offense and defense that it will be impossible for him to "forget to duck" or to forget anything. In other words, Joe needs to grow up. Then he may well become world champion.—J.

DIZZY DEAN TO BE OUT OF GAME FOR ONE WEEK

St. Louis, Mo., July 12.—(AP)—The mighty Jerome Herman Dean is laid up for a week.

Under protest, the Cardinal's star pitcher remained abed today nursing an egg-size bump raised on the side of his head when he was knocked unconscious yesterday by a line drive from the bat of Burgess Whitehead, Giant second baseman.

"Diz is all right today," said Mrs. Dean after persuading her husband he could not see today's double-header with the Dodgers. "He still has that bump, but his head doesn't ache until he tries getting up."

Dr. Robert Hyland, club physician, left Mrs. Dean guarding the door against visitors and told Diz to stay in bed for a day or two. Hyland said he could not say immediately how long Dean would be confined. He indicated Diz might resume mound duties in a week.

DODGERS BEAT CARDS TWICE, 6 TO 3 AND 11 TO 4

St. Louis Pitchers Hard Hit in Both Games.

St. Louis, Mo., July 12.—(AP)—Brooklyn's cellar riding Dodgers trounced the Cards twice today, trimming the St. Louis National league lead to a half game as the Cubs split a twin bill with New York.

A fifteen hit splurge gave Brooklyn the second game, 11 to 4, after Van Lingle Mungo and George Jeffcoat let the Cards down with six hits to win the opener, 6 to 3.

Detroit Whips Athletics, 7-2; Bridges Hurls

Philadelphia, Pa., July 12.—(AP)—Tommy Bridges, who was overcome by the heat in St. Louis a week ago, made his first start since then today and pitched the Detroit Tigers to a 7 to 2 victory over the Athletics in the opener of the series here.

Bridges kept eight hits scattered while the Tigers were getting twelve off Carl Doyle and Pete Naktenis. Puccinelli and Rogell hit home runs.

INDIANS, 5; RED SOX, 2.

Boston, Mass., July 12.—(AP)—A three run rally in the ninth inning, featured by Earl Averill's fourteenth home run of the season, gave the Cleveland Indians a 5 to 2 victory over the Red Sox here today. A crowd of 13,500 saw the game.

Johnny Allen won his eighth pitching triumph of the year, holding the powerful Sox to four hits and striking out nine.

THE Cincinnati hotel which houses the Cubs always provides glamorous quarters for Secretary Bob Lewis, because he likes to dress harmoniously. . . . If he has the mandarin suite, Robby wears Chink pajamas. . . . If he has the colonial suite, he wears a George Washington night shirt, etc., etc. . . . But regardless of other scenery, when the Cubs visit Cincinnati in mid-August, Mr. Lewis is going to costume himself as a Mexican hairless, he says. . . . Archie Williams, University of California's 400 meter record breaker, failed to earn his track letter in high school. . . . He says his young brother, now in high school at Oakland, is the best athlete in the family. . . . G. A. Richards, owner of the Detroit Lions, who will meet the College All Americans at Soldiers' field Sept. 1, will sail this week for the Olympic games. . . . Potsy Clark, coach of the Lions, will look after all details of the team's preparations for the All Star game. . . . George Wright, who was a member of the famous Cincinnati Reds team of 1861, attends at least one game nearly every week in Boston, although he is over 80 years old. . . . The Turkish government's program to encourage sport includes the building of the country's first golf course at Ankara. . . . Armand Emanuel, former fighter, is running for assemblyman in California. . . . scored. Bonura started with a single to center and moved to second on Appling's infield out. Hayes popped to Lazzeri, after which Dykes dumped a lazy single into short left, Bonura scoring. Dykes loped to third on a single to right by Sewell, but Lyons fouled out.

SECOND GAME

Generosity was the main ingredient in the three runs with which the Yanks opened the second battle. Chelini started his day's work by walking Crosetti and Rolfe. After Di Maggio had lofted to Haas, Gehrig singled past Bonura to score Crosetti and put Rolfe on third. Rolfe registered on a double by Hoag. Powell walked, filling the bags, and when Lazzeri was given a free ride Gehrig scored. Glenn then fouled to Sewell and Hadley bounced to Appling.

Cheili didn't have a chance to walk anybody in the second. The Yanks hit him without giving him time to put together any free tickets, two scoring. Crosetti led off with a single which put another notch in Dykes' well marred shins. Rolfe doubled, sending Crosetti to third. Chelini struck out his fellow townsman, Di Maggio. Gehrig bounced out to Bonura, Crosetti scoring. Rolfe skipped home on a single by Hoag. Powell bounced to Dykes for the third out.

Hadley Gets Piet's Liner.

The Sox began to assert themselves against Hadley's pitching in the fifth, when Radcliff hit his seventh homer of the season and his second of the day over the right field barrier. Two more Sox runs were scored in the sixth. Haas was safe on an error by Lazzeri and scooted around to the plate on Bonura's triple to right. Bonura scored on Appling's fly to Powell. Then Hayes walked, but the Sox weren't able to do anything about the gift.

After being quiet for a couple of innings, the Sox broke out in the ninth, but subsided with the tying run still missing. Sewell led off with a triple to left. Piet batted for Chelini and was out on a wicked liner which Hadley captured in self-defense. Radcliff made a bid for his seventh hit of the afternoon, but was thrown out after a great stop by Crosetti behind second. Sewell scored on the play. Rosenthal also grounded to Crosetti to end the day's labors.

Washington Park Ties for Lead in Cricket

Washington Park went into a tie with Winnetka for first place in the Illinois Cricket association yesterday by defeating Lake Forest, 109 to 99. In other league games Chicago defeated Winnetka, 82 to 57, and Oak Park beat Evanston, 180 to 141.

Cubs Send Lee Against Giants; Seeks 8th Victory

Bill Lee will go after his eighth victory of the season for the Cubs in this afternoon's game with the New York Giants. He will be opposed by Smith, Hubbell, or Schumacher.

The Hartnett presentation exercises before the first game yesterday were a grand success. First Gabby was presented the most valuable player plaque, the award of the Baseball Writers' Association of America. Then Vice President John O. Seys of the Cubs gave the big fellow a diamond ring, the gift of the club, after which Gabby's teammates presented him with a radio.

The Cubs this afternoon will complete the first half of their 154 game schedule. They will start the day's business with a chance to celebrate by going into first place in the National league standings.

third inning. Hack walked, held first while Herman flied to Ott, and went to second on Galan's roller to Leslie. Hartnett popped a fly to Bartell, who waited for the ball to come down as he assured his teammates and the populace at large that he was going to make the catch. He did not make good his announcement. The ball popped out of his glove. Hack was home with the tying run and Hartnett was safe at first. Demaree then slammed a double into the left field overflow, Hartnett stopping at third. Gill walked, filling the bases. Cavarretta lined Schumacher's first pitch to center for a single, scoring Hartnett and Demaree and putting Gill on third. Schumacher made a nice play near the left foul line to get Jurges' grounder and threw him out.

Some Little Dispute.

There was much excitement in the Cub half of the fourth. French lifted a fly to Davis, then the fun started. Schumacher pitched a low one to Hack and then took out his grouch against Bartell on Umpire Ballanfant. The next pitch was low and outside and when Ballanfant called it properly, Schumacher went into a frenzy, making threatening gestures and possibly using some saucy words that he would not want his Aunt Emma to hear.

Manager Terry and other members of the Giant cast, who also have been pretty sick, backed up the Schumacher squawk. The game was delayed five minutes and when it resumed Schumacher was on the way to the bathhouse to lave his fevered brow. Gabler took his place and pitched two more wide ones to complete the pass to Hack. Then Herman hit into a double play.

Leiber Gets Around.

Leiber and Leslie, who had been on third and first with none out in the second and fourth innings, developed the same picture in the sixth with a couple of singles. Leiber scored while Herman, Jurges, and Cavarretta were executing a double play on Mayo's grounder. Mancuso walked, but Bartell popped to Jurges.

Cavarretta walked to start the sixth, paused while Jurges flied to Ott, took second on French's sacrifice, and scored on Hack's single to center. Hack was caught trying to steal second.

SECOND GAME

The Cubs hopped off to a two run lead in the first inning of the second game. Hack walked and went to third on Herman's single to left, Herman reaching second on the throw to third while Whitehead was tossing out Galan, and Herman scored on O'Dea's single to right.

Here's the way they knocked out Warneke in the second inning. Ott bunched a single over Hack's head and went to third on Leslie's single to center. Mayo popped to Herman, but Spencer singled to center, scoring Ott, and when Gill fumbled the ball Leslie reached second. Bartell grounded to Jurges, who, hurrying too much for a double play, threw the ball into right field, Leslie scoring, Spencer reaching third, and Bartell second.

Henshaw Takes a Bow.

Gumbert singled to center, scoring Spencer and Bartell. Whitehead singled to right, Gumbert stopping at second. Henshaw replaced Warneke and walked Leiber on four pitches, filling the bases. Bryant replaced Henshaw. Davis batted for Ripple and flied to Galan, Gumbert scoring and the other runners advancing. Ott was given an intentional pass, again filling the bases. Leslie doubled to left for his second hit of the inning, scoring Whitehead and Leiber. Mayo was given an intentional pass, filling the bases. Spencer then popped to Herman.

Giants Get Another.

With two out in the eighth, the Giants got around to adding to their total. With one out Whitehead doubled to right and stole third. Leiber drew his fourth straight pass, but Davis popped to Jurges. Bryant got two strikes past Ott, then Mel singled to left, scoring Whitehead.

Here's the way the Cubs scored three runs and had the tying runs on third and first in the eighth: Hack opened with a single and stopped at second on a single by Herman. Castleman replaced Gumbert at this juncture. Galan flied to Davis, but O'Dea walked, filling the bases. Demaree singled to center, scoring Hack and Herman and putting O'Dea on third. Gill singled to left, scoring O'Dea and Demaree stopping at second. Cavarretta forced Gill, Demaree stopping at third. Castleman's first two pitches were wide, but the next three were in there and Jurges fanned.

Bees Defeat Pirates, 6 to 2, in Ten Innings

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 12.—(AP)—The Boston Bees pushed across four runs in the tenth inning off Cy Blanton to defeat the Pirates, 6-2, in the first game of their series today.

Hal Warstler opened the tenth with a single. Eugene Moore sacrificed, and when Gus Suhr threw late to second both runners were safe. Baxter Jordan sacrificed and both runners scored when Blanton tossed wild to third. Rup Thompson and Tony Cuccinello followed with one base hits to send Jordan across the plate. Thompson was out at home on Hal Lee's infield tap, but Joe Coscarart drove Cuccinello in with a single.

NORTH SIDERS WIN FINAL OF POLICE GAMES

Capture Third Battle by Heavy Hitting.

South side policemen twice yesterday at Comiskey park were on the verge of righting some of the wrongs done them by their coöfficers of the north side, but in the end the north side triumphed, thus making a clean sweep of the three games for the baseball supremacy of the department. The sdore was 12 to 11.

The South Side took a commanding lead in the first half of the game, the count being 7 to 2 in their favor after five innings, and with Big Ed Dennis hurling in style the game seemed safe. But the North Siders began nicking the big southpaw in the sixth and then in the seventh drove him to the showers. Budil came to his rescue but the Northmen scored six runs before order was restored. In the seventh the South Siders scored four runs to take command again. Mike Delaney, who had beaten the South Side in the first game in eleven innings, came in cue and stopped the enemy.

In the first of the ninth the North Siders again pulled the game out of the fire with a three run rally. All told there were 34 base hits, 17 on each side. A crowd of close to 10,000 watched the struggle.

BRITISH STRIVE TO REGAIN TRADE IN SO. AMERICA

Merge Banking Interests as Part of Drive.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 12.—A British drive to rehabilitate its South American business is seen in a fusion last week of British banking interests. The old Anglo-South American bank disappears and a single institution with more than eighty branches henceforth will conduct British banking in South America.

Its directors, from what is disclosed here, are seemingly going to compete on a heavier scale with American banking institutions in South America, as it is announced that part of the banking operations henceforth will be to finance local enterprises, as well as trade between South American countries and Great Britain. Much study is being given here just now as to South American markets.

South America Changing.

South America, on the testimony of many students and travelers, is rapidly changing its industrial and commercial habits. Whether or not the changes are altogether in the direction of solid prosperity, the process is lively.

In a recent German official classification of countries of the world into those on the economic upgrade, those on a level and those on a downgrade, the most important South American countries, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru, Ecuador, and Colombia, are in the upgrade class and none is in the downgrade class.

Those reporting here on South American affairs concur in drawing attention to the growing importance of internal South American business as against business produced for overseas markets and the inward and outward shipping of goods in overseas trade.

Manufactures Being Expanded.

The Bank of Brazil, in its 1935 report, particularly stresses "the great expansion in national manufactures in most big centers," mentioning the textile, metallurgical, electrical, and cement industries. Expansion of industries producing for domestic requirements would obviously bring an increase in coastal shipping trafic. This, too, the Bank of Brazil places on record.

In Argentina, too, industries have been newly started or expanded to replace previously imported goods. Manufacturers of types of cement, paint, scents, chemicals, dyes, and the large development of electrical power generation and textile production were singled out as typical new specializations in this wealthiest of South American nations.

Warner Brothers Pictures.

Investors' Guide: I have 100 shares of Warner Brothers Picture stock. Will you please give me information concerning this company and how it rates in the amusement industry?—A. W. M.

Answer: Begun in 1915 as a partnership of the four Warner brothers, this was a relatively small company before 1928. Then, as a pioneer in the development of sound pictures, it grew rapidly to become one of the leading, completely integrated concerns in the movie industry—being engaged in production, distribution, and exhibition of pictures.

A chain of 600 theaters was quickly built up, but many turned out to be highly unprofitable ventures because of purchase at 1928-'30 prices and the subsequent declines in values and in theatergoing. As a result many have been sold or abandoned.

The gain in theater attendance in the last two years has increased both box office receipts and film rentals to lift the company out of the red after a highly unprofitable period.

About one-third of film rental income is derived from foreign business.

Operating income was up to $17,516,000 and net was $1,976,000, or 48 cents a share, in the twenty-six weeks ended Feb. 29, 1936, compared with $15,072,000 and loss of $134,000 in the twenty-six weeks ended Feb. 28, 1935. The earnings record for fiscal years ended Aug. 25 to 31:

1935	$31,419,000	$ 674,000	$ .07
1934	26,829,000	*2,531,000	*.77
1933	23,504,000	*6,292,000	*1.76
1932	23,046,000	*14,095,000	*3.81
1931	36,371,000	*7,919,000	*2.18

*Indicates deficit.

Litigation over royalties was settled in 1934, and an anti-trust suit involving Warner's was dismissed in June, 1936, to clear up involved situations.

Though still heavily burdened, the company has trimmed its funded debt from $88,600,000 to $79,600,000 in the last two years. Negotiations are reported under way to refund the $31,924,000 of 6 per cent debentures, due in 1939, with a 4½ per cent issue.

Capitalization consists of 103,107 shares of $3.85 dividend no par preferred and 3,701,091 shares of common stock. The company's outlook has been substantially improved, but the stock still must be considered a speculation.

The deficit in the profit and loss surplus account still amounted to $12,276,000 last Feb. 29, though cut from $19,547,000 in two and a half years through settlement of suits and making various other adjustments.

You may Borrow as much as You can Budget

How much can you borrow? — that may be the question. If it is, let us say that this bank may lend any amount of money from $50 to $325,000 (the top number is the limit under the banking law — 15% of our capital and surplus) ◆ ◆

What is your limit? Your limit is how much you can budget. We make loans usually for one year—then you, the borrower, save up or budget so that there is enough on hand to meet the note when it falls due ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

RFC ANNOUNCES CUT IN INTEREST RATE ON LOANS

Average Charge to Be Under 3.6 Pct.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, which has lent approximately a billion dollars, announced today that interest rates would be lowered on outstanding loans. The reduction will be as of July 1 and adjustments will be made. Jones said the average rate will be less than 3.6 per cent.

JESSE JONES.

Jones declared that the slash could be made because an operating reserve had been accumulated that was sufficient to cover contingencies. The reductions were announced as follows:

Rate to banks and receivers of banks reduced from 4 per cent to 3 per cent.

To industry the rate will range from 4 per cent to 5 per cent, depending upon the character of the loan and the circumstances of the borrower. The rate heretofore has been 5 per cent.

For Mining Industry.

To the mining industry the rate will be reduced from 6 per cent to 5 per cent.

On real estate by the RFC Mortgage company the rate will range from 4 per cent to 5 per cent, depending upon the character of the loan. The rate heretofore has been 5 per cent.

The rate to the Commodity Credit corporation will be reduced from 3 per cent to 2½ per cent, enabling a reduction to its borrowers.

Rates to the following borrowers will be reduced from 4 per cent to 3½ per cent: Insurance companies, mortgage loan companies, credit unions, live stock and agricultural credit corporations, joint stock land banks, state funds for insurance of deposits of public moneys, loans for repair of property damaged by flood, earthquake, or other catastrophe; loans to finance the carrying and orderly marketing of agricultural commodities, and building and loan associations except where the home loan bank rate is higher.

Accumulates Operating Reserve.

"We are able to make these rates because, in the opinion of our directors, it appears we have accumulated an operating reserve sufficient to cover contingencies," said Chairman Jones, "and due to the very low rates at which the treasury is now able to borrow, the treasury rate to this corporation has been reduced to 2¼ per cent, effective July 1, 1936, which rate is still substantially above the cost of money to the treasury on maturities of less than ten years, within which time our loans should be liquidated.

"Our average interest rate for the last year has been approximately 3.6 per cent, and these reductions will bring the average still lower. All reductions will be conditioned upon a borrower [except a borrower in receivership] meeting his interest and principal payments promptly as they mature, and complying with other existing conditions relating to interest reductions, and will be allowed so long, but only so long, as his payments are promptly made. These rates and conditions should enable our borrowers to liquidate their debts to the corporation without unduly cramping their operations."

Organized in 1932.

When the huge lending agency was set up in February of 1932, Jones recalled, the interest rates were fixed at 6 per cent for railroads and 5½ per cent to nearly all other borrowers. At that time the treasury charged the RFC 3½ per cent for its advances. This rate was reduced in 1933 to 3 per cent and to 2¾ per cent in 1934.

The treasury rates were set at time to time to cover the cost of money to the treasury for the estimated period necessary to liquidate the RFC loans.

Steel Output Above Usual Summer Rate

Although a decline is noticeable in new specifications following the opening of the third quarter, steel consumption is still relatively heavy for this season, with steel works operations last week at 69½ per cent of plant capacity, the magazine Steel said yesterday.

The journal reported operations are now up to the level that prevailed just prior to the July 4 holiday week and the markets are stronger than was expected a few weeks ago. Although the possibility of a general steel strike this summer is becoming more remote, the labor situation has encouraged some moderate buying.

Farm implement and tractor plants have reduced operations slightly because of the season, but no serious consequences from the drouth are expected unless it becomes prolonged.

Demand for Wire Increases.

The magazine pointed out that wire producers have found their volume of business exceeding expectations for this time of year, demand having increased steadily throughout the last three months. Machine tool buying is holding up well, with a slight increase in bookings and inquiries. Tin plate mills are operating between 95 and 98 per cent of capacity.

A strong undertone was apparent in the markets for plates, shapes, and reinforcing bars, with the outlook favorable for brisk shipments. Railroad freight car builders experienced a good week, according to Steel, with domestic awards totaling 2,146 cars. The current demand for automobiles indicates July output may be only about 20 per cent below June.

Scrap was slightly stronger last week and steel's price composite went up 4 cents to $12.79.

Output Largest Since 1930.

Steel ingot production during the first six months of this year was the largest for any comparable period since 1930, totaling 21,326,335 gross tons, an increase of nearly 33 per cent over the 16,042,651 tons in the same period last year, according to the journal. Operations averaged 62.29 per cent, compared with 46.75 per cent in the like 1935 period. The June rate at 69.83 per cent was the highest for any June since 1929.

Operations in the Pittsburgh district were up last week 2 points to 64 per cent of plant capacity; eastern Pennsylvania, 3 to 49; Wheeling, 4 to 69; Cleveland, 13½ to 84½; Buffalo, 2 to 86; Youngstown, 10 to 74; Detroit, 10 to 100, and Cincinnati, 15 to 80. Birmingham was down 6½ points to 52 per cent, and New England, 12 to 68. Other districts were unchanged.

SEES 2½ BILLION DOLLAR SALES FOR FURNITURE

The furniture industry will have a two and a half billion dollar sales volume this year, it was predicted yesterday by Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the American Furniture mart, as the Chicago July furniture market entered its second week. Part of the growing volume of business is due to the fact that furniture dealers and department stores have expanded their lines to include all home furnishings and appliances.

The Merchandise mart reported 6.785 registrations for the first week and the American mart passed the 6,600 mark, bringing the latter attendance within 700 of the two weeks' attendance total of a year ago. Both marts are expected to report attendance by tomorrow evening that will surpass the total attendance highs of previous shows.

The fall market will be held from Nov. 9 to 14 to avoid conflict with the national elections, and the major winter market will be from Jan. 4 to 16.

Over 4 Billion U. S. Issues Will Mature Within Year

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Obligations of the United States government in the hands of the public which will mature within twelve months amount to $4,156,582,800. They consist of treasury bonds, notes, and noninterest bearing discount bills.

SHARE PRICES RISE DESPITE DROUTH, HEAT

Some Issues Reach Six Year High.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—Speculative sentiment continues predominantly bullish in spite of the growing seriousness of the drouth, an intense heat wave that has driven many traders to the resorts, the threat of a major strike in the steel industry, and the more or less disturbing influence of the national campaign.

Price averages rose nearly 3 points last week and numerous individual issues were bid up to the best levels in approximately six years. Volume increased moderately on the movement, turnover for the week exceeding 6,500,000 shares, the heaviest total since the week ended May 2. Yesterday's aggregate of 867,180 was the largest for a Saturday session since April 18.

Industrials in Demand.

Industrial shares were again the prime favorites and the group as a whole finished the week at a new high for the year. In the last two or three trading sessions of the period the steels were in good demand, recovering most of the ground lost earlier on fears of a strike. The turnabout of the group reflected a growing belief in the speculative community that the controversy will peter out without any great detriment to the industry on the whole. Farm equipment issues, and to some extent the mail orders, which are popularly classified as agricultural stocks, were under some pressure on account of the drouth. The same applied to the issues of railroads catering to the drouth area.

Other carrier issues, however, met with uniformly good demand, being stimulated by statements indicating that passenger as well as freight trafic volume is showing substantial gains compared with a year ago. Freight loadings reported on Friday were larger by 38 per cent, in spite of an intervening holiday, than in the same week of 1935, and 25 per cent above 1934.

Hot Weather Shares Gain.

Some of the so-called hot weather stocks, including Coca Cola and some of the liquors, performed impressively, and the automobiles had a good week, with Chrysler setting one new high after another.

Good earnings figures helped the utilities group and new price highs for the year were of almost daily occurrence in the division. Consolidated Edison, Standard Gas, American Power, and Electric Power and Light were prime favorites. Edison was made to look a little better by a belief in Wall street that the La Guardia administration will be a one term affair.

Business statistics of the week reflected the holiday recession, but also gave emphasis to the consistent gains over the corresponding period of last year. Those gains are especially marked in steel, the automotive trades and in railroad transportation.

TWO BRIDGE BOND ISSUES WILL GO ON SALE TODAY

Stifel, Nicolaus & So., Inc., A. C. Allyn & Co., Inc., and Kenneth H. Bitting Co., Inc., will offer publicly today $2,332,000 of 3¾ per cent toll bridge revenue bonds of St. Charles county, Mo. The bonds, dated June 1, 1936, and maturing on July 15, 1956, will be priced at 98½ and accrued interest.

A. M. Lamport & Co. will offer today $1,300,000 of Middlesex county, Conn., 1½ per cent Middletown and Portland bridge construction bonds, series B, dated July 1, 1936, and due serially on July 1, 1937 to 1946 at prices to yield from 0.25 to 1.50 per cent, according to maturity. These bonds are to be issued for construction of a bridge across the Connecticut river between Middletown and Portland.

WHOLESALE BUSINESS CHECKED BY DROUTH; OTHER LINES ACTIVE

While the first real effects of the drouth were felt in local wholesale channels last week as rural areas began to curtail purchases, other branches of business here reported favorable activity, the Chicago Association of Commerce announced yesterday.

The falling off in rural buying was not drastic, but many observers feel that a continuation of the dry spell may play havoc with consumer buying in the affected agricultural regions. On the other hand, farmers who have harvested their crops at the new high prices are extremely optimistic.

Retail activity here maintained the level of recent weeks. Many stores cleared their shelves of summer clothing and there were no signs of diminishing demand. Furniture buying, boosted by the shows here, was the best in a decade, and both retailers and wholesalers benefited from the demand.

Employment in industry continued upward, and some concerns made unusually heavy commitments for future supplies, many orders being for 1937 delivery, due to anticipated higher prices. Railroads and other businesses connected with vacation travel reported the best year since 1930, surpassing the spurt during the World's Fair of 1933.

REPORTS ASSET GAIN BY UTILITY AND INDUSTRIAL

Net assets of the Utility and Industrial corporation as of June 30, 1936, totaled $4,162,322 as compared with $3,527,795 on Dec. 31, 1935, an increase of $821,527, according to a statement sent stockholders yesterday by John J. O'Brien, president. This was equivalent to $5.50 per share on the convertible preference stock as of June 30 as compared with $4.28 per share on Dec. 31.

The six months' report shows gross income of $29.597, operating expenses and interest charges of $28,785, leaving a profit from operations, exclusive of net charges, of $812.

Stockholders were notified that a special meeting will be held on Aug. 18 for the purpose of considering and voting upon a proposed amendment of the certificate of incorporation to change the present no par convertible stock to $7 par value and the present no par common stock to $5 par value. It was stated that these changes will result in an annual saving in tax payments and will in no way affect the rights of the preferred or the common stock holders.

Heat Wave Boosts Demand for Beer Tin Containers

New York, July 12.—(AP)—Reports in Wall street quarters today said demand for tin containers for beer has risen sharply as a result of the heat wave. American Can company was said to be shipping at the rate of 18,000,000 cans a week.

Rail Pension Board to Mail First Checks

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—The first checks under the railroad retirement act of 1935 will go out to 18 pensioners tomorrow, it was announced by the railroad retirement board today.

Murray W. Latimer, chairman of the board, disclosed that 4,000 railroad workers were eligible for the monthly annuities and more than 20,000 others had made application. The board is working overtime to certify eligible workers with the treasury.

Decision of Court.

The recent decision of the Supreme court of the District of Columbia holding the railroad tax act invalid does not affect the retirement act, Latimer declared. Justice Jennings Bailey, who rendered the decision, held that the special tax on employers was illegal, but that the levy could be continued on the employés. The court said the payments could be distributed.

The railroad retirement benefits are payable without relation to the financial position of the recipient to railroad workers who on reaching the age of 65 years retire from employment, or who retire after having been employed for 30 years or more and have attained the age of 50, or who have been retired for incapacity after 30 years of service.

Largest Is for $91.04.

Of the first 18 annuities certified to the treasury the largest was $91.04 and the smallest $13.35. The $91.04 check is in the mails addressed to Thomas Biddle Strain of Johnson City, Tenn. Strain of Johnson City reached his 73d birthday; he worked on railroads for fifty-four years. He was retired from the East Tennessee and Western North Carolina railroad on May 31 of this year.

Funds for payment of the pensions are being provided from $46,685,000 which congress appropriated for payments for one year. It was assumed that this amount would be returned to the treasury from a 3½ per cent tax on railroad pay rolls and a similar levy on workers' salaries. A Supreme court ruling on the subject can be reached before the present congressional appropriation is expended at the end of the fiscal year.

Ceremony to Mark Start of Work on Wieboldt Store

Ground will be broken at 2 p. m. tomorrow at Lake street and Harlem avenue, in Oak Park, for the sixth department store in the 53 year history of the Wieboldt organization. A number of notables will take part in the ceremony. The Wieboldt organization plans to spend $2,000,000 for land, construction, fixtures, and merchandise before the store is opened next February. The exterior of the building will be of moulded colored glass, without the conventional windows. On the roof will be a pool circulating water from an artesian well to assist the air conditioning.

WHEAT HARVEST WILL BE BELOW NATION'S NEEDS

U. S. to Import Grain for Fourth Year.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The failure of the spring wheat crop means that the United States harvest will be insufficient to meet the requirements of the domestic market. It is the fourth consecutive year that the country has had to depend on foreign grown wheat to meet home consumption. Canadian wheat is already coming over the border despite an import duty of 42 cents a bushel and prospects suggest purchases will continue.

On the basis of the department of agriculture's July 1 production estimate the yield of 638 million bushels would be roughly equivalent to annual domestic cosumption. When the adjustment of supply and demand is so close, however, it is usually necessary, and profitable, to bring in foreign wheat.

More Damage Since July 1.

The 638 million bushel production estimate for all wheat does not take into account the deterioration that has taken place since July 1 in the northwestern states. The outlook for the crop at the beginning of the month after four weeks of drouth was not favorable and the condition since that time has grown steadily worse.

Based on July 1 conditions the government statisticians figured production of spring wheat at 126 million bushels. This figure must be reduced by a substantial amount to reflect today's condition. Even a slight cut would bring the total harvest below estimated domestic requirements of 625 million bushels.

The estimate on winter wheat of 512 million bushels would stand because the harvest was well under way when the government made its calculations. The hot, dry weather in recent weeks, while detrimental to certain crops, has been ideal for the harvesting of winter wheat.

World Wheat Supply Small.

With the decline in the wheat crop prospects in this country and Canada in recent weeks the world wheat outlook has undergone an important change. Based on recent world supply figures of the department of agriculture it would appear that the world supply for the current crop season will be the smallest in more than a decade. Including surplus stocks carried over from preceding years the indicated world supply will aggregate in the neighborhood of 4,076,000,000 bushels. This is exclusive

STOCKHOLDERS GOT THEIR DIVIDENDS!

MONEY . . . Your Servant
A man — or a people — must not forget that money is only a medium of exchange designed to facilitate and simplify the manufacture and distribution of goods and services. Money is rightfully the servant of man — not the master — and has no value beyond the things it represents, no purpose other than to be of economic use . . . as in this case.

THIS particular company buys hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of materials. Almost all of the bills that come in carry the familiar 2% 10 days—net 30. And the company always takes the discount.

Money borrowed from Live Stock National is often used for this purpose. An analysis of their last year's financial report reveals that earned purchase discounts equalled the portion of net earnings available for dividends. Thus, in a sense, money from the bank helped to pay the company's dividend—to the profit of the company, its stockholders and the bank.

Live Stock National is always ready to help responsible firms and individuals by making loans for any sound purpose. We welcome your inquiry . . . whether you are a customer of the bank or not.

LAY INDUSTRIAL CONTROL LAWS TO RURAL STATES

Legislation Is Reviewed by Manufacturers.

"Most of the measures designed to impose new burdens upon industry and to centralize in our federal government control over the internal management of industry and the economic life of our citizens generally were initiated by members of congress from nonindustrial states," a statement by the Illinois Manufacturers' association said yesterday.

In a review of congressional legislation to be sent today to members of the association, it is pointed out that during the two sessions of the congress which adjourned on June 20 a total of 5,452 bills and resolutions was introduced in the senate and 14,292 in the house. House committees in the two sessions made 2,891 reports and senate committees made 2,456 reports.

Sees Economic Life Controled.

"Congress continued to conform to the new philosophy of government adopted in recent years which contemplates lodging in the federal government the control, direction, and regulation of the economic life of all of our citizens," the association said.

"Many representatives in congress from nonindustrial states are not conversant with the real problems of industry. Nevertheless they want to arrogate to themselves the authority to tell business men how they should run their business.

"It is also significant that two of the principal leaders in rushing the drastic corporation tax bill through congress were Representative Doughton of North Carolina and Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, both from nonindustrial states."

Cites Many Bills Passed.

In the last session 966 bills were passed, of which 900 have been approved by the President to date.

As a few instances where actual or proposed governmental restriction of industry had as its foremost proponents legislators from nonindustrial states, the association cited the Patman-Robinson price discrimination act, the Wheeler bill to give the federal trade commission broad investigatory powers, the so-called stream pollution bill, thirty hour week legislation, the O'Mahoney licensing bill, and various proposals for constitutional amendments designed to give congress power to regulate business, manufacturing, and labor relations.

LUMBER ORDERS SHOW DECLINE FOR 12TH WEEK

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—The National Lumber Manufacturers association reported today a total lumber production of 203,558,000 feet at 509 mills during the week of July 4. For the twelfth consecutive week new orders were reported below current production with booked orders of only 187,902,000 being listed during the week ended July 4. Shipments were attributed to the midsummer closing of many mills, in some instances of several days for the Fourth.

The association reported that the week ended with the industry at 57 per cent of the 1929 weekly production average, and 64 per cent of 1929 shipments.

Banks Cut Interest Rate on New York Borrowings

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—The city will pay only 1½ per cent interest on its borrowings in anticipation of tax collections for the second half of 1936, Controller Frank J. Taylor announced today. The banking syndicate with which the city made its general financing agreement in 1933, Taylor said, has voluntarily made its third cut in the interest rate since 1933 because of the city's improved credit position. Originally the rate was 4 per cent. The new rate, effective July 1, represents a cut of 25 per cent from the 2 per cent rate charged for tax anticipation borrowings for the first half of this year.

Electrical Household Equipment Sales Expand

A survey by Poor's Publishing company says expanding sales of electrical household equipment point to moderately higher earnings for manufacturers of electrical supplies this year. During the first five months of 1936 sales of electrical refrigerators totaled 1,204,188, compared with 943,948 in the like 1935 period. Electric washing machine shipments ran 24 per cent ahead of the 1935 period.

Mueller Brass 6 Months' Profit Is $1.71 a Share

New York, July 12.—(AP)—Mueller Brass company, manufacturer of brass products, reports for the first six months net income of $368,333, equal to $1.71 a comomn share, compared with $224,787, or $1.04 a share, in the same 1935 period, a gain of 64 per cent. Gross for the period increased 33 per cent.

of Russia, from which no dependable statistics can be obtained. It includes the southern hemisphere crop which will be harvested in the last three months of 1936, with present indications of an increase of about 25 per cent over last season.

Crops Below World's Needs.

The estimated world production this season is 3,426,000,000 bushels, compared with the average for the last ten years of 3,708,000,000. Consumption over the last decade has ranged from 3,401,000,000 bushels in 1925-1926 to 3,901,000,000 in 1931-1932. The average for the period was 3,703,000,000 bushels annually.

The price action of corn, rather than wheat, was the feature of the Chicago market last week. While the wheat prospects are now fairly well defined, the outlook for corn is still uncertain. The advances in corn ranged from 9⅝ to 13 cents a bushel. Wheat closed about 3 cents a bushel above the preceding week. The following table shows the range of prices for the week:

PASSENGERS ON HIAWATHA TOTAL 24,357 DURING JUNE

Revenue passengers carried on the Hiawatha, the Milwaukee's road's streamlined speed train, in June totaled nearly 50 per cent more than in June, 1935, William B. Dixon, general passenger agent, announced yesterday.

On the northbound trip during June the streamliner carried 12,705 passengers and southbound 11,652, a total of 24,357 or an average of 812 paying passengers each day on the combined trips. A year earlier the train carried 16,564 revenue passengers, or an average of 552 a day.

Rail travel continues to increase in popularity, due largely to the new fast schedules, air conditioning and the reduced passenger fares, Dixon said. Since the Hiawatha was placed into service on May 29, 1935, to the end of June, 1936, it carried 260,205 paying passengers, an average of 652 a day.

New York Has Building Boom in First 6 Months

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Building boomed in New York during the first half of 1936. The number of building permits were 83 per cent more than for the same period in 1935. Contract awards up to June 30 were approximately $76,000,000. For all of last year the figure was only $75,000,000. The encouraging report was given in a survey prepared by Myron L. Matthews in the Dow Service Daily Building Reports. He predicted that contract figures for the entire year would exceed $155,000,000.

United Air Lines Transport Voting Trust Ends July 22

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—The voting trust agreement for United Air Lines Transport corporation stock, dated July 2, 1934, will expire by limitation of its term at midnight, July 22, it was announced today by the voting trustees, Martin C. Ansorge, Joseph P. Ripley, and Sumner Sewall. Upon surrender of the voting trust certificates to the City Bank Farmers Trust company holders will receive certificates for capital stock of the corporation.

Holders of interest warrants appurtenant to such Certificates, payable on October 1, 1935 for the face amount of $27.50 will be paid $15, and holders of interest warrants, appurtenant to such Certificates, payable on October 1, 1935 for the face amount of $13.75 will be paid $7.50 upon presentation to the undersigned of such interest warrants at the principal office of the undersigned, No. 100 Broadway, New York City, (Coupon Paying Department) for notation of payment thereon, accompanied by properly executed ownership Certificates, or, where ownership Certificates not required, upon presentation to the undersigned of the name and address of the holder of any such warrant for the purpose of record in said court.

THE NEW YORK TRUST COMPANY, Mortgagee
By Augustus C. Downing, Vice President.

49% Gain in REAL ESTATE Want Advertising

During the first six months of this year the Tribune printed 67,466—or 49%—more lines of real estate want advertising than in the same period of last year.

Today, as during each of the past 20 years, the Tribune has led all other Chicago newspapers in volume of real estate want advertising.

PRICES OF BONDS ADVANCE TO BEST LEVELS OF YEAR

Investment and Speculative Demand Is Strong.

New York, July 12.—(AP)—A strong investment and speculative demand for all types of corporate bonds lifted prices in the listed market to around the best levels of the year last week.

Encouraged by a rallying stock market and extreme firmness in commodity prices, and for the second successive week faced with derth of new offerings, traders and investors bid in lively manner for favored issues which holders were reluctant to part with except at higher figures.

The rail group outdistanced all others as a result of sustained demand coincident with an upturn in net operating incomes of some important carriers.

The issues of two holding concerns, the Alleghany corporation and the Chesapeake corporation, were especially buoyant in response to the rise in stock of the Chesapeake & Ohio railway, in which both have a substantial interest. Rumors were circulated that directors of the road would consider increased dividends.

Marked improvement in many stocks left its imprint on bonds convertible into common shares or with stock purchase warrants attached. Pure Oil 4½s, Studebaker 6s, International Hydro Electric 6s, International Telephone 4½s, and International Cement 4s were among those affected.

Looking ahead to the next quarterly treasury financing date on Sept. 15, some analysts predicted that unless something unforeseen happened to deplete cash holdings of the government, little, if any, "new money" would be sought.

SMITH TO AID BUSH TERMINAL REORGANIZATION

New York, July 12.—(AP)—Alfred E. Smith would become a director of the Bush Terminal company and the Bush Terminal Building company under a plan announced today by a committee representing preferred stockholders. The plan proposed consolidation aiming to end months of litigation in federal courts.

Former City Controler George McAneny, president of the Title Guarantee and Trust company, also has consented to serve as a director.

The plan would provide unified, economical management and would contemplate termination of receivership and other proceedings of the Terminal company, said Alfred N. Houston, counsel for a committee which has on deposit 78 per cent of outstanding preferred stock of the building company. Foreclosure of the Terminal company's properties was threatened under a Circuit Court of Appeals decision, but the reorganization plan was expected to save these stockholders their full equity.

NEW BANK RATE CUT IS EXPECTED IN AMSTERDAM

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

AMSTERDAM, July 12.—The monetary situation here shows great uneasiness owing to the repatriation of capital, the inflow of gold from Brussels and the distribution of a Royal Dutch dividend, of which about 35,000,000 florins are being paid to Dutch holders alone.

Money rates continue their easier trend, with private discounts at 2⅛ per cent. The bank rate, which was lowered from 4½ to 3 per cent within two weeks, undoubtedly will be further reduced to 2½ per cent. The cheap money policy is being stimulated by the government. Unless unforeseen events develop, a continuation of easy money is expected for at least two months. Of the bank's recent gold loss of 122,000,000 florins, 22,000,000 florins have thus far been received.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

Harvesting the Oats.

July 12, 1936.

ONE hundred seventy-five acres of oats were cut and shocked on the Tribune's Yorkville Experimental farm last week. The hot, dry weather was ideal for taking care of the crop and the oats went into the shocks in fine shape. Only one field of 80 acres remains to be cut. The harvesters expect to start the binders in this field tomorrow.

Yields of from 25 to 40 bushels per acre are expected from the oats on the Yorkville farm this year. This is much higher than was anticipated before harvesting began. The farm manager says the quality of the grain is good and that the heads are filled out far better than he had thought they would be. He thinks now that most of the fields will thresh out about two-thirds of a normal yield. Oats on this farm usually run from 50 to 65 bushels an acre in a normal season. Seventy bushels an acre is not uncommon.

Three Binders Used.

Three tractor drawn binders were used to cut the oats. Two of them are equipped with eight foot cutting bars and the other with a 10 foot bar, allowing the three machines to cut a strip 26 feet wide each time they cross the field.

Twelve men compose the harvesting crew. Five ran the tractors and binders, one man operating the entire outfit by himself. Six men did the shocking and the other was used as a general utility man, carrying water and lemonade to the thirsty harvesters and binder twine and repairs for the machines. The men cut and shocked about 45 acres of oats a day.

All the oats on the Yorkville farm this year are the Iowar variety. The five fields all were seeded at about the same time and the oats ripened evenly. The entire 255 acres was ready for harvest at the same time. The grain ripened uniformly in all fields and the men found no green spots. The bundles were put into the shocks with practically no loss from shattering.

High Quality Straw.

The oats straw is of excellent quality. At no time during the growing season was it damaged by chinch bugs, rust, or smut, and none of it lodged. There is a fair amount of blades on each oat straw and the fields were unusually free from weeds. The farm manager says the straw will make excellent bedding for the cattle feeding lots and that if feed becomes scarce it can be used as roughage for feeding live stock. When the oats are thrashed the straw will be stacked carefully near the feed lots where it will be handy.

About three pounds of binder twine per acre were required to tie the oat bundles. Last year the straw was so heavy that the binders used four pounds of twine to the acre.

A small amount of this year's oat crop will be fed in the sheaf to the spring pigs. The bundles will be scattered on the ground in the pastures where the pigs are grazing. After the oats are thrashed the grain will be ground before it is given to the pigs.

Wheaton Farm.

Oat harvest has not yet started at the Wheaton farm. The oats on this farm are to be cut with a combine harvester and the men want to leave the crop standing in the fields as long as possible so the grain will be dry when it comes from the separator. The oats are not ripening as uniformly on this farm as at the Yorkville place. There are green spots in the fields.
